CHILLY WAVE TO ROUT HEAT

OUTLOOK ON '32 FAR FROM ROSY TO HOOVER VIEW

Political Unrest All Too Apparent.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 27.—[Special.]—A combination of circumstances spelling unrest and dissatisfaction on the part of considerable groups of the electorate is causing the politicians to busy themselves at an unusually early date with calculations and activities pertaining to the presidential election of 1932.

These circumstances are chiefly the business depression, the failure of the farm board to prevent the decline of wheat and other farm products prices, and the reaction against national prohibition.

Under these three heads there is a prodigious amount of dissatisfaction with current conditions, dissatisfaction with the Hoover administration to the extent that it is held to blame for the conditions complained of, and a tendency to seek a change in the men and measures governing the country.

Hoover Knows It.

Mr. Hoover is well aware of this situation. He knows that his administration has suffered a loss of popularity and he has discussed with his intimates with frank concern present conditions and future prospects. A few weeks ago he was advised that Hoover stock was due to go up inasmuch as it could not go much lower. The prediction was fulfilled. Some of the severest critics of the President admit that he has regained considerable lost ground in the last month. This they attribute to the firm hand he exhibited in the closing days of the last session of congress, in which he won virtually all he had contended for in the tariff and veterans' legislation. On top of this came the ratification of the navy limitation treaty by an overwhelming majority, which gave Mr. Hoover another triumph.

The conditions of unrest, however, have not changed, conditions that are producing activities in the Republican party in behalf of potential opponents of Mr. Hoover for the nomination for President two years hence.

Morrow Candidacy Progresses.

Thus there is a boom for Ambassador Dwight Morrow, recently nominated for senator from New Jersey, who is the favorite of certain groups of eastern business interests and of proponents of repeal of the 18th amendment which he is championing. Also out of the rumblings of agrarian discontent comes the suggestion that there will be a radical farmers' candidate for the Republican nomination, Senators William E. Borah of Idaho and George W. Norris of Nebraska, and Gov. Clyde H. Reed of Kansas and former Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania being mentioned in this connection.

Mr. Hoover is a candidate for renomination. There is no doubt of that among the Republican leaders, particularly among those who know the plans he is making and the steps he is taking with this end in view. The Hoover partisans view the booming of Morrow and other suggested rivals of their leader with a certain amount of pitying disdain, for they regard it axiomatic that any president has it in his power to renominate himself.

Hoover Plans Advanced.

The Hoover plans for 1932 are said to be far advanced and are even now affecting the reorganization of the Republican national committee. One of the reasons given for the plan to have Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio serve only temporarily as chairman of the committee as successor to Claudius Huston who will resign next week, is that Mr. Hoover desires Postmaster General Walter F. Brown to take the post next year about the time the 1932 campaign is beginning.

As postmaster general, Mr. Brown controls the biggest block of patronage at the disposal of the executive—the postoffice jobs, which judiciously distributed, insure the selection of friendly delegates to the Republican national convention. Moreover, Mr. Brown has been specializing on patronage in the south, where the Republican party is largely a fiction but the paper delegations from which will be larger than usual in the 1932 convention as a result of four southern states giving their electoral votes to Hoover in 1928.

Having laid the foundations as postmaster general for the renomination of Mr. Hoover, Mr. Brown would be in a position to direct the Hoover convention most effectively. If, however, he should be made national chairman

A welcome prediction was ventured by the weather bureau last night. The forecaster, C. A. Donnel, beamingly announced that notwithstanding yesterday's sweltering temperatures, Chicago might find itself shivering tonight.

An area of high atmospheric pressure, moving on the central states from the northwest, was shaping conditions to provide a spell of cool weather for the whole heat stricken country east of the Rockies and bring the farmers sorely needed rain.

At 3 o'clock this morning the first indication of the cool wave reached Chicago in the form of brisk wind squalls, which were followed by a sharp drop in temperature.

100 Degree Heat Is Rule.

Readings above 100 were the rule in the central states yesterday and the drought, which had already severely damaged the crops, was drying up wells and small streams. In Chicago the heat killed four persons and one was drowned as the mercury soared to 96.

First manifestations of the wonder working high pressure area were seen last night in Minnesota and northwestern Iowa. As the barometer rose in Sioux City and Minneapolis the wind switched from southwest to north and the cooling breeze sent the temperature tumbling, Mr. Donnel's observers reported.

The same phenomenon was to occur in Chicago today, the time not specified. There was possibility of a thundershower tonight.

Predicts "Agreeable Action."

"The cool weather is on the way, but I can't say just when it will strike us," Mr. Donnel said. "The temperature may be in the 80's in the morning but when this high pressure area arrives and the wind changes, you'll see some agreeable action."

The forecaster was asked if as low a mark as 75 might be hoped for.

"Seventy-five?" he chuckled. "If that lake breeze makes its usual evening appearance, it may drop to 60 or below it. I'm not absolutely certain but I have a notion we will hear grumbling about the cold Monday night."

Falls Dead at Church.

One of yesterday's heat victims, a well dressed man about 50 years old, toppled out of an aisle seat at the Chicago Gospel tabernacle, 825 Barry avenue, during an afternon service conducted by the Rev. William Hogg. His unidentified body lay last night at a mortuary at 955 Diversey parkway.

The other victims were Mrs. Nettie Parkin, 55 years old, who collapsed and died at her home, 2812 Burling street; William Sweeney, 70 years old, who died in the County hospital of a sunstroke suffered last Friday, and John Lee, 50 year old Negro of 4946 St. Lawrence avenue, who dropped dead at a neighbor's home.

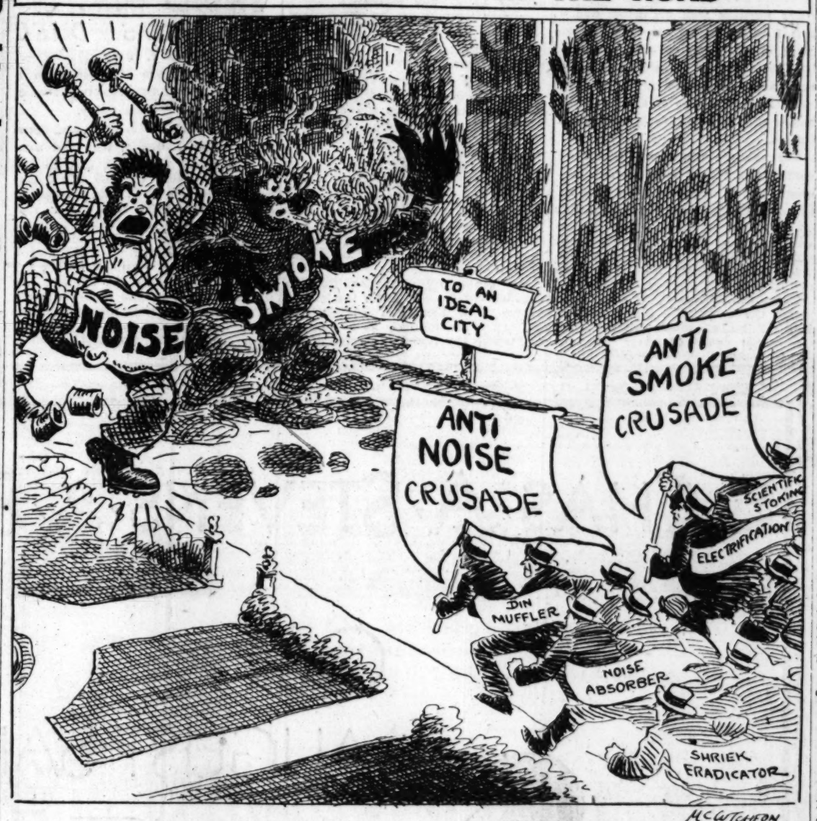
Novice Swimmer Drowns.

While approximately 600,000 persons swarmed the bathing beaches and their cars blocked the streets for blocks around, but one drowning occurred in the city. The victim was Walter Jackowiak, 22 years old, a machinist of 4403 South Richmond street, a novice swimmer, who got beyond his depth at the 18th street beach.

A drowning occurred in a gravel pit pool near Gurnee in Lake county. The victim was Louis Petrovsek, 19 years old, of 808 8th street, Waukegan. He was seized with cramps.

Another of Chicagoland's regular holiday traffic jams was heightened yesterday as an estimated 750,000 city dwellers sought distraction from the heat in a change of scenery. Roads leading to the lake resorts of northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, northern Indiana, and southern Michigan were jammed in the morning with outbound cars and in the evening with homecomers.

THE TWO OBSTACLES ON THE ROAD



Berlin-Chicago Flyers Reach Orkney Isles

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 27.—Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, the German airmen who are attempting a flight from Berlin to Chicago by the northern route, reached Kirkwall, Orkney islands, at 6:44 p. m. today. They made the 650 mile hop from London, which they left early this morning, with a short stop at Edinburgh. Their tiny Klemm-Daimler monoplane functioned well throughout the trip.

The 40 horse power engine of the little ship is in fine condition and both the flyers are highly confident of reaching Chicago. The next stage of the flight carries them to Reykjavik, Iceland, a distance of 755 miles, and is the first ocean-crossing trip. They will fly by the way of Greenland to the North American mainland, thence down the Labrador coast and across the continent to Chicago.

A ONE LEGGED FLYER

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 27.—Wolfram Hirth, premier gliding expert of Germany, and his partner, Oscar Weller, in their Klemm-Daimler sports plane, are now well started on their flight from Berlin to Chicago by way of the Orkney islands, Greenland and Labrador.

The flyers have promised German aviation chiefs that they will not make a single start until the German national weather station at Hamburg and American stations on the other side of the ocean signal that the weather is passable.

Both Have Flown Much.

This pair has been on many an expedition together since 1924, Hirth as a motorcyclist, glider and airplane pilot and Weller as a sports journalist, builder of motorcycles, airplane mechanic, engineer and observer. Both have crisscrossed Europe in all directions. The present trans-Atlantic flight has been in preparation since 1927.

Hirth, a member of a comfortable hard working German family, was born in Stuttgart on Feb. 28, 1900. His elder brother, Helmuth Hirth, was Germany's most successful pre-war flyer. Wolfram Hirth went in for motorless gliding in 1920 and participated in many important glider meets. In 1929 he won the Hindenburg prize for gliding.

Before this he was a champion motorcyclist, participating in 15 races and winning seven prizes, including the prize for Europe. He lost a leg in an accident in 1925, but continued racing. Weller is from Munich and has been out on his own since he was a small boy.

While still students, Hirth and Weller started to build gliders in the Rhone mountains out of their mothers' broomsticks, wire, and other pickup materials. Hirth was the first to join the ranks of the gliding enthusiasts.

The stretch of the flight that worries the flyers is between Reykjavik, Iceland, and Julianhaab, Greenland, because of their fear of suddenly forming fogs which might lead them astray.

ROBBERS KILL GROCER; TAKE $80 AND ESCAPE

Samuel Esserman, 45 years old, 3301 Fulton street, proprietor of a grocery and delicatessen at 264 North Kedzie avenue, was shot to death last night by two bandits, who fled north after rifling the till of $80. Esserman was talking with three customers when the bandits entered and said, "This is a stickup."

The customers put up their hands, but Esserman, they told the police, made a move as if to reach for a gun behind the counter. Both bandits opened fire. Esserman dropped with bullets in the chest and heart.

"That's what he gets for resisting," said one bandit.

The robbers made the customers lie on the floor beside the dying man, rifled the cash register and escaped.

Babies, Canaries, Dogs Rescued in Flat Blaze

Three babies, nine older children, four canaries, and three dogs were rescued by firemen early this morning from a three story, six apartment building at 2837 North Clark street, which was swept by fire. The blaze, apparently originating in the basement, leaped up the front of the building and smoke filled the vestibules, shutting off escape by the stairs. The pets and children were carried down ladders. Police said the fire was caused by the explosion of a still.

Loot Evanston Mansion, Then Set It on Fire

Burglars, ransacking the twenty room residence of Bernard C. Garrison in spacious grounds at 2437 Sheridan road, Evanston, last night, accidentally or maliciously started a fire which inflicted $20,000 damage on the third floor and roof of the house before a passer-by discovered it.

Mr. Garrison, who is treasurer of Walter G. Warren & Co., manufacturers of lighting equipment at 231 East Ohio street, was spending the week-end in Wisconsin with his family, and the sum of the loot could not immediately be determined. One report was that $25,000 worth of furs were missing.

Firemen, throwing on lights after they had quenched the fire, discovered burnt matches scattered on the floors and stairways and found oriental rugs, oil paintings, and art objects piled at a rear door. They summoned the police.

The investigation established that the burglars entered by breaking a rear window. A Japanese, who was seen plying a garden hose on the blaze and was at the time presumed to be a servant of the Garrisons, disappeared before police arrived. He is being sought for questioning.

JOHN H. ALCOCK JUST A SPEEDER TO COP ON BEAT

Policeman Joseph Schnagel of the Fillmore station, plodding his beat yesterday in pursuance of the order of Acting Commissioner John H. Alcock, had fetched up at Madison street and Homan avenue. Once again he lifted his cap and, manipulating the index finger of his right hand in the manner of a squeegee, flicked the dank beads from his perspiring brow. It was 95 in the shade, if any. Of a sudden a car shot across Homan avenue without stopping.

"Hey, over to the curb," yelled Policeman Schnagel. "Who do you think you are?"

"John H. Alcock," said the man at the wheel.

"Yeah. Who killed Ash Can Pete and why? I'm Mayor Thompson. I got something here that will interest you, commissioner."

"I'm not the commissioner," explained the driver. "I'm his nephew, 23 years old, a truck driver, and the son of Lieutenant of Detectives Michael J. Alcock. What's this?" as he was handed a ticket to appear in traffic court.

"Just an old Spanish custom," remarked Policeman Schnagel.

SENDS CHILDREN AWAY; KILLS WIFE AND THEN SELF

Edward Rath, 43 years old, chauffeur, killed his wife, Marie, 36 years old, and then himself yesterday in their home at 1117 Marengo avenue, Forest Park. He used a .32 caliber revolver, firing two bullets into Mrs. Rath's brain and one into his own.

Seeking a motive, the police questioned Rath's brothers, John and Charles, with whom the couple lived. John said his brother had not worked for months because of a stomach ailment, but had improved recently. He was not pressed financially, as he had just bought a new car.

That Rath had carefully planned the murder and suicide was indicated by the fact that on Saturday he had sent the two children, Earl, 15 years old, and Madaline, 10, to Dixon, to visit relatives. John said he seemed in the best of spirits yesterday when he and Charles left the house. Neighbors heard the shots and notified the police.

FOX THEATERS TO CONFINE ADS TO NEWSPAPERS

New York, July 27.—(AP)—The Fox Theater corporation announced today that managers of Fox playhouses would in the future confine all their advertising to newspapers.

The corporations announced that the new policy was not a retrenchment plan, inasmuch as managers had been advised to use the money, formerly spent on other forms of advertising, in increasing their appropriations for newspaper space.

French Police Raid Spanish Society; Seize Anarchists

PARIS, July 27.—(AP)—Sixty-one alleged anarchists, mostly foreigners, were arrested by French police today at a meeting of an association known as "the Federation of the Spanish Tongue." Five of those arrested turned out to be men already expelled from France, who had illicitly returned. The police say they obtained evidence that the meeting's object was to choose delegates to go to Spain to provoke disorders.

Thirsty Foil Snoopers by Going to Sea

On Board S. S. California, July 27.—[Special.]—Cruising beyond the sphere of influence of Uncle Sam's prohibition snoopers, 719 roving boys and girls sipped their drinks as they found them today in 16,330 bottles on board the good ship California of the Anchor line as she danced her way toward Halifax on the first half of a six day voyage. The California put out to sea yesterday, escorted by a smart coast guard boat which appeared to sense the strange mission of the huge liner.

The California originally was to have cleared New York harbor with the intention only of remaining beyond the twelve mile limit. Later, however, officials of the line decided that perhaps it might be better if the California anchored for ten hours in the waters of Canada before sailing once more into the wider expanse of ocean.

Practice Restraint.

Admirable restraint was exhibited by most of the passengers today. A languid air, reminiscent of continental salons and Greenwich Village speakeasies, pervaded the bar.

No unseemly haste was exhibited in the parade toward the cool shadows of the room where liquor refreshments glided from bottles that sparkled green, amber, and orange. The general disposition appeared to make for conviviality without exuberance.

Perhaps this attitude of restraint might be attributed to the fact that the women far outnumber the men. Perhaps it was due to the consideration that six days in a barroom is ample time for liquidation.

16,330 Bottles Aboard.

The 16,330 bottles of good cheer may be distributed among 150 married couples and 450 women who are going about unattached.

Capt. Robert Smart, commander of the California, said today he will proceed about 250 miles to sea after leaving Halifax—possibly in an endeavor to avoid unnatural concoction of cocktails, since fair weather is a requisite for whoopee on the high seas.

Before returning to New York, the California will have traveled about 2,500 miles. And for those whose mouth waters for such a trip, there are two more at least in the offing.

Boy Takes to Tree and Stays to Dodge Dentist

Norfolk, Va., July 27.—[Special.]—Rather than keep an appointment with a dentist, James Bunkeley, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. James O. Bunkeley, climbed a tree Friday and his mother and father have been unable to induce him to come down. His mother has been supplying food to the boy which he hoists to his perch with strings.

Two Earthquake Shocks Hit Jamaica; No Damage

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 27.—(AP)—Two sharp earth shocks were felt here this afternoon. No damage was reported.

NOTED JURIST'S INDICTMENT OF DRY ACT BARED

Eschweiler Letter to Wickersham.

New York, July 27.—[Special.]—The last letter Supreme Court Justice Franz C. Echweiler of Wisconsin wrote before his death last November was addressed to George W. Wickersham, chairman of the national commission on law enforcement and observance, and it contained a severe indictment of the eighteenth amendment. A copy of the letter was obtained here today from Justice Eschweiler's son, Dr. Paul C. Eschweiler.

The letter, which Mr. Wickersham never has made public, states nine reasons why the prohibition law, in the opinion of Justice Eschweiler, is "weak, bad and unreasonable."

"The letter to Mr. Wickersham," said Dr. Eschweiler in his Brooklyn home, "was one of the last matters to which my father gave his attention. He had completed it, corrected the first draft and returned it to his secretary to be mailed the night before his death. It was sent to Mr. Wickersham after my father's death and I received acknowledgment of its receipt."

Says It Breeds Corruption.

In the letter Justice Eschweiler declared that the prohibition law "incites the corruption of public officials and fosters the growth of illicit industries beyond control." Justice Eschweiler warns that "neither a nation nor its law makers should expect any better results from traveling on a mistaken road than can an individual.

The letter was written by Justice Eschweiler in reply to one received from Mr. Wickersham as part of his correspondence with leaders of the nation, seeking their views as an aid to the commission's program. It follows:

"My Dear Mr. Wickersham: In response to your letter of Oct. 16th, I beg leave to submit the following:

"The law makers of a free people, whether it be a majority of the people themselves or their representative bodies, have no moral right to attempt to enforce or to expect rational obedience to their dictates, however framed or enacted, unless such dictates are of a nature, per se, to be within the field of the law's sanctity.

Quotes an Authority.

"Professor Emeritus Burgess of Columbia college in his recent great work, 'The Sancity of Law,' p. 8, has pointed out that now it is no longer, as it was in olden days, merely because the law was pronounced by the voice of authority—but because, and when only, it is not only so pronounced but there is rationality in its content, and that without both of which elements no law can become entitled to proper respect and therefore willing obedience to it expected of a free people.

"Until that doctrine is recognized and followed by the law makers of a free people as a fundamental and unescapable law in the field of government, as much so, in the long run, as is the force of gravity in the law of physics, it will be vain to expect a proper or continued obedience to any unreasonable man made law. A people themselves or their law making representatives have no authority over or veto power as to such natural law.

Duty Before Commission.

"No better time could be presented than now, and no body could more fittingly and properly suggest recognition of and compliance with such a fundamental natural law than your commission.

"A nation of law makers, as we are supposed to be, and our representatives in the law making field, should be as ready to admit mistakes and correct laws as is expected of the individual in his ways. Neither a nation nor its law makers should expect any better result from traveling on a mistaken road than can an individual.

"I suggest the following as some of the reasons why it is futile to expect substantial success, or anything but continued and increasing disappointment, in further attempts to enforce the laws relating to the eighteenth amendment:

"1. It is inherently unreasonable because it is an attempt by intemperate legislation over the whole body of the people to effect a cure of intemperance in individuals. A law which produces more evils than it aims to cure is an evil law.

No Logical Background.

"2. It is inherently unreasonable because it has no logical place or position in the machinery of the government as such should be outlined and framed by a constitution, which is but the foundation and framework by which a free people govern themselves.

"It is the only instance in our federal constitution where an attempt has been made by that document to reach the individual citizen, [a] all other provisions in the constitution being properly either grants of power to the various branches of the government created by that instrument; or [b] limitations upon the powers of such bodies; or [c], and most important, declarations protecting natural inherent rights of the individuals as against other individuals or the governing bodies.

Dry Amendment Unnatural.

The eighteenth amendment does not fall within any one of those three divisions. It is nothing but an attempt to convert a constitution into a criminal code. It has no more place in the constitution than would provisions against murder, adultery, fornication, gambling, etc., or a reciting of the ten commandments, and indeed much less place, for such others relate to mala in se, as distinguished from the mala prohibita covered by the eighteenth amendment.

"3. It is a cog which does not and cannot mesh with or fit in with the machine of government.

"4. By its very position in such a document it exalts that which is a minor offense at the most above serious crimes and brings disrespect upon the system of government which adopts and attempts to enforce it.

"5. It is inherently weak because it is an admittedly attempted mixture, and thereby necessary confusion, of both state and federal control.

Evils of Enforcement.

"6. It is inherently bad because its attempted enforcement has brought a train of evils inevitable and constantly growing—namely: a disregard not only for this law but for all law; a demoralization of the growing youth of the land; an excitement of and an incitement to the corruption of public officials; it fosters the growth of illicit industries beyond control.

"7. It is inherently weak because it was adopted only after the most extravagant propaganda on record.

"8. It is inherently weak because it creates a continuous crying for more drastic and unreasonable punishments far in excess of any proper proportion with other offenses and penalties.

"9. It is inherently weak because it is constantly increasing in its cost of enforcement, in money, morale, and morality, and all such beyond all comparison with any other law.

"Your committee could, by boldly and bravely calling attention to the radical and fundamental mistake of the 18th amendment, do much to avert the disasters sure to follow from a continued adherence to the old, exploded and dangerous doctrine in a land of free people that a law has sanctity, therefore must be obeyed because the voice of authority has pronounced it, the ispe dixit doctrine of autocracy."

3 KILLED WHEN PLANE FALLS AT JERSEY AIRPORT

Matawan, N. J., July 27.—[Special.]—The first major accident since the opening of the new Matawan airport occurred this evening. It resulted in the death of the pilot and the two passengers of a Wright-motored biplane that had been employed all day in taking up sight-seers from the airport.

The plane had been in use all day, without difficulties of any kind, until Albert Biddle, the pilot, took it up on what was to have been the last trip of the day. At a height of 1,500 feet the plane suddenly seemed to get out of control. It went into a tailspin, observers said, and Biddle never regained control.

Brother and Sister Killed.

Howard, S. D., July 27.—[Special.]—Cecil Erfman, 17, and her brother, Clarence, 8, of Vilas, were killed in a fall from an airplane here Saturday evening. They fell from an altitude of about 600 feet. Pilot Perrigo, who landed his plane safely and without injury to himself, says the plane struck a miniature tornado which turned the plane almost upside down and threw the children out. The tragedy was witnessed by several hundred people, among them the brother who had paid for the ride and their mother.

QUAKE AREA CALM AS ITALY PUSHES WORK OF RELIEF

King Finds Homeless Get Plenty of Food.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NAPLES, July 27.—A complete survey today of the districts in which an earthquake spread death and destruction last Wednesday reveals that relief work is well organized and a period of reconstruction and adjustment of the homeless and penniless back to a means of earning a livelihood has been started by the authorities. Reconstruction of the destroyed homes will require several millions of dollars.

Through the whole area which we visited today food supplies are adequate and a complete calm has returned, although many peasants still sit in front of their ruined homes with confused memories and dazed minds. Tent shelter has been provided amply for all those who have not been taken to other towns.

There are still probably some dead under the ruins, but the death list will not mount much higher than the official figure of 2,142. The authorities now have a complete check on the missing. The toll of injured will fall somewhat short of 5,000.

King Continues Visits.

King Victor Emmanuel today continued his trip among the sufferers. He again passed through Villanova, an almost completely destroyed town, this afternoon.

Most of the wrecked towns and villages crown peaks and spurs of the lower Apennines, having been built there during the middle ages for strategic reasons. Many of them will likely be rebuilt in the valleys where the towns seem to have been less desperately shaken.

We drove from Naples through Avellina today. Except for the human misery that has been caused, the country is as smilingly as it was the day before the quake. In some of the churches, services were being held, which we could see through yawning cracks in the buildings.

Two Girls Still in Ruins.

In Montecalyo, three soldiers pointed out a house beneath which still lie two girls. On a hillside is a tent hospital in which several babies and old women are being nursed and beside it is a bivouac of tents as in wartime. There are plenty of supplies.

Villanova, typical of those towns destroyed, is a flat ruin with not more than a dozen shattered houses still standing. We found our way through piles of stones to the wrecked house of the podesta, Sig. Averuti, who perished with his whole family. Although all of the residents have been evacuated for Villanova, some were allowed to return during the day to search for their property among the ruins.

In other ruined towns, Lacedonia, Aquilonia, and Melfi we found relief work being wound up. Everywhere there is order and returned calm and resignation.

VOORHIS, TAMMANY HALL LEADER, MARKS HIS 101ST BIRTHDAY

New York, July 27.—[Special.]—John R. Voorhis, president of the New York city board of elections and grand sachem of Tammany hall, was 101 years old today.

He slipped away from his home in Greenwich Village in the morning to attend a family Sunday dinner in White Plains, chuckling at his success in eluding the usual birthday celebration with which his friends surround him.

He responded to a toast to his continued long life and good health, drunk in cool water, and declared his opposition to prohibition.

LASSO AGAINST SWORD WINS IN WOMEN'S DUEL

MEXICO CITY, July 27.—(AP)—A lasso proved more effective than a sword in a duel between two women on the road to Toluca today.

Senorita Malquiades Luna and Senorita Dorotea Mancilla, who had been on bad terms for years, met on the road by accident. Officials said Senorita Dorotea, on horseback, challenged Señorita Malquiades, who was on foot and armed with a machete.

Police said the challenged woman rushed in to attack with the sword, but her mounted opponent swung her horse aside, dodging the weapon. As the horse dodged, the mounted woman's lasso shot out, the loop encircling Senorita Malquiades, who was then dragged 150 feet and seriously injured.

Rancher Earl Wants to Sell English Inheritance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 27.—The earl of Egmont, "the rancher earl" who came from Alberta, Canada, last year to live at the family seat, Avon castle at Ringwood, Hampshire, on succeeding to the title, wants to sell the property as well as the pictures and silver. The earl declared his chief object was to meet death duties.

APTISM BRINGS IXUP OF BABIES O A SHOWDOWN

rt May Be Asked to Unravel Tangle.

A hasty baptismal ceremony yesterday brought the Bamberger-Watkins ...ter mixup to a crisis which may ...ult in a legal showdown today. A ...ial hearing on a habeas corpus petition, with a judge placed in the position of determining the parentage of the two infants where a corps of experts has failed, was indicated as the chief development in the tangle which has interested the public for the last ... days.

Satisfied that the baby they have in their possession is really their own, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger, at ...Block yesterday morning, appeared at Our Lady of Solace Catholic church, ...d South Sangamon street. Mrs. ...mberger carried the baby. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. ...rman Hausmann, friends who had ...reed to act as godparents to the ...ild.

Baby Christened Bamberger.

The Rev. E. M. Long, assistant to ...e pastor, the Rev. John Scanlan, ...ristened the child with the name of ...ames Edward Bamberger. The name ...as inscribed in the church records ...f the famous dispute, according to ...e Bambergers, was finished.

"They so announced, together with ...eir attorney, a few minutes later.

"We are convinced that the baby ...s ours," they joined in saying. "We have given the boy our name because ...here is no doubt in our minds that ...e are the parents. We will not sue ...nyone a party to suits against the hos...ital. We will not permit the baby to ...e submitted to any more so called ...ests and we certainly won't allow him ...o be taken to a women's massmeeting ...r be paraded."

Watkinses Not Satisfied.

The hospital referred to is the En...ood hospital where both babies were born and where the mixup occurred which led the Bambergers and ...r. and Mrs. William Watkins to ...uestion whether they had received ...heir own babies. Whereas the Bam...ergers finally agreed they had their ...wn child, the Watkins family has in...isted that the baby in their posses...ion was actually born to Mrs. Bam...erger.

The massmeeting was announced ...aturday by a "jury" of mothers who ...ere called on the theory that mother ...nstinct might solve the problem of ...hich baby was which. The women, ...led by Mrs. Grace E. Dibrell, decided ...hat 1,000 mothers, assembled in con...ention, would study the two babies ...nd return a verdict which could not ...elp but be correct. The massmeet...ng was tentatively planned for Thurs...ay in a place not yet determined.

The early baptism was held after ...n announcement Saturday night that ...he ceremony would be conducted at ...nother church in the afternoon. The ...Bambergers feared possible interfer...nce by legal process from Mr. and Mrs. Watkins and their attorney, it was said.

O'Hara Ready to Go to Court.

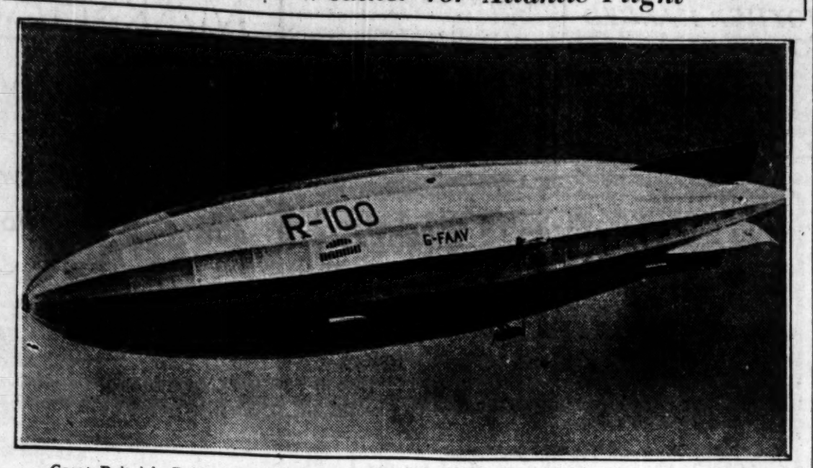
Mr. and Mrs. Watkins were reported last evening to have gone into the country, presumably to confer with relatives. Their attorney, Barratt O'Hara, said that legal proceedings, in the form of a habeas corpus petition, would be instituted if his client so ordered.

In such a case the sheriff, in the event of the refusal of the Bambergers to surrender their baby, would be empowered to seize the infant and produce him in court. Witnesses would be heard and the judge finally called upon to determine which baby should go to each family.

Last night Attorney O'Hara characterized the christening as a "dramatic gesture" which had not changed the opinion of his client, Mr. Watkins, that the two families had the wrong babies. The lawyer declared that legal action for damages would be started against the Englewood hospital today.

Watkins visited the Bambergers during the afternoon, it was learned, and protested against the baptismal ceremony, declaring that the Bambergers had done a wrong in christening a child which might not be their own.

Awaits Fair Weather for Atlantic Flight



Great Britain's R-100, said to be the world's largest dirigible, as it appeared on its initial flight, during which it averaged 70 miles an hour. It is now waiting for a favorable opportunity to fly to Canada.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 27.—The British air ministry announced tonight that the airship R-100 is all ready for its trip to Canada and will start as soon as there are moderately favorable conditions for an east to west flight over the Atlantic. Maj. Scott, accompanied by air ministry officials, made a thorough examination of the vessel, and everything having been found satisfactory, the airship was officially passed.

The journey is expected to take 60 or 70 hours but there are enough rations for 100 hours. Special bread is being made of special shape and ingredients so as to prevent deterioration and dried vegetables will be carried.

HOOVER KEEPS COOL AT CAMP IN MOUNTAINS

Orange, Va., July 27.—(AP)—President Hoover relaxed today in the welcome shade of his mountain camp as he whiled away the hours chatting with friends and considering plans for the western trip he intends to take next month.

It was a day of almost complete inactivity for the President and his guests. The heat from the lowlands had edged upward to the mountain retreat and the presidential party sought relief in the shade.

The President went over plans which have been presented for his summer vacation in the west, but no decision was announced. It was understood he would decide upon a definite schedule this week.

COMMITTEE HERE TODAY TO PROBE SOVIET ACTIVITY

A congressional committee headed by Hamilton Fish Jr. of New York departed for Chicago last night from Detroit, where it has been investigating soviet activities. The committee is making a tour of investigation throughout the United States and will be in Chicago for several days.

Besides Representative Fish the committee is composed of John Nelson, Maine; Carl G. Bechman, West Virginia; Judge Edward E. Eslick, Tennessee, and Robert S. Hall, Mississippi. They are accompanied by Joseph G. Rogers, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, a clerk and a stenographer.

Chairman Fish introduced the resolution for the investigation in the last session of congress which created the committee. Congressman Fish said he is satisfied, from the testimony heard, that while communism may not be a menace to the continuance of orderly government in the United States, it is a distinct menace to industry. Hearings here will be held in the Federal building.

8 GERMAN MADE MOTORS TO GO IN NAVY DIRIGIBLE

Washington, D. C., July 27.—(AP)—Eight German made motors are to be installed in the navy's giant dirigible now under construction, because motors manufactured in this country would not provide the required efficiency.

Naval officers had hoped American motors could be used, because it sometimes now is necessary to order replacement parts from Germany, but domestic motors failed to meet the requirements. Motors of the same type are in use on the Los Angeles.

The new dirigible will be slightly less than twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin, will have a speed of 72 miles an hour, and a cruising range of 9,200 miles, 200 more than the Graf.

IDENTIFY VICTIM BURNED TO DEATH IN AUTO WRECK

Traffic Toll of 92 Lives Forecast for August.

Charles Rademacher, a printer, 7735 Merrill avenue, was identified yesterday by his brother, Alfred, 7207 Champlain avenue, as the man who was burned to death early Sunday morning when his sedan caught fire off the Willow Springs road, near 47th place, in La Grange.

Gasoline Tank Explodes.

Apparently, Rademacher, driving alone, lost control of the wheel and the car ran into a ditch, striking a telephone pole. The gasoline tank exploded. Residents along the road were awakened by a loud report and saw the car in flames. The steering wheel had punctured Rademacher's abdomen, pinning him in his seat. He was dead when the police arrived.

Three Northwestern university students received minor injuries yesterday when their car skidded and turned over on a wet pavement at Sheridan square and Keeney street, Evanston. They are George Bohlin, 20 years old, son of Oscar Bohlin, mason contractor, 2718 Central street; Allen T. Hart, 19, son of Harry L. Hart, insurance broker, 2710 Woodbine avenue, and Clyde Winter, 20, son of D. A. Winter, owner of a chain of meat markets, 2200 Pioneer road.

Chicago Deaths Increase.

Ninety-two persons—men, women, and children—will die on the streets of Chicago in automobile accidents the month of August, according to an estimate of the Chicago Safety council. The prediction is based on the increase in deaths for the first six months of 1930 over that of 1929. For 1929 the number was 313; for this year 372.

"The wholesale sacrifice of human life can be charged almost entirely to careless driving of motorists and careless walking of pedestrians," said Charles L. Rice, president of the safety council.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Olsen and their three children of 2635 Grand avenue, escaped injury last night by jumping from their car after it had stalled in the path of a freight train on railroad tracks at 7900 Grand avenue. The car was carried 100 feet by the locomotive and demolished.

NINE SEIZED BY POLICE ACCUSED OF WORKING AUTO BADGER GAME

New York, July 27.—[Special.]—Four young women and five men were arrested today in a motorized version of the old badger game. One of the girls and two of the men, according to the police, were caught in the act of robbing a victim, while the remainder were taken in custody in a raid on an apartment off Riverside drive, where officers followed an escaping member of the gang after they had broken up an attempted robbery.

The police say the girls begged rides of motorists passing up Riverside drive, then would ask to be let out at certain streets, where their male companions would pounce upon the good samaritan motorist and proceed under threats to mulct him of all the cash in his pocket.

GLAND HEARING KEEPS POLITICS IN BACKGROUND

Patients of Doctor Tell of Experiences.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hutchinson, Kas., July 27.—[Special.]—Kansas politics, with the Aug. 5 primaries only ten days away, is kicking like a steer over the competition of the goats and their glands. With the sun kissed prairies an oven at 108 in the shade, reader interest appears still absorbed in sex rejuvenation and the experiences of middle aged men who sought to regain youth at Dr. John R. Brinkley's goat gland factory at Milford. The hearing before the Kansas medical board on charges asking revocation of Dr. Brinkley's license to practice is to be resumed tomorrow morning in a stuffy room with a goatish smell in Topeka.

Medical lights have appeared before the board with opinions that sex glands of the lower animals cannot successfully be transplanted into the human body. Books by Serge Voronoff, a French surgeon, by Dr. Max Thorek of Chicago, and others have been quoted copiously by both sides, and Kansas has been reading discussions of the biological gap between man and the goat.

Brinkley Ready to Testify.

The word is that Dr. Brinkley is ready to take the stand to explain how he transplants a gland and hitches it to a nerve to give it "a nerve kick" as set forth in his book. Politicians moan it's all likely to distract a lot of attention that just now should be centered on the higher and more beautiful things in life, such as who are to be nominated for political jobs.

Interest out in the wheat belt during the hearing appears to have centered in the stories of woe narrated by witnesses who did a Ponce de Leon in search of vanished youth. They are talking of Charles Ziegenbart of Linn, who told on the stand that he paid $750 for an operation to change him from 60 to 21. His wound failed to heal rapidly, so he went back for additional work, and after a third call the goat gland doctors told him his prostate gland had been removed and advised him to buy a rubber heel in a shoe shop and bind it on the wound. But even the heel didn't bring back his youth, and Ziegenbart went to another hospital, winding up in a research hospital in Kansas City.

Wife Leaves One Patient.

Another tale of blighted hopes was narrated by John H. Zahner of Lenaxa, a 65 year old farmer-orchardist-bee grower, who had a young wife. He said he had been listening for two years to the gland factory radio talks before he decided to pay $750 for the four ply operation. He talked it over with Mrs. Zahner, who favored the idea that he seek rejuvenation. Mr. Zahner testified he has not been quite the same man since the operation, although he can still kick six inches higher than his head.

About a month after the operation Mr. Zahner's young wife made a cash settlement with her husband and went back to the old home town and did not come back.

Others Tell of Benefits.

After a procession of cases such as these, the Brinkley side paraded to the stand witnesses who testified they had received benefits from treatments at Milford, and the medical and surgical experts battled with the lawyers over gland transplanting, and over what they termed the "anatomical, technical and biological impossibility" of the operations described in Brinkley's book.

In some quarters efforts are being made to give something of a political twist to the show. James E. Smith, one of Brinkley's lawyers, is a son-in-law of Gov. Reed, and another Brinkley lawyer is Fred S. Jackson, ex-attorney general. A brother-in-law of Attorney General William A. Smith is head of the Brinkley Pharmaceutical association. The attorney general is legal adviser for the state medical board. No emphasis, however, is being thrown on the political phases.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER LOW; TRANSPORTATION LINES ARE WORRIED

Quincy, Ill., July 27.—[Special.]—The Mississippi is at such a low stage river men on the upper reaches of the stream are becoming alarmed. It is about sixteen feet lower than it was a month ago. The government forecast says the river will fall slowly until heavy local rains come.

River transportation has been slowed up and it is feared federal barge lines will be affected by the low water. Sand bars and relief dams are visible everywhere along the stream.

Last year the barge lines on the upper Mississippi were compelled to discontinue service a month before the government lights were extinguished owing to low water. All this goes to show the need of the nine foot channel for upper river navigation, it is pointed out.

The government bulletin on the stage of the river from St. Paul to Cairo follows: St. Paul, 1.7 feet; Dubuque, 3.5; Davenport, 2.9; Keokuk, 1.3; Quincy, 3.3; Hannibal, 3.4; Louisiana, 3.1; St. Louis, 4.2; Cairo, 10.1.

WATCHMAN LAX ON JOB; HIS BOSS PLAYS A TRICK

George L. Eacott, proprietor of the A-B-C auto repair shop at 2644 Washington boulevard, had long suspected that his watchman, James C. Moyer, 46 years old, was dodging his duties at night. Eacott's suspicions were confirmed when at 9:30 last night he visited the shop and found no watchman there.

Eacott puttered around the place for half an hour and departed. At 11 p. m. the watchman returned and discovered that in his absence some one had battered the combination off a disused safe in the office. He called the Warren avenue police, who, scenting an "inside job," searched the watchman's trunk and found two electric drills. They arrested the watchman and telephoned his employer to appear and sign a complaint against Moyer.

"Turn him loose," said Eacott. "He's a bum watchman, but not a burglar. I broke the safe lock myself and planted the drills in his trunk to teach him a lesson."

BOY OF 9 FINDS MOTHER HANGED TO ATTIC RAFTER

Nine year old Richard Courtnay Jr., returning yesterday from a neighbor boy's yard to his home at 3724 Page avenue, started looking for his mother, Eleanora. He thought she was playing hide-and-seek with him, as she frequently did. The home is a two story dwelling and Richard had to climb to the attic before he found her. She had hanged herself with a clothesline to a rafter.

Mrs. Courtney left no note. Her husband, Richard, a sign hanger, who was not home when she hanged herself, could offer no explanation. He said she had not been in ill health and their finances were all right.

INQUEST TODAY INTO TRAGEDY OF A BABY AND RUM

Mother Is Prostrated by Infant's Death.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

A coroner's jury at the Grand Crossing police station will decide this morning whether to hold Edward M. Johnston, wartime aviator and broker, on a charge of manslaughter for the death of his 5 month old daughter, Mary Jane, or to designate the tragedy as accidental. The baby was killed Friday night when her father stumbled and fell upon her while intoxicated. Coroner Bundesen, who spent most of yesterday investigating the case, expects to preside at the inquest.

As a result of the tragedy Mrs. Johnston was reported in a condition of prostration in the home of a friend, Miss Mary Drake, 4641½ Lake Park avenue.

Devoted Father, Friends Say.

"Mrs. Johnston is unable to see any one," Miss Drake said yesterday afternoon. "She had two attacks of hysteria this morning, and the doctor has just managed to get her quiet. Help to prosecute her husband? No, indeed! She wouldn't think of such a thing. Every one who knows them knows that they are utterly devoted to each other. She's feeling as badly about the misery he's going through right now as she does about Mary Jane's death."

Other friends corroborated Miss Drake's statement that Johnston was an affectionate husband and father.

For some hours yesterday Coroner Bundesen talked with Johnston, who is being held in the Grand Crossing station. Afterwards Johnston was taken to the apartment he occupied with his wife and baby at 7577 Essex avenue, where he reenacted as much as he could recall of what had occurred. It proved to be meager enough.

Johnston's Story of Tragedy.

He and his wife, he said, had stopped at a roadhouse on their way back from a visit to a cemetery where a child of Mrs. Johnston by a former marriage is buried. They had some beer. On returning home Mrs. Johnston left to call at her brother's home, cautioning her husband to take care of Mary Jane if she cried. The baby was asleep on the bed.

Returning about 10 o'clock, Mrs. Johnston rang the bell a number of times, finally arousing her husband, who, according to his story to Capt. Patrick McCauley of the Grand Crossing police, had drunk two ounces of straight alcohol, with a chaser. Johnston opened the door and, at his wife's question, said the baby had been fine. Mrs. Johnston stepped into the apartment and found the child lying dead on the floor of the bedroom. Mary Jane's skull was fractured in two places, one arm and leg were broken and all her ribs were fractured.

When the police arrived Johnston asserted the baby had fallen off the bed and been killed. After being questioned five times by Capt. McCauley, he confessed he had dimly realized the baby was crying, and had picked her up while he still was in a stupor. Then he said he stumbled and fell on the child, crushing her.

"Why did you tell the police at first that the baby had fallen off the bed?" Johnston was asked.

"I thought it was too awful to have people know that I was such a poor sort of father," began the weary faced, quiet mannered young man, "that I—" he choked, stopped. A moment later he went on, "—that I couldn't take care of my own child when she was left to me, without drinking, so I said the baby fell off the bed. That just occurred to me and I said it."

Relatives and neighbors told the police that Johnston had lavished every possible attention and care on both his wife and baby, having bought the baby a bonnet a few days ago for which he paid $25, and other things in proportion.

Mrs. Johnston learned as soon as she reached home the manner of the baby's death, her husband admitted, but refused to implicate him and verified his first story in order to protect him. He is 36 years old.

FLYER FOUND

Edgar Todd, Pueblo, Colo., entry in national air derby, who was forced down near McKeesport, Pa., Tuesday, and for whom search had been made in vain since then, discovered in Oak Park, where he was visiting friends.

GEHLBACH LEADS DERBY PACK INTO LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27.—(AP)—Lee Gehlbach, Little Rock, Ark., flyer, maintained his lead in the Detroit-Los Angeles all American air Derby today when he arrived from Douglas, Ariz., at 12:18 p. m. in flying time of 4:16:47. He was followed ten minutes later by J. R. Wedell.

Stanley Stanton, Blackwell, Okla., delayed in taking off at Douglas, made fairly good time of a little more than seven hours. His plane developed engine trouble, necessitating a return to Douglas five minutes after he left the ground, and he started with an hour and eight minutes handicap.

The arrival at Los Angeles completed the first half of a 7,000 mile reliability test for ships with 100 horsepower engines. A crowd of about 10,000 was on hand to greet the Derbyists as they brought their planes to earth.

Vie for $50,000 in Prizes.

The flyers will remain here until Wednesday, then will start the return trip via Omaha, Lincoln, Neb., Chicago and Detroit. Prizes will total almost $50,000.

Following is the order in which the flyers arrived:

Lee Gehlbach, Little Rock, 4:16:47.
J. R. Wedell, New Orleans, 4:27:06.
Herman Hamer, La Salle, Ill., 4:40:36.
Lowell Bayless, Cleveland, 4:52:23.
Joe Mehan, Ironton, Ohio, 5:02:22.
Chas. Meyers, Cleveland, 5:03:43.
Harry Ogden, Inglewood, Cal., 5:03:53.
Billy Cahill, Cleveland, 5:459:30.
Cecil Coffrin, Brooklyn, 6:37:01.
Larry Brown, Los Angeles, 6:39:41.
*Stanley Stanton, Blackwell, Okla., 7:06:09.
*H. W. Holaday, Los Angeles, 7:16:40.

MISSING FLYER FOUND.

Edgar Todd of Pueblo, Colo., a flyer in the national air Derby, forced down in the mountains near McKeesport, Pa., last Tuesday, and from whom no word had been received, was found yesterday in Oak Park. He was visiting at the home of Mrs. Grace Findeisen, 914 North boulevard. She is the widow of Ray E. Findeisen, an aviator with whom Todd had done much flying.

Todd, informed that searching parties were looking for his supposedly wrecked plane in the mountains, explained that when he was forced down he had found it necessary to make a few minor repairs. Realizing that he had no chance then of winning the Derby, he decided to withdraw. He didn't notify the officials because he assumed they knew of his plight, he said. After repairing his plane, he flew Saturday to Akers airport, Elmhurst.

JURY WILL HEAR ETTELSON TODAY ON POLICE LINEUP

Expect His Testimony to End Inquiry.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Expectations yesterday were that the July grand jury will today conclude its investigation into matters called to its attention as a result of the slaying of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter. Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson is to be the first witness and it was understood he would tell the grand jury how Capt. William F. Russell was chosen two years ago to be police commissioner. Another witness slated to be heard is William H. Stuart, political editor of the Chicago Evening American.

The grand jury had been asked to inquire into the appointment of Russell, who was a close friend of the slain reporter. It was also asked to delve into suggestions made by Harry T. Brundidge, a reporter for the St. Louis Star who, as a witness told what he had heard in reference to "racketeering reporters."

Corporation Counsel Ettelson's testimony was awaited as the final chapter of the story of the naming of Russell as police commissioner. Russell, returned to his civil service rank as a police captain following his resignation as commissioner a week after Lingle was killed, told the grand jurors his appointment was first suggested to him by Ald. Bert A. Cronson of the Fourth ward, which was included in the district commanded by Russell as a captain and as a deputy commissioner. Ald. Cronson is a nephew of Ettelson.

Ettelson's conferences with Mayor Thompson and Thompson's advisers, of whom Mr. Stuart has long been one, are expected to be the subject of grand jury questions.

Result Is in Doubt.

Just how the grand jury will apply the information it receives from Mr. Ettelson and Mr. Stuart was not revealed yesterday. In his charge to the grand jurors Chief Justice D. I. Normoyle told them the Lingle murder might require considerable of their attention, but State's Attorney Swanson stated he was not ready to call witnesses before the grand jury for testimony regarding the murder itself.

The Russell appointment and the "racketeering" charges of Brundidge were proclaimed to be be related subjects and therefore properly a matter for the jury's consideration. Inasmuch as no true bills are expected as a result of this hearing and the voting of no bills is not necessary there was a question as to how the grand jurors would make use of the testimony.

Want to Make Report.

There was a report at the Criminal court building that the jurors wanted to make an official report to Chief Justice Normoyle of their findings. Reports of this nature are not ordinarily made, it was explained, and a résumé of the jury's conclusions, therefore, either to Judge Normoyle or State's Attorney Swanson might be in the nature of a letter containing recommendations.

The life of the present inquisitorial body expires this week and it will be discharged Friday or earlier. Should the jurors decide that some expression should come from them the usual procedure would be for them to ask Assistant State's Attorney Edward Spiro, who is in charge of all grand jury presentations, to put their thought into writing.

Prosecutor Spiro said he didn't know whether the grand jury would wish to make a formal declaration of its view of the testimony presented and the conclusions drawn therefrom. He said he didn't believe that any other witnesses would be called after Ettelson and Stuart testify this afternoon, and it would then be up to the jurors to decide what ought to be done.

Mr. Stuart is not to be questioned about the Russell appointment, according to Swanson's assistants. It was understood he desired to be called following other executives of his paper who testified last week.

GANG STAGES TWO ROBBERIES.

Two armed men late Saturday night held up the Way Wet Wash Laundry company at 3216 Armitage avenue and took $129 from three employés. The same men then entered the haberdashery of Christian Ballin at 2662 Milwaukee avenue and forced him to turn over $573.

CHICAGO WILL SHOW FOREIGNERS IT IS NOT AS BLACK AS PAINTED

The picture of Chicago as a city of crime, as portrayed in European newspapers, will be confuted during the annual meeting of the American Bar association, which is to be held here during the week of Aug. 17. British and French lawyers, who are to be guests at the meeting, will be shown the culture and beauty of Chicago, Amos C. Miller, chairman of the arrangements committee, said yesterday.

"We are proud of what we have to show our visitors in the Chicago metropolitan area," Mr. Miller said. "We want our foreign visitors to take the word back to their own countries that here they have found all of those things that contribute to life in its finest aspects. For this reason we have prevailed upon our British and French guests to remain over the time allotted for the meeting.

"After the meeting we will take our foreign guests to the north shore. They will be entertained in north shore homes and at the Ravinia opera. The tour of the city will include centers of learning and the most beautiful aspects of the city as well as its industrial areas."

SEIZE CLEMENTI AS ROBBER; TWO OTHERS SOUGHT

Patsy Clementi, 909 Sholto street, sought with two others as a member of the gang who shot a messenger and robbed him of $16,000 on Friday, was arrested yesterday by Sergt. Cornelius Riley and his detective bureau squad. Clementi was seized with Robert Smetana, 23 years old, 757 Bunker street. The two others sought are Jack Sherman, alias Robert Marner, and Frank Lewis.

Photographs of the three were identified by the wounded robbery victim, Clarence R. Strobeck, 4946 Metropole avenue, a messenger for S. A. Gerard & Co., commission merchants at 5 South Water market. Strobeck was held up in front of the Commerce Trust and Savings bank, 1425 South Racine avenue. He was shot in the leg for his slowness in responding to the bandits' commands to give up his grip containing $1,892 in cash and $14,948 in checks.

Clementi was formerly questioned concerning the murder of Alfred Lingle, Tribune reporter, but was released.

'MA' FERGUSON LEADS IN TEXAS GOVERNOR RACE

Polls 54,000 Votes More than Sterling.

Dallas, Tex., July 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Miriam A. [Ma] Ferguson, former governor, and Ross S. Sterling, wealthy Houston publisher, tonight appeared certain of places in the run-off for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Based on the report of 65 counties complete, the Texas election bureau estimated a vote in yesterday's primary of 780,000. Of that total, 663,284 votes had been unofficially tabulated.

Returns from 241 Counties.

The figures, which represented at least partial returns from 241 of the state's 253 counties, were: Mrs. Ferguson, 194,018; Sterling, 139,501; Clint C. Small, 103,876; Thomas B. Love, 96,427; Jim Young, 63,093; Barry Miller, 42,063; Earle B. Mayfield, 42,709; C. C. Moody, 3,702; Paul Loven, 2,360; Frank Putnam, 2,350, and C. E. Walker, 2,185.

Gov. Dan Moody, who four years ago defeated Mrs. Ferguson for renomination, said he would support "any one who goes into the run-off against the Fergusons."

Mrs. Ferguson entered the lists this year when her husband, James E. [Farmer Jim] Ferguson, also former governor, was denied permission to place his name on the ballot. Permission was denied because of his impeachment while in office.

Calls for Run-Off Primary.

Run-off primaries are held in Texas between the two high candidates for nomination when no candidate has a majority. Democratic nomination generally is considered equivalent to election.

Senator Love, one of the defeated candidates who led the successful Democratic bolt in Texas from Alfred E. Smith in the 1928 presidential race, pledged his support to Sterling.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard, Democrat, a dry, was renominated. Latest returns gave Sheppard 268,933 votes to 130,807 for Robert L. Henry of Houston, a wet, and 30,127 to C. A. Mitchner of Sherwood.

Republicans Poll 10,000 Votes.

Election bureau officials estimated the Republican vote for governor and United States senator at not more than 10,000. In the Republican gubernatorial race, 26 counties, 10 complete, H. E. Erum, Amarillo, led the field with 970 votes.

With the exception of John C. Box, congressman from the second district, all incumbents standing for renomination and having opposition, apparently were successful. Returns from 13 of 14 counties, including three complete, gave Box 23,244 and Martin Dies 27,718.

Henry B. Dielmann of San Antonio was nominated by the Democrats without opposition to oppose Wurzbach.

POSSE IN DETROIT SEIZES 5 MEN AS KILLER SUSPECTS

Detroit, Mich., July 27.—[Special.]—A posse of sixty policemen armed with machine guns and tear gas laid siege to a gangsters' hideout in Grosse Point village early this morning and, after a two hour vigil, arrested five men believed to have been implicated in a dozen recent gang slayings. They seized a formidable stock of munitions. It was necessary to tear the attic to pieces to uncover the arsenal.

The capture of the men is considered by police to be the most important of recent months. The finding of five guns in the hideout, the authorities think, may result in finding the murderers of Gerald E. (Jerry) Buckley, radio announcer, who was killed in the lobby of the La Salle hotel last Wednesday morning.

Bullets from a German Luger revolver and an unidentified .38 caliber pistol were found in Buckley's body, while the handle of a Luger also was found. The barrel was missing. Police are searching the premises in the belief it was hidden there.

Bullets from the other guns were taken to the department laboratories for comparison with bullets found in Buckley's body and those found in half a dozen other gang killings.

WOMEN OF INDIA UNITE IN WAR ON PALM TREE JAGS

Tax on Champagnelike Toddy Suffers.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, July 7.—[By mail.]—India has no Carrie Nation, owing to the gospel of nonviolence preached by the leaders of the great movement in India and therefore has no use for hatchets, but the campaign against alcoholic liquor which is being waged side by side with the Nationalist campaign for dominion status has its Carrie Nations by the hundred thousands. Many of them are in jail for their peaceful picketing and for persuading men and youths not to enter the drink shops.

The war upon liquor has been pretty well eclipsed by the Gandhi campaign and its development into a nontax-paying movement that is now widespread. But it must not be overlooked, since the war against drink is continuing and is hitting hard the revenues of the larger as well as the smaller provinces.

Women Fight Palm Liquor.

Take the toddy shops for instance. Auctions or license to use the juice of the palm—there are three varieties, including the cocoanut—have been so hard hit owing to the picketing that men have been ashamed to bid against the pleading of the women. The organization in charge of this campaign, which includes women of all castes, is known as the Desh Sevika.

In my travels over India I have met the Desh Sevikas in city, town and country. They concentrate not only at the toddy shops and the general drinking establishments but even at the auctions, for it is in the summer that the licenses are issued and the contracts let—during the season of the monsoon with its torrential downpours. These reached a total of 37 inches in June alone. Yet the women turned out in these torrents and literally brought home the bacon that otherwise might be missing from the family table.

Priest Gives Dry Oath.

All over Bombay—and all over India for that matter—the women are on the job. I chanced to halt my taxicab a day or two ago in the mill district at Dharavi where a lot of mill workers were being addressed by the Desh Sevikas. There must have been 50 or 60 in the group that listened to the Sevikas. Within a few minutes the entire group had resolved to give up drink and the women led them to a temple nearby where they took a vow of abstinence before the priest.

But an even more interesting experience was at the office of the revenue collector of Bombay on the same day when more than 200 toddy shop owners, mostly Parsees, came to bid for licenses in the city for the year commencing Aug. 1. News of the auction brought Mrs. Lilavati Munshi, a woman of refinement and distinction, who led a dozen Sevikas to the spot for the purpose of picketing. In other years there had been an auction at a public hall, but this year, owing to the campaign against drink, the excise department had called for tenders.

Drink Revenues Decline.

The toddy shop keepers—and there are 211 in Bombay City alone—had got their own heads together and agreed not to compete with one another. In previous years the government had averaged five annas three pies (about eleven and a half cents) a gallon, but this year the toddy men made identical bids of one and a half annas (three cents). The loss to the city is about 300,000 rupees, or about $108,750.

In the countryside where THE TRIBUNE correspondent drove for several hours through the palm groves the cups hung heavy on the top branches, collecting sap, while in a booth nearby each grove was the dealer's shop, with quart bottles filled with a white liquid that resembled milk. It was toddy—the drink of India until the campaign of the Desh Sevikas got under way. It is still the national drink in the country but not so many are paying the ten or twelve cents a bottle.

Poor Bids Stop Auction.

Toddy comes from the shindi tree as well as the cocoanut tree and especially is this true of the region around Dharwar. The Desh Sevikas were on the job at the auction at the collector's office there. The superintendent of police also was there with a large force of constables. Desh Sevikas urged prospective bidders not to bid. Instead of a hundred or more bidders only a mere handful entered and the collector postponed the auction for a fortnight. And so it is going all over India.

Owing to the campaign against toddy thousands of shindi trees have been cut down in the Belgaum and Dharwar districts alone and 70 per cent of the liquor shops there have closed. More and more the coocanuts are being permitted to ripen for better commercial uses.

At Lahore in the Punjab Rai Sahib Bholaram runs a foreign style bar where one can get cocktails, gin fizzes and fancy drinks. This place has been picketed by women off and on but the police have driven them away. A few days ago another batch of Desh Sevikas camped there and when a police cordon was formed the women began sham mourning with all the wails and gesticulations / incident thereto, beating their breasts and raising their mourning cries loud enough to be heard for blocks. Police persuasions availed nothing and the wailing continued until the time for the legal closing of the shop.

Toddy is about equal in alcoholic content to champagne, but the taste is more like that of cocoanut, which it would be if the fruit had been permitted to grow. A bottle or two of it will afford a fair sized jag according to old timers in India. Toddy is obtained by denying the cocoanut its full growth.

The cocoanut flowers grow on the topmost branches. Monkeylike tree climbers go aloft before the flower has fully matured, cut it off and attach a cup to the end of the stem. Into this cup juice drops. Every morning a man monkey shins up the tree and collects the juice, known as sweet toddy as it is unfermented. In this state it can be commercialized by boiling and is made into what is known as jaggery, a form of soft brown sugar that goes into confectionery.

But if the toddy is allowed to rest unboiled for a few days it ferments, and this fermentation is hastened by the use of a kind of bark available locally. Then it becomes a milky looking cider about the potency of lager beer, say experts, but others assert one can get almost a champagne jag out of it.

The Desh Sevikas have the backing of Brahmin, Buddhist and Mohammedan priests who forbid the use of intoxicating drink to the devout. But while 90 per cent of the Indians belong to one of these religions they are not overly devout, as the number of toddyshops well demonstrates.

ROW OVER RUM THREATENS BOTH PARTIES IN N. Y.

Soft Pedal on Dry Issue Hope of Leaders.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 27.—[Special.]—Conflict over prohibition appears almost certain at the state conventions of both the Republicans and the Democrats this fall despite a burning willingness in both parties to make the fight on other issues.

As the time for these gatherings draws nearer the Republicans vigorously are handpicking as many dry delegates as possible and pointing their shouting toward a "sinful Tammany." At the same time the Democrats, while virtually 100 per cent wet, are soft pedalling the issue and considering a somewhat modified form of the "Al Smith formula."

Sort of Stand by Hoover.

In other words the state Republicans with the wet ranks split two ways are going to have a merry row over whether to insert a wet plank or a sort of "stand by Hoover" substitute, the latter on the theory that Mr. Hoover was elected over a wet candidate and would be embarrassed by a New York repeal plank.

The Democrats have the future to worry over. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who will be a candidate for reelection in the autumn and will have a lot to say about the platform on which he is to run, is opposed to a prohibition repeal plank. Friends of the governor, with the idea that he will become an aspirant in 1932 for the Democratic nomination for President in the back of their minds, have decided that for him to run for governor on a repeal platform would hurt him with party organizations in the south and west.

Nevertheless, when the Republicans meet in Albany on Sept. 25 to nominate a gubernatorial candidate and when the Democrats meet in Syracuse on Sept. 29 for the same purpose there is going to be a lot of sawing before platforms without wet planks can be constructed. Both conventions will have submitted to them a proposal by the Association Against the Prohibition amendment recommending the adoption of a plank calling for the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

Fear Loss of G. O. P Dry Votes.

In New York state a repeal plank in the party's platform would result in the inevitable loss of more than 20,000 dry Republican votes, according to political experts. They base this bit of statistical lore on what happened when the drys ran a candidate against United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., in 1926.

William H. Hill, Hoover leader in this state and said to have the President's ear in patronage matters, is being groomed for the dry leadership at the Republican state convention. Mr. Hill's lieutenants are known to have had several White House conferences and as a result Mr. Hill is said to believe that "New York Republicans should confine their platform strictly to state issues of which prohibition is not one."

Mr. Hill believes that prohibition could be dealt with in the platform by a simple declaration that "the party in this state stands by the Republican national platform adopted at Kansas City two years ago on which Mr. Hoover was elected."

Backed by 71 Delegates.

Mr. Hill will come to the state convention strengthened as an aspirant for the dry leadership by being at the head of a solid bloc of seventy-one dry delegates from southern tier counties who are pledged to make common cause in relation to the prohibition plank. While the Manhattan and Kings Republican organization will send a bloc of 227 wet delegates, it is said that a conviction that a certain line of conduct concerning the prohibition issue might prove pleasing to the chief dispenser of federal patronage is likely to reduce the missionary zeal of the wets.

William J. Maier, chairman of the Republican state committee, has found it necessary of late to spend most of his time upstate handpicking delegates who "will listen to reason."

So there is every reason to believe, political observers agree, that despite the influence of the Association Against the Prohibition amendment and the example of Dwight W. Morrow's wet victory in New Jersey there will be no repeal plank in the platform of either party.

In the matter of gubernatorial nominations upstate dry disapproval already has been placed upon Former Senator Wadsworth and State Senator George R. Fearon, both of whom have come out bluntly for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, with his background of fighting "Tammany corruption," appears to certain of the leaders as the logical candidate.

YOUTH DROWNS IN GRAVEL PIT.

Ionia, Mich., July 27.—[Special.]—Harold Leak, 19, drowned in an abandoned gravel pit today. With eight other boys he was in the water and jumped from a raft. He could not swim.

END NUISANCE BY FIXED SPANS, RANDOLPH IDEA

The ultimate solution of Chicago's open bridge nuisance lies in fixed spans, excluding lake going steamers and the development of the outer harbor, in the opinion of Col. Robert Isham Randolph, engineer and president of the Association of Commerce.

"The fixed bridges would have to provide a clearance of 22 feet, as against the present 16½," said Col. Randolph yesterday. "With this provision, barges could duck under the bridges and hundreds of motorists and pedestrians would not have to wait for the passage of a load of sand.

"The higher spans, however, would necessitate the construction of longer approaches from the streets, and this might occasion some damage to abutting property," Col. Randolph said.

"With the development of the outer harbor, according to Col. Randolph, there will be no necessity for lake going vessels to come into the river. Cargoes destined for elevators and warehouses in the city will be carried on barges, he predicted.

SEEK THIEF WHO ESCAPED AS TWO PALS WERE SLAIN

An unidentified man, sole survivor of a trio of bandits who robbed Tony's place, a roadhouse on Ridge road, a quarter of a mile west of Torrence avenue, in Thornton township, early yesterday, was being sought yesterday by police. Two other members of the trio were shot to death by Tony Sodo, proprietor of the roadhouse, as they fled the place.

The two were shot down with a double barreled shotgun as they fled through the rear door. They were: Milton Simon, 20 years old, 11548 South State street, and Alex Zill, alias Zilenski, 25 years old, a paroled convict, who three years ago lived at 10731 Wabash avenue. Simon's body was identified by his brothers. Zill was identified through finger prints.

Sodo stepped to a shed and got his shotgun when the three robbers entered. He waited outside while the thieves robbed patrons of money and jewelry. He did not have time to reload before the third bandit disappeared.

A RHODE ISLANDER from Missouri is hard to convince

OF all the people in the world, an efficiency engineer is perhaps the most "Missouri" minded. For every dollar's worth of expenditure he has to be shown, clearly and convincingly, a full dollar's worth of result.

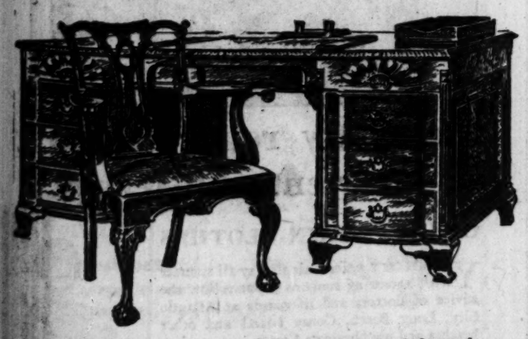
And so, we were especially pleased when a famous Rhode Island efficiency engineer came to us about a year ago and said: "I need furniture that will express dependability and sound thinking."

We thought it appropriate to choose as the model for his desk, a desk made more than one hundred years ago by John Goddard of Rhode Island. Goddard's furniture has this characteristic—even to the untrained eye it carries the unmistakable implication of thoughtfulness, skill, staunchness of character.

We selected also an authentic Danersk reproduction of the most famous of Philadelphia chairs, made by James Gillingham in 1780.

Equally appropriate seemed a comfortable armchair after a sturdy original from Nova Scotia, with all the straightforward honesty of American Chippendale.

Finally, to house the engineer's reference books, a fine pedigreed secretary desk, whose ancestry dates back to the courageous days of the thirteen states.



The enthusiastic comments which we received from the Rhode Island engineer indicate that Danersk furniture has succeeded again in endowing an office with appropriate personality. The furniture of your office, too, can express the vigor and high ideals of your business methods. At our showrooms in the Decorative Arts Building we have arranged room after room in such complete fashion that you may see exactly how any piece would look in your own home. We should be glad to consult with you and to make a careful study of your particular requirements.

Political Unrest Carries Bad Portents.

for this purpose there undoubtedly would be a protest from the anti-Hoover elements, for the national committee and national chairman are supposed to be neutral in the nomination contest.

Business Depression Hurts G. O. P.

The inclination to blame the party in power for the business depression is a familiar phenomenon. To cite an instance no farther back than 1922 the depression that year cost the Republicans many seats in the congressional election though if any one thing was responsible for conditions it was the deflation of agriculture in the last months of the Wilson administration.

This time there is a definite effort being made to fix the responsibility on Mr. Hoover or on him and his predecessor combined. One eminent critic in a leading magazine charges that Mr. Hoover could have prevented the stock crash had he acted on the recommendations of the New York federal reserve bank in the summer of 1929. Another, no less eminent, attributes to the public statements of Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover the promotion of the stock gambling orgy and encouragement of overconfidence generally. He depicts Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon as the man who inspired it all and Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover as his tools.

Morrow Support Grows.

There is a good deal of evidence that eastern business interests, which were opposed to the nomination of Mr. Hoover in 1928, are taking an unusual interest in the prospects of Mr. Morrow as an opponent of the President for renomination in 1932. Some of the Republican leaders most closely identified with Wall street are quietly scouting for Morrow, who was a partner of J. P. Morgan before entering public life. These leaders are reported to have agents in the south prospecting for Morrow delegates already.

Some friends of Mr. Morrow insist that if he seeks the presidency it will be in 1936, not 1932. Others think that if the business depression continues he will be forced into the race in 1932 by the business interests and the eastern wets. It is noted as significant that he has never issued a renunciation of 1932 ambitions which his managers in the senatorial primary contest announced would be forthcoming immediately afterward.

If Morrow should become a candidate his chief liability would be his close relationship to eastern plutocracy. For that reason some of the wet leaders think a stronger champion of their cause could be chosen. In this connection one hears former Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York frequently mentioned.

Quiz Gary Captive About Deaths of Two Girls

Clifford Lewis, 36 years old, a Negro, was being questioned by Gary police last night concerning the fatal attacks on Josephine Odoridzi, 21 years old of Gary and Mary Gigi, 18 years old of Milwaukee in Gary a year ago. Lewis had been arrested in Richmond, Ind., on request of the Detroit police who wanted to examine him concerning the ax murder of a family of five in Detroit on July 23, 1929.

REPORT REVEALS RECORD NUMBER AT LIQUOR CURE

Keeley Institute Treats 442 in Six Months.

More drunkards were treated in the first six months of the year at the Keeley institute at Dwight, Ill., than in any corresponding period since 1907. This was disclosed yesterday in the semi-annual report of Martin Nelson, secretary of the institute, which is a sanitarium for the cure of liquor and drug habits.

The number of patients treated showed a steady increase each month over the corresponding month of last year. The report states that 442 liquor addicts were cared for in the first six months of 1930, as compared with 383 in 1929, which was also a record breaking period. The increase in 1930 was 17 per cent. The panic of 1907 brought 470 drinkers to the institute in the first six months of that year.

Business executives and professional men lead the roster of post-Volstead drinkers seeking the cure, according to the report. Among this year's patients, white collar workers predominate with a total of 208. Those engaged in manual occupations number 129. Eleven women, listed as housewives, 19 unemployed, and 76 not classified complete the total.

Merchants lead the white collar class with a total of 55. Salesmen follow, with 40; clerks, 17; lawyers, 15; physicians, 12; real estate agents, 12; insurance agents, 9, and manufacturers, 9. There were 8 managers, 7 brokers, 6 druggists, 5 newspaper men, 5 advertising men, and 5 bookkeepers.

Patients listed as manual workers include 29 farmers, 14 railroad men, 9 stockmen, 9 engineers, and 8 contractors.

The new building program inaugurated by the institute to accommodate the influx of drinkers since prohibition is nearing completion.

SUNBURN

Instantly relieves pain —prevents blistering

CANNOT STAIN CLOTHES

YOU NEEDN'T suffer a single day all summer with agonizing sunburn if you follow the advice of doctors and lifeguards at Atlantic City, Long Beach, Coney Island and other beaches and use Noxzema Cream.

Dr. Frederick Butler, Director of Lifeguards at Long Beach, shown above applying Noxzema on a sunburn patient says—"It has been proven by the lifeguards under my jurisdiction to be the most effective of all sunburn treatments we have used."

Noxzema relieves the smart and pain the moment you put it on and if applied soon enough prevents painful blistering.

Get a jar at any drug or department store.

Because Noxzema Cream is greaseless and stainless, you can spread it on freely even under light summer clothes without fear of soiling or staining them. Put it on before going to business—it soothes while you work.

NEW POLICY FOR ENFORCEMENT IS SIGNED BY DRYS

Repudiates Attacks on Personal Rights.

New York, July 27.—[Special.]—A new declaration of policy, signed by practically all the leaders of dry organizations in the United States and repudiating all enforcement policies that do not regard and safeguard every personal right guaranteed by the constitution, was made public today from the offices of the Christian Herald here.

The declaration stresses the program of the prohibitionists as "a united campaign of education," and the signers express themselves as confident that prohibition in the United States is winning.

Those Who Signed.

The list of those signing the declaration includes F. Scott McBride, general secretary of the Anti-Saloon league; Ella A. Boole, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; Fred B. Smith, executive secretary of the committee of one thousand for law enforcement and Dr. Daniel A. Poling, one of the outstanding leaders of the drys. The signers, in pledging themselves "to a campaign of education, give whole hearted support to our national, state, and local governments."

The declaration states it is the paramount purpose of the eighteenth amendment to destroy traffic in intoxicating beverages, and that the enemies of prohibition try to make this appear as offensive sumptuary legislation.

The Declaration.

The declaration says:

"They insist that the enforcement of the eighteenth amendment involves the invasion of homes and the infringement of personal rights in violation of the spirit of the fourth amendment to the constitution.

"This is not true, and we specifically repudiate all enforcement policies that do not regard and safeguard every personal right guaranteed by the constitution. The primary and continuous attack is on the traffic of intoxicating liquors.

"Personal habits and the conduct of the home life is in the field of private morals. These should not be touched by the hand of the law unless they cross their boundaries and then only by due process of law. We shall continue to seek to influence both individuals and the home through moral and religious instruction and by educational programs and processes."

Carry on Political Activity.

The declaration also says that dry leaders will continue to support individual candidates for office who are in favor of the eighteenth amendment, who are opposed to its repeal and who are committed to the enforcement of the law, irrespective of their party affiliation. Appeal is made for commitment of all political parties to the maintenance of the eighteenth amendment and to the observance and enforcement of its supporting legislation.

In calling on the federal and state officials to enforce prohibition laws the dry leaders say "It is likewise our conviction that the chief responsibility for inhibiting local petty manufacture and local distribution should be accepted by state, county, and municipal governments. Failure or refusal of state governments to accept their enforcement responsibility or their withdrawal from such responsibility is a subtle thrust at their own sovereignty as well as a direct blow at the constitution of the United States."

10,000 VETERANS IN ILLINOIS WILL GAIN BY NEW LAW

Many Disabled Neglect to File for Aid.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 27.—[Special.]—Nearly ten thousand Illinois veterans of the world war are entitled to monthly disability allowance checks from the government under the new pension legislation which became effective July 3, according to estimates made today from veterans' bureau figures.

The estimates were compiled by Capt. Thomas Kirby, legislative chairman of the Disabled American Veterans, based on the prediction of Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, as to the total number of men affected the first year and those now receiving compensation in the various states. Administrator Hines estimated that 156,000 men altogether will be entitled to allowances the first year and 380,000 in 1935.

Middle West Figures.

Capt. Kirby's tabulation of the number of living veterans, these now receiving compensation, and the probable number affected by the new law, for the Chicago area states follows:

State.	Veterans.	Now compensated.	Aff'ct'd by new law.
Illinois	310,313	15,216	9,700
Indiana	117,571	8,527	3,300
Iowa	98,876	3,961	3,100
Michigan	102,415	8,045	5,000
Wisconsin	108,911	5,751	3,400

How to reach the thousands of veterans entitled to allowances under the new law and inform them how to take advantage of it is a problem that just now is taxing the efforts of the various ex-service men's organizations as well as the veterans' bureau. Applications are pouring into the regional offices of the bureau, but as yet only a fraction of those eligible have applied. The first checks are expected to be mailed out Aug. 1.

No Official Notification.

Through organization publications, radio speeches, and local posts and chapters the veterans' groups are trying to reach every possible applicant, but there is no way officially to notify them.

"We know there are thousands of man, especially in the smaller towns and rural districts, who are not aware of their rights," said Capt. Kirby. "Others who have read of the new law in the papers think the payments will come to them automatically and are sitting back waiting for their checks.

It is necessary for every beneficiary of the new law to fill out an application and send it in to the nearest regional officer of the veterans' bureau.

SEAWAY SEEN AT STAKE IN CANADA ELECTION TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 27.—Canadian overtures to the United States for the construction of the St. Lawrence seaway, and probable Canadian trade advances to the United States depend upon the result of tomorrow's dominion election, in which the Conservative opposition party under Richard E. Bennett is trying to oust from power the Liberal party under Premier Mackenzie King, which has ruled Canada for eight years.

On the eve of the election Premier King announced the intention of his government, if returned to power today, to promote the seaways as one of the first items of business. Charles Dunning, finance minister, has heralded the Liberal party's intentions of seeking a trade truce with America. From the Conservative party, if returned to power today, is to be expected attempted promotion of an "All-Canadian" seaway, and still higher tariffs against the United States.

Inasmuch as the Conservative party has to register a net gain of 34 seats in the commons to gain a governmental mapority, betting favors the return of the Mackenzie King Liberal government.

Police Chief and 3 Fascists Hurt in German Red Riot

CHEMNITZ, Saxony, Germany, July 27.—(AP)—Three Fascists and the police commissioner of Chemnitz were injured today in a fight between Fascists and communists. Communists fired a volley of revolver shots through the windows of a hall where Fascists were meeting, while others burst through the doors. Chairs and beer steins were freely used.

Arrest 100 Berlin Reds.

BERLIN, July 27.—(AP)—One hundred communists were arrested today during fighting in various parts of the city with Fascists and police. In the suburbs a number of Fascists also were arrested. One policeman was stabbed.

TARDIEU FLAYS SOCIALISM AND LAVISH DEPUTIES

Says France Cannot Bear Profligate Budgets.

NANCY, France, July 27.—(AP)—Present day Socialism and the profligacy of parliaments were severely handled here today by Premier Tardieu before an audience of manufacturers and workmen.

Observers believed his speech, evidently intended to place before the people the government's point of view of recent conflicts with important groups in the chamber of deputies, will have loud echoes through France. The head of the government started out by declaring France could not support an annual increase in its budget of something like five billion francs [around $200,000,000].

Compares Pre-War Budget.

"Our pre-war budget was five billion francs," said the premier. "This year it is 52 billion, and if we add the sinking fund and all local budgets the total asked from the taxpayers is 72 billion.

"Parliaments, which were originally set up to limit the profligacy of the ruling powers, have by evolution become less apt to limit than to increase expenditures."

The premier then made a direct attack on the Socialists, saying: "The policy of prosperity which my government announced at the outset of its career cannot be realized by dreams or by systems."

He went on to say that the dreams were those of Karl Marx and the systems were the present day programs of the Socialist party, which took no account of what had happened since the days of Marx.

Sees Workers Neglected.

M. Tardieu referred to bills passed by parliament at the last session, which will affect future budgets. He told the workers, "You are not sufficiently considered as taxpayers and consumers, which are one and the same thing."

He ended by saying that 51 nations succeeded in founding an international labor bureau, and asked, "Are we incapable in the bosom of our own family of conceiving and realizing the unity of French labor? That is the problem of tomorrow."

Actress Sues Syd Chaplin for Assault and Libel

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 27.—A writ has been served on Syd Chaplin in behalf of Miss Molly Wright, film actress. Damages are claimed for alleged assault, libel and slander. Miss Wright and Mr. Chaplin first worked together in an English film studio twelve months ago.

INTERESTING LETTERS

If you have received a letter from an interesting or little known place send the envelope to The Tribune, stating name of place where it was mailed and some information about the writer of the letter.

Letter received by Wilhelm H. Bock, 5125 West Addison street, Chicago.

"This letter was received from one of the most interesting of German cities—old Heidelberg," Mr. Bock writes. "It was sent by an old German professor. At one time I was his guest during a visit to Heidelberg.

"Longfellow writes that next to the Alhambra of Granada, Heidelberg is the most magnificent ruin of the middle ages. Ruin refers, of course, to the old castle, which was twice devastated by the French.

"Enshrined in the lovely valley of the Neckar, where mountain and plain converge, Heidelberg stands. Its attractions are so numerous and varied that, once having yielded to the spell of the old Palatinate residence, one is compelled to prolong his stay. In natural beauty, Heidelberg excels all other German towns. Its intellectual attractions, its concerts, theaters, and its many lectures and entertainments provide a varied scope for recreation.

"As a university town, Heidelberg enjoys the reputation of having the oldest and best university in Germany.

"In 1689 and 1693, when the French devastated the Palatinate, the town, as well as its famous castle, fell. While the ruins of the castle have survived, the city, with its narrow streets and squares, was completely rebuilt. The university is located in the center of the town. It was founded in 1386. The Thirty Years' war caused it to take on a passive existence, but in 1803 it was revived and since has enjoyed a famous history.

"Several years ago Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurmann aided in collecting $500,000 for the restoration of buildings and other improvements in the university.

"The cafés, confectioners, and boarding houses are famous for their hospitality. The environs of Heidelberg, such as the Molkenkur, Haarlass, Stiftsmuehle, and Auerbach are renowned."

2 U. S. Soldiers Drown in Boat on Panama Lagoon

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FORT SHERMAN, Canal Zone, July 27.—Frederick Wakefield of New York and Harvey A. Martin of Salt Lake City, coast artillery soldiers, were drowned here last evening while rowing on a lagoon outside the fort.

SIR OLIVER LODGE VISIONS U. S. AS WORLD LEADER

New York, July 27.—(AP)—Sir Oliver Lodge, British scientist, speaking today from London over the Columbia broadcasting network on "The Destiny of America," said that "the United States probably hardly yet realizes the part they are to play in human progress."

Mentioning the great wealth of America, its geographic isolation from "the squabbles and jealousies of Europe," and its skill in industry and science as qualities that have developed America into one of the mightiest of nations, he said this country ultimately would take the lead in the world-wide coöperation of peoples.

Sir Oliver pointed out the need of a power to keep international order, and said:

"I believe in due time the police force of the world will be in the hands of America. Such a power can only be in the hands of a people who can afford it, a people who can be trusted not to abuse it, a people who have so much land they cannot be suspected of wishing to grab more, a people with high and noble traditions to which presently they will determine to adhere."

Revived After Tumble Into Lake; Drops Dead in Home

Philip Kuffel, 30 years old, a laundry driver of 3500 Diversey parkway, was fishing from the government pier last evening when, attempting to untangle his snarled line, he slipped into the lake and sank. Within ten minutes a central coast guard crew brought him up and, after half an hour's application of artificial respiration, revived him. He was examined at the Passavant Memorial hospital and sent home, where at midnight he suddenly collapsed and died. Police believe he had struck his head on a stone when he fell and that a blood clot formed.

BRITISHER WINS 4,650 MILE AIR RACE OF EUROPE

BERLIN, July 27.—(AP)—Pilot Broad of England landed at Tempelhof flying field at 4:33 p. m. today, being the first among 60 entrants to complete a 4,650 mile round Europe flight which started a week ago. The route of the fliers covered Germany, France, England, Spain, Switzerland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, and then return to Tempelhof flying field.

He was followed a few seconds later by Pilot Butler of Capetown, South Africa, who, however, is considered barred from the competition, since he had to renew his propeller after his plane made a nose dive at Pznan yesterday. According to the flight regulations a spare propeller can be installed only if it was shipped in the plane at the commencement of the trip. Mr. Butler has filed a protest.

The next arrivals were Morzik of Germany and Thorn of England, all completing the circuit five days before the final date. The contest was marred by only one fatal accident, when a German mechanic was killed in England.

200 Flee Homes as Blazing Gas Well Perils Texas Town

Refugio, Tex., July 27.—(AP)—Nearly 200 persons had deserted their homes tonight, and derricks and buildings were being moved back from the Houston Oil company's No. 1 Strauch, wild gasser here, which caught fire at 11:30 p. m. Saturday, and tonight had been shooting a pillar of flames 75 feet into the air for more than 24 hours.

Lightning Kills Farmer, Injures Eight on a Porch

Brule, Wis., July 27.—(AP)—Earl Wilson, 27, farmer, living near here, was killed and eight others injured when a bolt of lightning struck a porch, on which they were sitting.

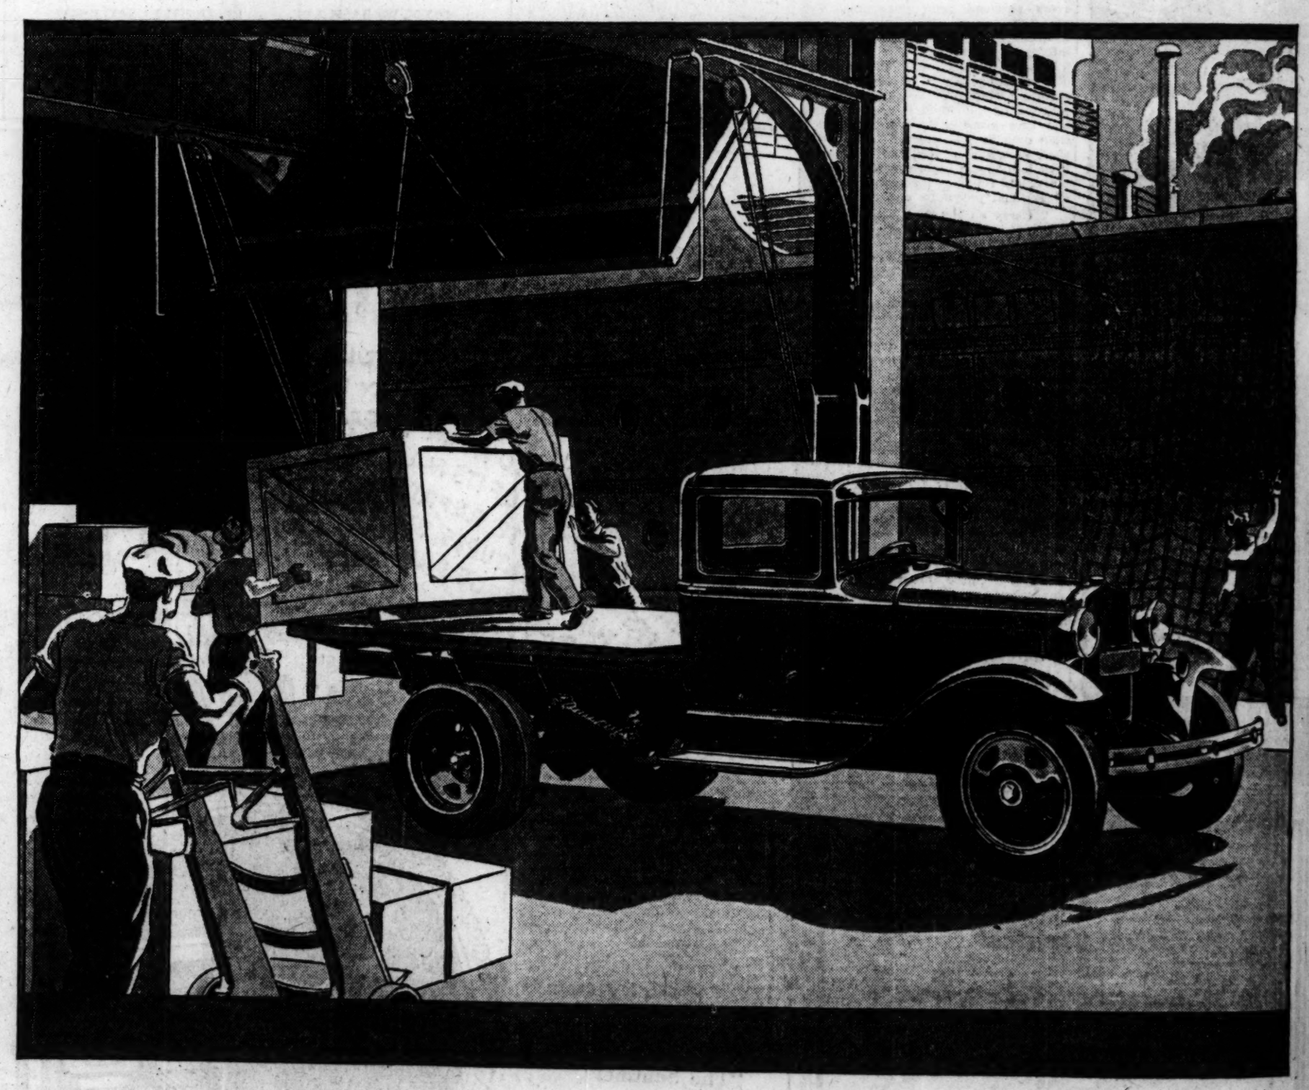
The Ford Truck is a faithful worker



THE Ford 1½-ton truck plays an important part in business. Wherever there are goods of any kind to be hauled, you are likely to see these trucks at work. Notice the ease with which they hasten their loads along—whether among the drays at a seaport, abreast of the leaders in down-town traffic, or where grades are steep and roads are rutted. The Ford is a strong and capable truck . . . a willing, tireless worker.

Rugged parts of simple design; large mechanical brakes, internal-expanding and fully enclosed on all four wheels; the use of 40 different kinds of steel, of fine steel forgings, and of more than 20 ball and roller bearings, all provide strength, reliability and long life, and add definitely to safety and economy in the Ford truck.

New chassis features of the truck increase its ability to work hard and long, and contribute greatly to its value. For example, the new rear axle has a spiral bevel gear of special design, with straddle-mounted pinion. Axle shafts are heavier than formerly, and because of the three-quarter floating construction, they serve only to turn the wheels, without carrying any of the weight of the truck or load.

Additional features are the 4-speed transmission; the provision for power take-off mounting; the heavier front axle and spring; the option of two rear-axle gear-ratios; the dual rear wheels available at small additional cost; and the 157-inch wheelbase offered for carrying unusually bulky loads. Standard stake, platform, and panel bodies are mounted on the chassis with 131½-inch wheelbase.

Bodies of the Ford truck are strong, of attractive appearance, and have ample loading-space. With the stake and platform bodies, either an open or enclosed cab can be supplied. Go to your Ford dealer, and let him help you decide what body-type and equipment are best suited to your purposes.

The HOUSEHOLD CASH LOAN PLAN and how it enables families to get $100 to $300

Here is a Cash Loan Plan that makes $100 to $300 available to husbands and wives on a strictly confidential basis. No other signatures are required.

Think of this: A Loan Plan that makes it unnecessary for you to appeal to friends for money or endorsements, yet does not require you to put up stocks, bonds, or real estate for security.

There are no fines, fees, or deductions under this Plan. No inquiries are made among friends, relatives, or of your employer. You get the entire amount of the money you borrow and you may take as long as twenty months to repay. Charge is made only for the actual time you keep the money, and our rate is nearly one-third lower than the lawful rate.

This, briefly, is the Household Plan. It is fifty-two years old. And judged by the fact that Household is today one of the largest companies doing business under the Small Loan Law, it is a favorite family loan plan.

When emergencies arise, come, write, or phone to the nearest Household office. Tell the Manager there that you need money to pay past due bills, for a sudden operation, for necessary repairs on your home, or for any other good reason, as the case may be. You'll find him ready and willing to help you with a loan of $100 to $300. If you cannot call to see him, he'll send a representative to your home.

You will find Household Managers to be friendly, courteous advisers in all home financial problems. The experience gained in rendering family financial service for the past fifty-two years is back of these men. They will be glad to give you the benefit of this accumulated experience as well as their own training in arranging a budget plan to suit your needs.

CORN SUGAR.

The secretary of agriculture has been hearing arguments for and against a change in the food and drug regulations to permit the use of corn sugar in canned goods without stating the fact on the label.

Perhaps the question is a difficult one to decide, but we cannot see where the difficulty lies. Corn sugar is as healthful as cane sugar. No one has dared suggest that it is not. It is not as if the use of corn sugar in any way disguised or concealed any taint in the food in which it is used. In this respect corn sugar does no more and no less than cane sugar.

The arguments of the cane sugar advocates are amusing in their naïveté. They say that the amount of corn sugar which might be used in preserves is so small that the increased demand for corn would not help the corn belt farmers materially. If it is, then, so negligible an item, Mr. Hyde might well inquire, why make so much fuss about it? If it is unimportant to the corn growers it can be hardly of much consequence to the cane and beet growers either.

Mr. Hyde, as secretary of agriculture, can hardly overlook the fact that any corn sugar used in this country is a product of the American farm. An overwhelming proportion of our other sugar comes from abroad, where, too, the preliminary processes of manufacture take place. On the contrary, all the processes of corn sugar manufacture take place in this country.

Only a relatively small part of the corn crop moves to market. The rest of it stays on the farm to be used as feed for cattle, hogs, and other stock. This fact is cited by the makers of foreign sugar as evidence that the increase in industrial demand for corn could have little influence on its price. On the contrary, if a small part of the corn crop has an undue influence in price determination it is probable that any increase in industrial demand such as would result from liberalizing the use of corn sugar would be felt at once in increased farm prosperity.

Certainly the American farmer and the American public have nothing to lose and perhaps much to gain by modifying the present regulations. The farmer should get a better price for his corn, and the consumer as good food at less cost. There can be no better reasons for modifying the regulations.

SOCIALLY REGISTERING.

Mrs. Tunney put her husband in the Social Register as an appendage when she, as Polly Lauder, married him. The subsequent years have told, however, and now Mr. Tunney has pulled Mrs. Tunney out. A real aristocracy would have made a great deal of the boxer. He is the best man. William the Conqueror would have made him an earl. William probably would not even have been put to the trouble. Tunney would have made himself one.

A curious investigator has found that Admiral Byrd is omitted, the Byrds needing the Social Register about as much as George Washington needs a discoverer. Charleston, S. C., is one of thirteen cities which have withdrawn from subscription to the register. The Rutledges, Laurens, Pinckneys, etc., might thumb its pages and say, "Who are all these people?" knowing that none of them could qualify for the St. Cecelia society, if that admirable organization still continues to contain and reveal the perfection of the human race.

With this exception and possibly a few others, American aristocracy remains a floundering and uncertain thing, withering in the bud as soon as it has made its root growth and produced a stem. The forefathers did for it when they abolished titles of nobility and even these titles would have required a king. It was hopeless from the beginning, but the superior people must be given credit for a persistent try. They do their best to get away from the average man and roll along with a rainbow 'round their shoulders and crown jewels in their hair.

THE MAN IN THE GREEN HAT.

It seems that fate and Volstead are about to give the Man in the Green Hat a period in jail to reflect upon the oddities of life in the great republic. He appeared once too often on the steps of the congressional buildings with pints for delivery therein. It is possible, of course, that wanton clerks and sportive pages, janitors with an urge for a bit of pink in the sky or flower flecked fields were the patrons of this now unfortunate man, but reason indicates that it would not have been worth his while to tote his merchandise to such a trade.

It is too open to suspicion that the Man in the Green Hat was purveyor to the Conscript Fathers and the members of what is sometimes appropriately called the lower house. The men who made the laws attracted to their offices the man who helped them break them. In these transactions his seems to be the part of greater virtue and innocence, although the vagaries of the law put all the onus on him. If he goes to jail the congressmen will be put to all the trouble of getting another bootlegger when they return to Washington for another session with the same old appetites.

ADMIRAL MOFFETT AND THE NEW CRUISER TYPE.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett was one of the naval advisers to the American delegation at the London conference, and he was one of the few navy men who said he thought the treaty would satisfy American needs. His point of view was realistic and it had to be conceded some plausibility, that the United States would get more ships with the treaty than without it. It also is to be considered that Admiral Moffett is a navy air man, being chief of the bureau of aeronautics and devoted to the development of the air strength.

It is now revealed in a dispatch by Mr. Henning from Washington that the admiral as adviser in London was successful in making it possible for the United States to build a new type of cruiser which will give a new utility to the tonnage allotted to the six inch gun class. This class of ship has not been regarded favorably by the preponderant American naval opinion. It is a good British type, given effectiveness by the great system of British naval bases. In the American navy it will be converted into an airplane carrying cruiser, mounting six to nine guns and carrying at least twenty airplanes. Such a type has been designed, and other governments already have word of it.

Admiral Moffett in London had in mind the object of increasing the plane carrying tonnage of the navy. He endeavored to obtain an increase in the limit of 135,000 tons fixed by the Washington treaty, and although he failed in that he succeeded in avoiding a reduction. His next objective was permission to install landing decks on battle cruisers and cruisers, and the negotiators finally agreed that twenty-five per cent of the cruiser tonnage might be so equipped.

Under the treaty the United States has permission to build eight six inch gun cruisers for which the naval experts had little need if they were to be of the existing type. The Moffett design may change the whole aspect of the question for the American navy and give an entirely new value to this otherwise objectionable section of the treaty.

Six inch gun cruisers which can release airplanes may take a new position in the American naval line of defense. Admiral Moffett went to London with his mind fixed upon certain advantages he would obtain, if possible, for the American navy. He is an enthusiast for the air, but is for a balanced naval program. It appears that his adroit handling of the situation so far as he could affect its consequences has given the United States navy some advantages which may be stood off against the defects of the treaty. Admiral Moffett has proved himself an admirable negotiator and adviser. He seems to have saved for his country a degree of naval power that the President and the senate sought to give away.

HOUSEBOATS AND FLOATING RESTAURANTS.

Reports in the Chicago newspapers of ouster proceedings against individuals living in houseboats on the north branch have caused some speculation among our readers of the legal status of the two fish and chop floating restaurants between Clark and Wells streets. The houseboats on the north branch are much smaller than the floating restaurants and cannot be as much of an obstruction to navigation as the latter. The restaurants are on the main channel, which is used by more traffic than the north branch. Are they left unmolested because they have legal right to be there, while the houseboats have none, or because they have a pull, as the houseboat dwellers have not? If the restaurants have a legal status, what is the theory of it? The river is supposed to be a thoroughfare in which any obstruction must strictly justify itself. A wharf is supposed to be a place where cargoes or passengers are discharged or taken on and not a permanent parking place for floating edifices. Is a revenue derived from the use of the river and water front appropriated by these good sized craft? If so, does it go to the national treasury, the city, or private property owners, and is it compatible with those interests of navigation which are so jealously guarded in the case of bridge hours? All of these questions seem to us interesting and are given special emphasis by the proceedings against the houseboats.

Editorial of the Day

THE GOOD OLD SUMMERTIME.

[Baltimore Sun.]

There are so many points in favor of excessively hot weather that it seems a little unreasonable for unthinking humanity to complain of a few days' discomfort. The simplest analysis will show that most of the reputed disadvantages are really prime boons to humanity, for which we really should be devoutly grateful to Mr. Weeks and his associates in the weather manufacturing industry.

Too hot to do anything? Certainly, and hallelujah! It is too hot to be taken to the theater, or to your aunt's for dinner, or to the midday luncheon where So-and-So, that dreadful ass, is to make a speech.

Family out of town? Certainly, and so is the dentist who has been laying for you for weeks. And so are the bores who lacerate your spirit as much as the dentist does your nerves. And so is the regular preacher, so that you don't feel you really have to go to church.

Why, with the family out of town and callers discouraged by your shuttered windows you can pace your silent rooms in deshabille or in nothing whatever, provided the police don't object. No one misplaces your books and papers or "picks up" your room. You can wallow and splash in the cool tub without inconveniencing any one. You can even sing as you do it, and as loud as you please. And [being a humbug] you can smirk delightedly over pitying letters from the family and beam over that sweetest of morsels, the praise you don't deserve.

Gentle spring's ethereal mildness? Autumn's brilliance? Winter's gayety? Bah! Give us summer and make it hot! Still the vagrant breeze! Let the mercury soar! Let the sun blaze! Especially as we can't do much to stop it.

LOGIC

A grammar school student was set a question in an examination paper, "If twenty men reap a field in eight hours, how long will it take fifteen men to reap the same field?" The student thought long and carefully before writing the answer, and when he handed in his paper this is what the examiner read: "The field, having been reaped by the twenty men, could not be reaped by the fifteen!"—Exchange.

SWELLING OF ANKLES.

DURING the hot weather we get a great many letters asking about swelling of the ankles. Many write that they have had the heart examined and know that organic heart disease is not the cause and also that examination has shown that Bright's disease is not responsible. Some even say they have no cirrhosis of the liver and examination of the blood excludes pernicious anemia. All of these organic diseases—for even pernicious anemia is such—cause swelling of the ankles. In addition, it is caused by varicose veins and obstructions to the return of blood from the legs by pelvic pressure and by the wearing of tight garments and round garters.

Swelling of the ankles results from an excess of fluid in the tissues. It accumulates in the skin of the lower legs because that part of the body is near the base of the column and is not encased in a stiff garment. If a man hangs head downward his ankles do not swell but his face does. If he goes barefoot his feet as well as his ankles swell. The fluid tends to accumulate wherever the tissues are loose. It is for this reason puffs form under the eyes.

In swollen ankles not due to organic disease the cause is slight change in the chemical reaction and in the mineral content of the blood and of the tissues just below the skin. As a result of changes in these tissues more than the normal amount of fluid oozes from the blood into the subcutaneous tissues. Having reached these loose tissues it settles to the ankles by reason of gravity. It is worse in summer because profuse sweating, excess of blood in the skin, and disturbance of mineral balance all operate to an unusual degree in hot weather.

The symptom is not one of great importance when it does not indicate disease of an important organ. A person who finds his ankles swelling who investigates and learns that he is organically sound can dismiss the swelling as not calling for any treatment. For the average person this is the best policy. If anything is done it should be along the line of reëstablishing the proper mineral balance. In all probability the human body runs low on salt during the hot weather. A considerable amount of salt is lost in profuse sweating and drinking water supplies little. To add a little salt to the drinking water, say 10 grains to the gallon, may help. Perhaps something may be accomplished by changing the diet to change the chemical reaction of the body a shade or two. But until we know more, to do nothing will be just as well.

UNLIKE MOST PEOPLE.

E. B. writes: I was much interested in your talk about drafts in offices, as I have worked in one for the last five years, and have come to the conclusion that you cannot accustom yourself to a draft. In fact, the minute all the windows go up I am miserable and my whole body starts to ache. I try to wear a little heavier underwear and clothes than girls usually do, but this doesn't help. In fact, I can't sit in front of an open window on the hottest day in summer on the street car without getting a headache and my face starting to hurt.

REPLY.

I think in this you are unlike most people.

Do you rely on vaccines to protect you against colds?

TREATMENT FOR ECZEMA.

F. M. H. writes: What is a good diet for eczema? I would like to know what I can and cannot eat.

REPLY.

Eczema is a word that is used to designate a group of skin diseases. Most of these are due to exposure of the skin to some poison. Some phase of one's work is often responsible. Some cases are due to diet. Food eczema is due to food sensitization. I can not guess what food poisons you—if any.

COME AGAIN, OLD TIMER.

Chicago, July 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am fifty years a TRIBUNE reader, and am now propounding my first inquiry.

I am a widower; my only child is my sole heir, and so designated by my last will. I own a house and lot in Cook county, Illinois; no debts. In the event of my death, she rightfully taking possession, when filing federal income tax schedule would she be required to schedule the acquisition of this property at a certain valuation, or only the amount she received for rent, plus the amount I had received from date of filing my last schedule? E. M. H.

Property received by inheritance is not regarded as income, if that is what you mean to ask. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UP TO JUDGE.

Bensenville, Ill., July 19. — [Legal Friend of the People.] — My wife deserted me in 1927. If I file divorce suit can she claim alimony? There are no children in the family. H. E.

The allowance of alimony is largely discretionary with the divorce judge. The amount will depend largely on her need and on your ability to pay.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

YOUTHFUL CAR OWNER.

Chicago, July 20. — [Legal Friend of the People.]—My daughter hit and injured a pedestrian with her auto. Will her parents be held liable in case of suit? She is not yet 21 years of age. Insurance and sale papers of the car are made out in her name. L. H.

The parents would not be liable on the facts you state. The plaintiff would have to prove that the car was used for family purposes.

TEMPORARY REPAIR MADE.

Chicago, July 26.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a large hole in the pavement in front of 5430 Thomas street, between Pine and Long avenues. This is a dangerous spot for motor cars, as there is no light near it. M. E.

Report is made that temporary repair has been made to the pavement at No. 5430 and permanent repair will be made when our vehicle tax forces are operating in the 37th ward in this vicinity.

BLUE MONDAY!

Great Scott! Monday again! July the 28th! What cheer can we find out of that for this blue Monday?, Turning to Clifford & John's Almanac (a much beloved book we could not live without) we find the happy reminder that on this very day Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex, had his head chopped off right behind his ears on Tower Hill in 1540, and that Mr. Robespierre was also separated just where he wore his collar by the guillotine in 1794. The casual glance at the almanac therefore does not seem to provide much mirth on this particular blue Monday, but Clifford says, "Green peas from the garden. The helianthus brightly meets the white light of day and the fox grass softens the western way to night." Which is much better. Please pass the green peas!

SECRET CABIN.

One must go far
To find the secret place
Where I have built a cabin,
One must face
The little winds
That blow across the dunes—
One must walk 'neath many Shattered moons.

One leaves behind
The fretted city hours;
One comes to peace and quietness,
To forest flowers;
To all the old,
Forgotten melodies
That weave into a fugue
For ecstasies. . . .

One builds a dream,
And hides behind it;
I've built a secret cabin:
Only a dreamer can find it!

He and She Down at the Old Cinder Path.

For three long broiling hours in the sun He had been patiently showing She how to drive an automobile. Then he piled out and stood cooking on the side lines while she made a tour clear around the practice field all by herself. She was smiling sweetly and was eminently pleased with herself as she returned to He. Just before she stopped, which she did in a series of bumps, she foozled the gears so as to produce a sound only like that made in a boiler factory when it is in full operation.

HE: "Wotinell! Tryin' to bust tha car?"

SHE: "Oh, did you hear that noise, too? Wasn't it funny?"

HE: "There's only one funny noise in tha car—that's you. Now, listen: don't stop again unless you lose a couple of wheels and don't keep lookin' at your feet all the time. Do you think yer feet knows where to go, or do you think the auto's on a railroad track? And don't keep going around in them fool circles; cut your corners square. Do you think the curbstones have no corners? Say, if you won't make all the traffic cops climb trees I'm a Chinaman! Oh! Oh! Killed the engine again . . . &%$!%!& take 'er outta speed when you step on the starter! Take 'er outta speed, take 'er outta speed!"

SHE: "But I'm not speeding, I'm just standing still."

THE MINOR ENGLISH BARDS.

These versifiers wrote to please a patron
And trimmed discreetly, hewing to the line,
With fulsome praises for some favorite matron
Or some frail beauty so disposed to pine.

They kept deft fingers on the public wrist,
And one eye on the faces of their kings,
While in poetic tournaments and lists
Were rounded up with courtiers and such things.

For playing safe was an important feature,
Old London Tower had dungeons deep and dark,
And after all a poet's a mere creature
And often has to trim to make his mark.

PROHIBITION

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 28, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—The governor of Arkansas has asked President Johnson to revoke a large number of pardons granted to wealthy rebels of that state on his recommendation. He states that these persons manifested a penitent and loyal spirit until they received executive clemency, since which they have shown as rebellious a disposition as ever and have fostered disloyalty and opposed measures of the government by every means in their power.

SAN FRANCISCO—The whaling bark Milo arrived here from the arctic with crews of several whalers destroyed by the rebel Shenandoah last month. The whalers were mostly burned. The Milo was boarded for the purpose of taking away crews of the destroyed ships. The commander of the Shenandoah was told of Lee's surrender and the collapse of the rebellion, but he didn't believe it. He believed, however, when told of Lincoln's assassination, because, he said, he expected it.

CHICAGO.—The Daily Evening Bee, a new paper, is about to be started in Chicago. Stanley G. Fowler and William Pigott are spoken of as the proprietors, and it will be started under favorable auspices.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 28, 1900.

NEW ORLEANS.—Twelve persons killed, including one woman, and 28 wounded, including a woman and a girl, some so seriously that death is probable, is the casualty list in New Orleans which began with the attempt of Policemen Day and Lamb to arrest two Negroes, Charles and Pierce. Charles was shot to pieces today in a desperate battle lasting several hours in which he killed three persons and mortally wounded four others. Twenty thousand people gathered around the square where Charles was finally put to death. Then a mob which had evaded the militia and citizens' police burned the Lafon schoolhouse, which was devoted exclusively to the education of Negro children.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—Lewis Hampton, a Republican member of the legislature, testified at the trial of Caleb Powers, former secretary of state charged with complicity in the murder of William Goebel, that Powers declared that he would have Goebel assassinated, and that claimant Gov. W. S. Taylor said "somebody's life must be sacrificed." Wharton Golden, one of the conspirators who has confessed and turned state's evidence, repeated his damaging testimony against Powers which he originally gave at the preliminary hearing.

JULY 28, 1914.

VIENNA.—A communication issued by the Austro-Hungarian foreign office sets forth the Austrian view of the Serbian reply to Austria's note demanding the cessation of Pan-Serbian agitation and punishment of those concerned in the assassination at Sarajevo on June 28 of Archduke Francis Ferdinand and his consort. The statement says that "Serbia's note is filled with the spirit of dishonesty," and gives other reasons why Austria is dissatisfied with it.

LONDON.—The Times' St. Petersburg correspondent says that the Russian emperor left on July 27 for England and quotes the ruler as saying: "We have stood this sort of thing for seven and a half years. That is enough." The correspondent continues that "thereupon his majesty authorized orders for partial mobilization, confined to the 14th army corps on the Austrian frontier and at the same time sent an intimation to Germany that orders for mobilization of the Russian army would follow immediately on mobilization by Germany."

BERLIN.—It is understood here that Russia formally informed Germany that no mobilization of the army had been ordered by Russia, although certain precautionary military measures had been taken by that country.

LONDON.—An engagement between Austrians and Serbians is understood to have occurred on the Danube, but no details are available. As far as the censorship permits it is known that Austria has not yet opened military operations.

REGULATIONS FOR SPEEDBOATS.

Chicago, July 24.—On Friday night, July 18, the 64 foot yawl Scarab, owned by George M. Pulver of the Gibson Island Yacht club, was sunk in Lake Michigan off Rogers Park. Mr. Pulver had entered the Scarab in the Mackinac race and was just completing the last few miles of his long, hard cruise from Chesapeake bay. He had been badly delayed by head winds and adverse weather and would have just made Belmont harbor a few hours before midnight of the day before the start of the big race.

There was scarcely any wind and the yacht was proceeding under power at a speed of not more than eight miles per hour when it was struck amidships by a high powered runabout going at high speed. The yawl was heading in a southerly direction toward Belmont harbor and, inasmuch as it was struck on the port side, it is evident that the power boat was headed in a westerly direction toward the shore.

The result of this tragic accident was the death of a young girl and the serious injury to a young man, both of whom were in the motor boat party. The Scarab was sunk and the speedboat wrecked. The speedboat was being driven at the time by a young girl in her teens, and at the inquest the girl driving the boat testified that the Scarab had no running lights. According to the story told to the writer on the night of the accident by Mr. Pulver and Mr. Higgins, a member of his crew, the running lights were not only burning, but in addition to this they flashed an electric flashlight along the white topsides of the yawl and also flashed it directly toward the speedboat to attract their attention.

Mr. Pulver is a yachtsman of twenty-five years' experience, both on the great lakes and the Atlantic seaboard; is thoroughly familiar with the laws governing running lights in navigable waters, and it is hard to believe that he would risk his boat and the lives of his crew by neglecting to have his running lights burning under conditions of this kind.

It is a fair assumption that the young girl was not experienced and did not realize the necessity of being constantly on the alert in order to pick up the lights of other boats under way and judge their courses and speed. Besides this, it was moving at high speed and looking toward the shore with its myriad of lights, which is very confusing even to the most experienced helmsman.

It is not our purpose to try and fix in any way the blame for this tragic occurrence. If any necessity for fixing blame exists it will be up to the proper authorities. On the other hand, all yachtsmen are deeply interested in developing the use of pleasure boats on Lake Michigan and in fostering a program of education which will eliminate, as far as possible, the dangers which surround this sport due to lack of experience and an intelligent knowledge of the game.

We have no desire to damn the high speed motor boats. They have come to stay and there are bound to be more and more of them coming into these waters in the future. They are equipped with powerful motors which develop speeds up to 40 and 50 miles per hour. The hulls have been worked out so that they can turn in a remarkably short radius and bank like an airplane. The operation is very much like an automobile, in that they steer with the same type of wheel, have self-starters and very rapid acceleration. All of these things make them very flexible and easy for the landlubber to handle.

But the average landlubber has very little conception of the rules governing right of way on the water or the dangers to themselves and other boats of driving at high speed, especially at night. Even if there were no other boats to watch out for there is always a certain amount of wreckage in the shape of timbers, pieces of piling, etc., floating about in the waters of Lake Michigan. If a boat going at high speed strikes one of these floating timbers a disastrous wreck is almost bound to result.

The natural conclusion to be drawn is that some regulation of speed, particularly when driving at night, should be set up to control the operation of these craft. Perhaps a law could be enacted limiting these speeds in the harbors and for a certain distance from the shore line. It has been suggested that boats capable of a speed of more than 12 miles per hour should be equipped with a high power searchlight located in a fixed position so as to throw a stream of light for at least 200 yards along the water directly in line with their course. The regulation running lights on high speed motor boats are easily visible to the yachtsman who is proceeding at normal speed with a yacht of some size and which cannot be handled so smartly in close quarters. But the speedboat is able to change course so rapidly that the larger and slower boat is never absolutely certain that he can keep clear. Besides this, vision of the driver of the speedboat is hampered by the heavy bow wave and flying spray and he is bound to be somewhat more confused by the noise of the motor, which makes it difficult for him to hear a warning from others of his party who may be watching more vigilantly for other boats.

A great deal could be accomplished by the manufacturers of speedboats if they would combine in a program of educating the purchasers of their boats on the rules of the road at sea and the dangers which are inherent in operating boats of this type. A very real prejudice against boats of this kind is growing up among yachtsmen generally, not because of the boats themselves but because they are being operated in a way that presents a definite menace to the enjoyment of yachting. The manufacturers should do everything in their power to clear up this prejudice, as much in their own interests as that of the game generally. CLARK WRIGHT.

DRINKING FOUNTAINS AT ARLINGTON PARK.

Chicago, July 19.—In answer to the observation of A. A. Eff regarding the Arlington Classic, in which he said the attendance was 75,000 people with only two dripking fountains to accommodate them: If A. A. Eff will visit Arlington Park again and look around he will find ten single fountains and two stands with four fountains in each stand, a total of eighteen fountains, placed at convenient spots, which would seem to be adequate, since there are more than at any other race track in the country.

OIL WELL FIRE BLAZES A YEAR; DEFIES SCIENCE

Flames Shoot Into Air to Height of Skyscraper.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, July 27.—Defying the puny efforts of renowned engineers from all over the world, the Standard Oil company's well No. 160 at Moreni, Rumania, burns merrily on, fourteen months after its ignition.

Leaping as high as a Chicago skyscraper, the flames light up the countryside for fifty miles around. Nearby huddle engineers trying to devise a way to extinguish the greatest oil well fire in history. They have worked night and day for a year now and yet they have no solution for calming this boiling up of nature.

How Fire Started.

On May 28, 1929, the Romano-Americana Oil company, belonging to the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, penetrated the deep stratum rich in oil and gas, known as the "meotique formation," at Moreni.

The drillers struck oil at 4,767 feet and suddenly the pent up gas belched to the surface, blowing tools, equipment and the unfortunate drillers to smithereens. Sparks from the impact of iron tools on each other ignited the gas and well 160 has belched flame high into the air since that day.

Tunnel to Reach Well.

Strenuous efforts to curb the fire were made immediately. It was impossible for workers to approach within a hundred yards of the well head, even with asbestos armor. So three tunnels were bored to reach the column of the well at a considerable level below the surface in order to divert the flow of gas and oil. Powerful explosions demolished the tunnels and the men working in them.

Thousands of proposals for extinguishing the fire rolled in from engineers in Europe and America. Chemists, physicians, priests and clerks offered suggestions. The main problem, engineers on the spot declared, was not so much to choke the fire but to obtain control over the tremendous pressure of the erupting gas and oil.

Drill Other Wells.

The idea of diverting the gas through tunnels has now been abandoned. A number of wells are being drilled in the vicinity of No. 160 and it is hoped that when these wells reach the meotique stratum they will lead off great quantities of gas and oil, reduce the pressure on the burning well and thus save most of the oil in this deposit.

The daily loss of gas is estimated by geologists at 600,000 cubic meters, or about 5,000 tons of oil daily. Oil men state that the immense loss of pressure in this entire oil field also constitutes a great loss. They explain that the oil is usually pushed up by the gasses in the subterranean strata. Considerable amounts of energy are saved by these gasses, which act as carriers when the oil is pumped up.

Hobos Enjoy It.

Only the hobos and gypsies have enjoyed the fire. To them it has meant free and unlimited heat and the greatest bonfire in gypsy history. Hundreds of them congregated nearby to warm their shins during the winter. Snow and rain is turned to steam there and the earth remains dry. It has been a warm and dry paradise for them.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Ancient Woodman

BOAT BLOWS UP; 10 ARE RECUED; 3 WOMEN HURT

Long Beach, L. I., July 27.—[Special.]—Ten men, women, and children on a cruise in a brand new 40-foot double cabin cruiser were rescued this afternoon in the ocean one mile off Lido beach just before the boat blew up and burned to the water's edge. The boat was owned by George W. Edwards, shipyard owner of Freeport, who had been in command.

Three women in the party were slightly burned by the first explosion, which shook the engine room and set the craft afire. They were Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Glenn Eccles, and Mrs. Frank W. Wilmarth. Mrs. Edwards and Frank Wilmarth Jr. were blown overboard by the explosion, but were kept afloat by the engineer.

Just ahead of the Edwards craft at the time was another boat, commanded by Samuel Summers. He heard the explosion, put back, and rescued all aboard and Mrs. Edwards and Frank Wilmarth Jr., who had been thrown out.

Miss Marble, Who Toured U. S. with Booth, Dies at 87

Five Bandits Bind Seven at Bakery; Blow Open Safe

Five armed bandits early yesterday entered the Mary Ann Baking company, 4550 Palmer street, overpowered seven employés and escaped with $700 after blowing the safe. The robbers entered the bakery through a rear door. The seven employés were bound in the office. One bandit stood guard over them while the others carried the safe into the rear of the building and blew it open. The blast rocked the building.

HIT BY BRICK; DIES.

Robert Perkins, colored, 45 years old, 3560 Rhodes avenue, died yesterday in the county hospital of injuries received when he was hit on the head with a brick by Edward Taylor, colored, 3721 Vincennes avenue, following a quarrel over a pool game. Taylor is being held.

FIRE RAGES ON THOMPSON FARM; LOSS IS $75,000

Fithian, Ill., July 27.—[Special.]—Fire, believed to have been started by a careless cigaret smoker, raged for eight hours today on the 700 acre farm belonging to the estate of the late John R. Thompson, Chicago restaurant man. Two barns, two granaries, five machinery sheds, 29 head of prize short horn cattle and 20 prize hogs were destroyed.

Fanned by a strong southwest wind, the flames spread to the home of the farm manager, P. G. Ross, which was saved from destruction by bucket brigades of farmers from Thian, Ogden, Fairmount and other towns nearby. Mr. Ross estimated the loss at $75,000. The live stock, valued at $500 a head, had been disposed of at a sale last Friday and were awaiting shipment to the purchasers all over the central states.

The Nine Hundred Block

BY KATHARINE HAVILAND TAYLOR

SYNOPSIS.

In the nine hundred block, with its deteriorated dwellings, moved gentle, lovely Theresa Ames and her mother, Mrs. Colt, under the watchful eye of Mrs. Baum, neighborhood gossip. Theresa makes friends with Katie Warner, who lives upstairs, and B. Jones, a reporter; also Johnny Deane, who left a home of wealth to make good for the girl to whom he regrets, since meeting Theresa, he is engaged. He has found employment painting automobiles. Theresa does typing at home to support herself and her mother, who has known better days. Mrs. Colt wants Theresa to marry Billy Treadway, a rich bachelor boy of her own girlhood.

Theresa's father, Arnold Ames, married again after Theresa's mother divorced him to marry Barrington Colt, who recently died. The father now has a belated desire to help his daughter, but his wife threatens to leave him if he does. He arranges with Harold Cole, a friend, to secretly give Theresa work.

Johnny Deane had determined not to tell Theresa of his love for her until he had broken his engagement, but does not keep his vow. Theresa loves him, but her mother doesn't approve of so poor a suitor as Johnny supposedly is.

Johnny sends his laundry to a neighbor, and Mrs. Baum, noting the Paris and London labels, spreads the report that Johnny is a prince in hiding.

INSTALLMENT XIX.

BROKEN BUBBLES.

Humphries had brought him the package on a tray. "I think, Mr. Deane," he said "that you, yourself, will want to open this package. It came from York. Mr. Crane is opening and listing the others, I understand, according to instructions——"

And "somehow," Humphries told the cook and "the rest of them" later, he forgot himself and looked back from the doorway of the big room to see him standing looking down at the package . . . "sort of hungry like, as you might say——" and so obviously happy that it made Humphries "feel real odd and choked like——"

And the cook said that money wasn't everything.

That Saturday night sitting before an open fire [above which hung a Reynolds] J. Z. Deane fingered a piece of the "lounging robe" his son wore in the shop. The boy had been a little off, he decided, in his suggestion about where the piece should go. It did not belong in a memory book, but—in a hope chest. And old Deane's heart put it there.

He fingered the little box too. And his eyes misted looking at a row of X's that his boy had penned on a card for him.

Sons and daughters of the age-weary, be gentle! For so many souls, a little world-rubbed, you are every egg in one frail basket!

Johnny's Saturday evening was rotten. Theresa had gone with her mother to dine with the buzzard who looked as if he should carry nuts in his cheek and leap around, his young in a furry, over-tummy pocket.

Johnny, too restless to sit, wandered the streets. When he stepped out to saw that the Detwiler's party had begun. An arriver on the Detwiler's

"I hadda tell yuh!" Mrs. Baum defended herself.

step rapped out a shrill, tinny "Hear the joke about the bird? Kiss me for a lark!" And somebody said, "Bert Peeling, ain't you just awful!"

There was an opened door, a closed door, and silence.

Dr. Detwiler, tying the ribbon around old Miss Lummis' stiffened and cold pussy, stepped into the night, his burden beneath his arm. He would be back, he said. Miss Lummis was waiting, dry eyed and white. . . . Let those who will, laugh; she had lost a child that day.

"Dr. Detwiler," she said, as he took up his hat—having laid Samson in the small box that was waiting: "Dr. Detwiler" [she choked], "do you think animals can—go to heaven?"

"Sure, I do!" said Dr. Detwiler loudly. Going homeward from gloom, and toward a particularly unshackled form of gayety, he decided that God would forgive him for that lie . . . if it was one. . . . And in that was truth; for God, being God, must be gentle to the lies that ease the roads for others, and harsh to truths that bruise already bruised feet.

Theresa, wishing she were with Johnny; Johnny, wandering in the cold because he could not endure, pent in a small room, his thought of her being courted; old Miss Lummis standing dry eyed by Samson, stroking him, saying, "Kitty—kitty—" bending to see if he heard; the Detwilers merry making. . . . The old world turns! Turns! And hearts break and mend in its crazy sorts of turnings!

Traversing the nine hundred block for the third time Johnny again heard a Christmas hymn; this time it was . . . Adeste Fideles. . . . He stopped suddenly, opposite the inch opened window.

He wanted Theresa close and gently close; to bend his head to hers and cheek pressed to her hair, to say a prayer that would concern them both. "Make it all right," he petitioned and he knew he was saying a prayer.

But—a bleak January stretched before Johnny's still carelessly treading feet. And Mrs. Baum waited to give to Theresa a warning. And Elsie Colt waited to urge. And Collette was growing restless.

As has been remarked—occasionally—"great oaks from little acorns grow," and too often long winter settles in a spirit from the planting of a casual word or warning; which fact the clackers should remember.

Therein, on her way to the Lambert's pharmacy to get aspirin for Mrs. Colt, who was having one of her "nervous headaches," was halted and lured within Mrs. Baum's small house by Mrs. Baum's bony beckoning. And the little house that smelled of old air and salt rising bread and dark [which kept the parlor carpet from fading] received her as a carefree girl who was looking forward to going with Johnny that night to the Capital to see a Janning's film; and it disgorged her, a small, uncertainly groping creature whose heart was made heavy by new questions.

Mrs. Baum had not said much; one does not have to use a sledge hammer to break a bubble which dissolves to a tear. A single word, to the novice, is frequently more than sufficient.

Mrs. Baum had begun by saying, "See you got a new coat."

"Yes." Theresa had had "that much" herself from the result of a liquidised bond and no longer shivered in the streets that were flavored with a spring dash of January.

"Where'd yuh get it?"

"At the Style shop; they had a sale. I like the people who run it; they're so kind——"

"I heard they come from New York. How much did you pay for it?"

"Forty dollars."

"Yes."

"I don't remember," Theresa faltered, who did not want contrast made by an airing of the prices of the two coats. She never could lie glibly.

"Set down," Mrs. Baum ordered. Theresa said she really couldn't stop; that her mother had a headache; and as Theresa acknowledged this the sun's rays thinned a little for her. Her mother had a headache each time she, Theresa, went out for Johnny. As soon as her mother heard of any excursion of Johnny's that involved Theresa, the headache began. And she had said pointedly, again and again, that worry made her headaches, and this made Theresa, each night, on her knees and several times between while standing or sitting aim an SOS toward the ceiling . . . asking in this that her mother could be brought to see how wonderful Johnny was. 'But as yet, Theresa's call for help had obviously, not been picked up.

"You're a real nice girl," said Mrs. Baum suddenly and, it seemed irrelgingly, "and fer this long while I been thinkin' I ought to tell yuh something I know——"

Theresa shrank.

"It's about that man that calls himself Deane," Mrs. Baum went on harshly.

"Please—no!" Theresa begged breathlessly; but no history tells of Cromwell's troops pausing in their destruction of an altar after the first, fine, protecting, iconoclastic blow.

"Dearie," said Mrs. Baum, "he's got a real bad reputation with ladies. He had to leave his home town because of one of 'em!"

"I don't believe it!" Theresa broke out loudly; voice close to strident.

"Well, you'd better!" said Mrs. Baum. She spoke harshly because a long unused, lightly etched path upon her brain had felt the footprints of Theresa's pain. Mrs. Baum was not used to giving anything but 5 cents for foreign missions and 5 cents for the church, through two sides of "the envelope" each Sunday. It is not always as comfortable to give of pity as it is to give of coin.

"I hadda tell yuh!" Mrs. Baum defended herself.

"I will never—listen—to another word about him!" said Theresa, hotly. "Please remember that!"

She stood, a young martyr, being tortured through her faith by one of the many who are ready to light the fagots at the feet of the bound. Mrs. Baum's face stiffened with anger. She had meant well . . . and, ah, if such as mean well, would mean ill for a time, the broad highway on which we all must travel might be smoothed; "meaning well" so often works out in doing ill."

Theresa nodded shortly, as she said a stiff good-by.

IT CERTAINLY IS A COMFORTABLE FEELING TO HAVE A LARGE LEGACY COMING TO YOU. IT GIVES YOU A NEW PERSPECTIVE ON LIFE.
BUT THIS $300,000 THAT IS COMING TO US IN CASH— I DON'T WANT TO FEEL WE HAVE TO BE TOO TIGHT WITH IT.
OF COURSE NOT, PHYLLIS. THE INTEREST ON THAT WILL AMOUNT TO $18,000 A YEAR. WE CAN GO A LONG WAY ON THAT.
YES, BUT DON'T YOU SEE HOW SMALL THAT LOOKS WHEN THE WHOLE LEGACY AMOUNTS TO SIX MILLIONS— AND SHOULD DOUBLE IN VALUE IN TEN YEARS?
PERHAPS, BUT YOU KNOW WHEN YOU ARE USED TO THINKING IN DOLLARS AND HUNDREDS IT IS HARD TO GET USED TO THINKING IN MILLIONS.
NOT AT ALL, WALT. WHAT WOULD BE HARD NOW WOULD BE TO GO BACK TO THINKING IN HUNDREDS AND DOLLARS AGAIN.

'Raffles,' Can You Recall Him, Hero of Talkie

With Ronald Colman as Gentleman Thief.

Crawshaw	John Rogers

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

There's "Welcome" on the mat for Ronald Colman from a world of fans who have been querying sadly as to when if ever would he return to them.

"Raffles," the vehicle which brings him safely into sight again, is based on the short stories of "Raffles the Amateur Cracksman," by E. W. Hornung, which were so popular at one time. So far as Mr. Colman is concerned it proves that his time away hath not staled him nor robbed him of his infinite variety. It offers the perfectly stunning Kay Francis as his feminine vis-á-vis. It provides two rather amusing characterizations by Frederick Kerr and Alison Skipworth as a certain Lord and Lady Melrose. The supporting cast, photography, and sets are creditable. The story, I would say, seems a little slow after the Van Dine thrillers and direction did not impress me as being particularly skillful.

Mr. Byron once wrote:

"Your thief looks
Exactly like the rest, or rather better,
'Tis only at the bar and in the dungeon

And again:

"Though modest, on his unembarrass'd brow Nature had written 'Gentleman.'"

There you have Mr. Raffles—thief, though you'd never guess it, and a gentleman as you couldn't help knowing. In jolly old England he mixes with lords and ladies, becoming engaged to one of the latter, while the police run about in circles looking for him and discovering after each whirl that they've been chasing their own tails after all.

When the picture opens Raffles is completing his last job. He never means to steal again. At the time, however, he doesn't know of the trouble of a friend which necessitates putting off the day of reform. See the picture for what follows. It's plenty, and events which transpire bring upon the scene Detective McKenzie of Scotland Yard all got up to look like William Gillett in "Sherlock Holmes." His deductions don't get him very far, but he stays right on the job and causes Raffles and the fair lady Raffles loves some unhappy moments.

The film has several laughs and a number of rather intriguing situations. AND Mr. Ronald Colman. AND Mr. Ronald Colman, girls!

See you soon.

BREASTED WILL LAY ORIENTAL INSTITUTE CORNER STONE TODAY

The cornerstone of the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago will be laid at 11 o'clock this morning. Prof. James Henry Breasted, noted oriental scholar, will place the stone in the presence of faculty members and administrative officers of the university.

The institute, which serves as headquarters for seven expeditions now in the near east tracing ancient civilizations, is erecting a home at 58th street and University avenue, north of the university chapel. The structure will cost $1,500,000 and is designed to harmonize with the chapel.

The cornerstone will contain publications of each member of the department of oriental languages and literatures, official communications of the institute, university documents, newspapers, coins, and photographs of Dr. Breasted, President Hutchins, and Harold H. Swift, president of the board of trustees.

Italian Consul Lauds Ravinia at Concert; 'Aida' Evening Opera

"You who live in Chicago should be proud of Ravinia, a place where the beauties of nature combine with most refined and delicate beauties of art. I wish to congratulate Mr. Eckstein, an apostle of good taste, an apostle of education, and an artist." That was the keynote of a brief address by Giuseppe Castruccio, consul general of Italy, during the concert at Ravinia yesterday afternoon.

It was Italian day at the north shore park, with a concert program in the afternoon made up of Italian compositions, and extending through the evening with a performance of "Aida." Eric DeLamarter directed the Chicago Symphony orchestra through a symphony by Sgambati as the principal number, surrounded by shorter works from the pens of Cherubini, Corelli, Wolf-Ferrari, and others. John Weicher played a solo group of violin numbers, in both cases to hearty applause. Following the intermission came the Royal Italian march, the national air of Italy, and then the speech of Mr. Castruccio.

"Aida" in the evening had the same important cast as on the earlier performance of the work. Elizabeth Rothberg appeared in the name rôle, Giovanni Martinelli was the Radames, Ina Bourskaya the Amneris. There was other expert singing by Mario Basiola, Virgilio Lazzari, Louis D'Angelo, and Giuseppe Cavadore. Gennaro Papi conducted. E. M.

Yankee Girls Dance Way Into U. S. Navy

Army Captures Some, Too, in Canal Zone.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COLON, Panama, July 27.—Uncle Sam's sailors and soldiers have selected 34 brides from one cabaret here. As far as the records go they have all been happily married. Official records of the U. S. Magistrate's court at Cristobal on the American Canal Zone proved this when this week Miss Martha Cheffins, known to night club patrons in New York as Ramona Cravens, was wedded to Maynard S. Dubois, a sailor with the naval air station at Coco Solo nearby.

Magistrate P. E. Murray, who has done the necessary in making pairs of service men and cabaret singers, told THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that as far as he knew every wedding had been a happy one.

"The army taboos its personnel marrying native girls. The navy, while not saying anything officially about it, does not put the O. K. on a sailor getting spliced with a Panamanian girl. Then the boys visit the cabarets and eventually there is a wedding," he said.

Four years ago the "Atlantic cabaret" in Colon, with American entertainers, began losing its girls. Sailors and soldiers captured the entertainers. At one time there was a triple wedding. That left the cabaret with only one girl dancer. Hurry up cables had to be sent to the States for more.

The procession started in October, 1926, when Mildred Temple of Los Angeles married John Ellers, a sailor with the submarine base, and in the following "fiscal" year no fewer than six girls from this cabaret went to the altar with sailors or soldiers.

During the next year sixteen of the entertainers, many of them contracted for six months, were married and the cabaret owner decided to give them wedding presents.

During canal construction days, when the supply of American women on the canal was very meager, many a score of civilian employés entered wedlock with American cabaret entertainers in the nearby republic, and today there at least three officials of the canal happily wedded to artists of the vaudeville whom they first met at the tables of Panama's night clubs.

Chile "Monte Carlo" Balks at "Talkies" Without Musicians

VINA DEL MAR, Chile, July 27.—The mayor of this city has taken up the cause of local musicians thrown out of employment by the American "talkie" invasion and has issued a decree that every theater must engage a Chilean orchestra to play national music at performances.

Viña del Mar is a fashionable watering place near Valparaiso and the government is anxious to make it the Monte Carlo of South America. The president has a luxurious summer palace on one of the hills overlooking the Pacific ocean; a casino attracts wealthy foreigners, and plans have been laid for a million dollar hotel.

Mayor Manuel Osso typifies the modern Chilean spirit, and his latest action is a result of a deputation by local musicians who have been placed out of work as a result of the "talkies."

He says music tends to intensify the sentiment of nationality. In addition there is the necessity of conserving old and beautiful Chilean folklore and of encouraging composers and artists in their activities.

He says all cultural development of this kind is retarded by the invasion of talking pictures. The foreign films, he adds, are developing themes utterly foreign to national customs, and are accompanied by music meaningless to the "Chilean soul."

No permission therefore will be given for talking pictures unless the impresario engages an orchestra to play at least two pieces of national music, one at the opening and one at the close.

The number and composition of the orchestra will be determined separately for each theater, according to its size and the admission charged.

Infractions of the regulation will be penalized with a fine of fifty pesos and possible cancellation of exhibition permits.

In order to cater to Chilean tastes practically all theaters in Santiago, the capital city, and Valparaiso, have eliminated English language dialogue from the "talkie" films, leaving untouched the songs and other musical features.

La Salle Baptist Church Lays Its Second Corner Stone

The second corner stone of the La Salle Baptist church, 1219 North La Salle street, will be laid at 6 o'clock this evening. The first corner stone of the church, laid in 1886, was removed in the widening of La Salle street. Fifteen feet have been shorn from the west front of the building. The second corner stone will be placed in the new wall. The Rev. Joseph B. Rogers, pastor of the church for sixteen years, will officiate at the ceremonies.

THE STAGE

SEVENTEEN attractions, most of them recent New York hits, are on the program with which the Shubert theaters in Chicago will begin the new playgoing season. The dates of their openings here are still undetermined, except in the case of "Artists and Models," but Labor day will probably account for about half of them and the others will come marching in whenever needed. John J. Garrity, general manager of Shubert interests in Chicago, regards this list as the most promising of years.

Here is the roster:

"Young Sinners": a comedy which deals with modern youth in its most up to date phase.

"Cyrano de Bergerac": Edmond Rostand's romantic drama, revived by Walter Hampden, who hasn't visited Chicago for a number of years.

"Lysistrata": the comedy of feminism by Aristophanes, which has stimulated Broadway's interest in the ancient Greek drama. After "The Green Pastures," it is the most talked of play in Manhattan.

Katharine Cornell: the distinguished actress of exotic heroines in "Dishonored Lady," by Margaret Ayer Barnes and Edward Sheldon. She can't be expected to arrive, however, until late in the fall or close to the Christmas holidays.

Jane Cowl: another contender for the title of First Actress, in a new play, as yet unnamed and unstaged.

"Berkeley Square": a comedy of sentimental charm, with Leslie Howard as its central figure.

"Apron Strings": ditto.

"Stepping Sisters": ditto.

Ethel Barrymore: the long awaited dramatization of Julia Peterkin's novel, "Scarlet Sister Mary," will be her vehicle.

"Three Little Girls": an operetta from Vienna, of superior quality, with its original cast. Natalie and Bettin Hall, formerly of the American Opera company, and Martha Lorber will have the title rôles.

"Artists and Models": a revue, definitely scheduled to open the Grand Opera house Monday evening, Aug. 11, with Phil Baker, Aileen Stanley and Messrs. Shaw and Lee as its leading entertainers.

"The Sketch Book": a handsome entertainment staged by Earl Carroll, with Will Mahoney as its chief comedian.

"The Greenwich Village Follies": a revue with which a once-popular series of entertainments has been revived.

"Sons o' Guns": one of the "smashes" of last season's musical shows in New York. Jack Donahue is master of the revels.

"Strike Up the Band": Messrs. Clark and McCullough will head the cast.

The New York stage dropped to a new "low" last Saturday night with the withdrawal from summer competition of "Who Cares?" a revue staged by members of the Lambs club; "Artists and Models," which is preparing to go on tour; and "Lost Sheep." With these subtractions, the list of Broadway playbills numbered eleven. This evening, however, it will be a dozen, for a play called "Ladies All" opens at the Morosco theater with Walter Woolf and Violet Heming as its stars. A piece called "Technique" was announced for tomorrow night, but postponed until next week.

"The Second Little Show" will begin its career at the Wilbur theater of Boston on Aug. 11. It will be like its predecessor in manner, but not in cast. None of the principals of the highly popular "Little Show" that ran a year in New York and a couple of months in Chicago have been reengaged. Its players will be Al Trahan, Ruth Tester, Joe Lewis, Ned Wever, Helen Gray, Gloria Grafton, Davey Jones, Kathryn Hamill, and Joey Ray. The sketches were written by Marc Connelly, Morris Ryskind, Corey Ford, Newman Levy, and Robert Emmett Sherwood. Words and music are by Schwartz and Dietz, who have tried to do for the second as well as they did for the first. C. C.

Six Chicago Co-eds Get 'A' Average at U. of Illinois

Urbana, Ill., July 27.—[Special.]—Six co-eds from Chicago and suburbs were among the forty-six at the University of Illinois who got a straight "A" average during the last semester, it was revealed today by Miss Maria Leonard, dean of women. They are Frances Lindquist, 4317 North Keeler avenue; Julia Ann Lipwo, 5641 Princeton avenue; Katherine A. Tauch, 7159 Woodlawn avenue; Mary Elizabeth Bennett, 813 Sherman avenue, Evanston; Gladys Novotny, 2101 South Euclid avenue, Berwyn; Dorothy Whyte, 634 North Genesee avenue, Waukegan.

Einstein Asks Better Schools for Children

Mme. Currie Recalls Days When He Was Joke.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

GENEVA, July 27.—Calculating, jotting down figures and symbols, checking equations, smoking his pipe when he has not forgotten to light it, figuring while the translators are turning into French and English his views on the necessity for improving the education of children—that's Prof. Albert Einstein.

Even during the sessions here of the league of nations committee on intellectual coöperation, of which he is one of the illustrious members, he is working in a field of study still more vast than those in which he has already pioneered.

He does not say what it is, but when asked if the subject was more interesting than his previous theories, he replied, with the soft voice and engaging smile. "I think it is more interesting. But maybe people will think I am a fool when they read it."

At the other end of the committee table sits Mme. Curie—slight black robed, white haired. With bright eyes peering from behind horn rimmed glasses she follows closely the discussion on the reorganization of the intellectual coöperation section, but she rarely joins in it. When the meetings adjourn for luncheon or dinner she is to be seen refusing all social invitations. She has not time, she explains, for she needs every spare moment to finish the scientific monograph which she must read in Paris soon. To the question, "What is its subject?" she too, does not answer.

Speaking of those days before her husband died, a martyr to science, Mme. Curie smiled at her memory of Einstein. He was the funniest man then, she said. He was always thinking of the same thing, discussing the same problem of relativity and seeking to talk with any scientist working in any possibly related field.

Though Dr. Einstein is devoted to his studies during the time taken by the transactions here, he not only follows as closely as any the work of the intellectual coöperation committee, but he contributes much to it. He himself understands both French and English, so does not need the translations. But he prefers to speak to the committee in German, save for his short statements, which he makes in French.

Like Mme. Curie, Dr. Einstein shows special interest in problems touching child education. His longest statement to the committee—which meets in private—was to say that to him the main thing was how generally to improve the education of the young. The league could do no greater work, he held, than to help to make the elementary schools throughout the world better.

Teaching children the spirit of international coöperation, he said, was a task whose successful achievement would quite suffice to assure the full success of the intellectual coöperation committee's work. It was extraordinary, he declared, how little relation there was now between the savants working in the different branches of science though their work was really closely related. He did not hesitate to point to himself as a bad example. Dr. Einstein describing Dr. Einstein as a mathematician and physicist with a lamentable ignorance of chemistry.

When the prominent British educator, Sir Frank Heath, told the committee is was insufficiently informed on what had been done by the Dutch in the East Indies, the Americans in the Philippines and the Belgians in the Congo in teaching the natives, Dr. Einstein followed his declaration with the greatest interest and immediately urged the committee to procure that information.

Another of the German mathematician's closest friends on the committee is the great French mathematician, Paul Painleve, known to the political world as several times premier of France, known to the aviation world as the first passenger to fly with the Wrights and known to his friends as a most absent minded man who will invite you to a banquet and forget to order it or to come himself.

Little Harbor Yacht Club Is Opened by Tea

BY THALIA

Byron T. Gifford, vice president of the new Little Harbor club at Harbor Springs, Mich., Mrs. Gifford, Robert W. Hyman, secretary, and Mrs. Hyman headed the reception committee at the opening of the club at tea time on Saturday afternoon.

The guests, resorters from Harbor Point, Wequetonsin, and the Shore drive inspected everything approving-ly from the yacht moorings and the deck veranda to the red tennis courts and the outdoor swimming pool.

Mrs. Gifford wore a blue and white knitted suit with white jacket and white knitted hat. Mrs. Hyman wore pale pink silk with large violet blue hat. Mrs. Robert C. Wheeler, Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, Mrs. William Waller Jr., Mr. E. P. Russell entertained at dinner parties Saturday evening in the clubhouse. Among Mrs. Wheeler's guests were Mr. and Mrs. Press Hodges of Lake Forest, who came up especially for this event. Mr. and Mrs. E. L. McNally were week-end guests of the Hymans, having arrived by plane Friday in record time, 2 hours 10 minutes.

Mrs. Farwell Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Howard O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Clow were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scudder and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Reynolds of the Point. James R. O'Neill was much in evidence with his camera and indulged his hobby with delight. Mrs. O'Neill Ryan Jr., the Frank E. Pierces, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Kramer, who have summer homes on the Point, were there. Dinner was followed by dancing and midnight buffet supper.

Yachting, swimming and tennis are the chief activities of the new club. Many of the best craft in the annual regatta here Aug. 16 to 18 will fly L. H. C. flag stop. The Michigan open tennis tournament will be held on the club courts last week of August.

Mrs. Knight C. Cowles is to give a birthday party for her small daughter, Edith, on Wednesday afternoon in Lake Forest. The birthday cake will have 10 candles.

Mrs. Allan M. Clement of 209 Lake Shore drive and Mrs. George M. Reynolds have been having a gay visit with Mrs. Joseph H. Defrees at her summer place at Camden, Me. Trips on Mrs. Defrees' yacht, Strangeways, and parties and luncheons have occupied much of their time. Camden was gay last week with a regatta, and the presence of the United States cruiser Salt Lake City in the harbor.

Miss H. Strawn is to address the Lake Forest League of Women Voters tomorrow afternoon on "Conditions in Chicago" at a meeting at Mrs. Frank Elston's residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Olaf von Hofsten, who resided for many years in Winnetka, but are now residents of Pasadena, Cal., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Arthur Sterling Wiley of Los Angeles, son of Sterling Price Wiley of Boston, Mass. The formal announcement was made by Miss von Hofsten's parents at a luncheon at their summer place at Leland, Mich., on Saturday. Miss von Hofsten was graduated from Bryn Mawr, and Mr. Wiley is a Harvard graduate. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt A. Massee departed on Friday on their yacht, the Margo, for a 3 weeks' cruise in Georgian bay and the great lakes. Mr. and Mrs. Neil C. Ward, who are to spend August at their camp in Canada, accompanied them. Mr. and Mrs. James L. Martin of Highland Park are to join the Massees for the latter part of the cruise.

Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter Jr. and her mother, Mrs. J. Dorr Bradley of Lake Forest, are going to the Lawsonia Country club today for a week's stay. Mrs. Carpenter is to enter the tennis tournament being held there. Mr. and Mrs. Neil B. Dawes were among those who spent the week-end at the club.

Mrs. Charles F. Spalding of 6 Scott street, Mrs. John V. Clarke, and Miss Louise English have been sojourning at Banff, in the Canadian Rockies, recently.

Miss Emily Larned of the Ambassador East left Chicago on Wednesday last for the east. She is to be the guest of Mrs. Lewis Larned Coburn at Bar Harbor during the month of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Grant of 3740 Sheridan road announce the birth of a son, Gerald Grant Jr., on July 24, at St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. Grant was Miss Rosemary Gallery before her marriage, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Gallery of 79 East Elm street.

WED IN KANSAS

MRS. JOHN R. HEATH.

The marriage of Miss Beatrix Una Knight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Knight of Salina, Kas., to John Reardon Heath of Chicago took place last Tuesday at the First Presbyterian church in Salina. The bride is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and a member of Delta Zeta sorority. Mr. Heath is a graduate of Grinnell college and of Harvard law school. After a fortnight's stay in Canada they will reside at 2150 Lincoln Park West.

Better to Prevent Sickness Than to Work to Cure It

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A booklet of prayers and graces for children will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

There is a current belief here in our western world that the Chinese do not wait until they are ill to send for a doctor—that they engage and pay him to keep them well, but that when they get sick his pay stops.

Well, whether it is true or not, it's a grand scheme. It's really an ancient race using what we call a new idea—that of preventive medicine. Many of the things we think are new with us are very, very old. But old or new, preventive medicine—preventive dentistry—are all fine ideas. The principle is so sound. "Keep well instead of get well."

The same principle works as well in the management of children. Preventive psychology is the best kind. To guide our children so as to avoid, if possible, behavior troubles, wrong character development, complex emotional states—is the present aim of intelligent people. How much better for the children this is than to have to correct bad habits, temper tantrums, eating difficulties, the telling of falsehoods. And how infinitely easier for us, too, as well as the children, to help them form a good habit than to break a bad one.

But, in a way, the word preventive isn't such a very good word. Preventive medicine, preventive dentistry, preventive psychology, they all sound rather negative. But they're not, really—they just sound that way. They really are positive.

Preventive medicine really means building up a strong and healthy body that will resist disease—and that's not negative—it's constructive. Preventive dentistry means taking measures of diet and care to build up fine teeth—not a negative, but a constructive thing.

And preventive psychology doesn't really aim at merely preventing having trouble with your child. It means giving him satisfying things to do with his energy, helping him to form good habits, to meet the world and to stand on his own feet so that he will be a happy, useful person—a very positive constructive aim.

So we are for preventive psychology.

Flossmoor Flower Show.

The first meeting of the chairman and co-chairmen of the fourth annual flower show of Flossmoor is to be held this morning at 11 o'clock at the Civic center building. Mrs. Lyle Harper, chairman, is to give a buffet luncheon following the meetings, after which plans will be made.

FARM AND GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

It may be hard to grow shrubs and vines on the shady sides of the house, but Prof. Joseph P. Porter of Cornell university declares that the shade probably is the least serious consideration in getting plant life under way. Availability of moisture and food in the soil is more nearly the object of interest in such cases.

In four of five such instances, the soil largely is subsoil of poor quality, excavated and leveled off when the house was built. Beneath it, frequently will be found debris such as plaster, he says. Such soil is unproductive and usually excessively dry. The house eaves shut off much of the rainfall, while nearby trees may remove enormous quantities of moisture and food.

"Moisture and fertility may be restored simultaneously by digging into the soil large quantities of decayed leaves and manure," Prof. Porter says. "For each square yard of surface, one small wheelbarrow load of rotted leaves and manure should be spaded into a depth of eighteen or twenty inches.

"Simply scratching it into the top few inches of soil is not enough," he adds. It must go down deep, even deeper than the roots may be expected to grow. Wherever the soil is poor some commercial fertilizer may be added to the manure. Any standard fertilizer will do but those that have a ratio of 1-1-1 are most satisfactory. One-quarter pound of this fertilizer might be added to each wheelbarrow of manure."

Any Kid Can Tell Why He Prefers Circus

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

There will be so many acts in Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey circus when we see it on Aug. 7, a week from next Tuesday, it will be necessary to keep five rings and six stages going all the time. Imagine trying to see everything in a show of this size and how busy it will keep us.

You will be happy to know that our old favorite, Lillian Leitzel, conceded to be the world's greatest aerialist, still is performing her one arm revolutions in midair. Her husband, Alfredo Codona, is also with the circus. He's an aerialist, too, who does a triple somersault while flying from one end of the tent to the other. You'll hold your breath during this stunt, I'll predict. Then there's the breathtaking incident of the human projectile where a man is shot from the mouth of a monster cannon.

In addition to these and many other performers are the trained animals—thoroughbred horses, balancing and juggling seals, elephants who go through their paces without a mistake, zebras, camels and a lot of others.

Doesn't it sound like a perfectly fascinating party? And won't you be able to write splendid letters with so much material! I know you have good reasons for wanting to see the circus, for after all who doesn't? There's something about the atmosphere of the big top that just gets you. I don't know whether it's the sawdust smell or the circus band—and there is something about this music that makes it different from any other you hear—or the canvas tents, but when you're on the lot you completely forget about everything else and you are filled with a holiday feeling.

Tell me in your letters how the circus affects you and why you are so anxious to go. As usual, I shall have one hundred guests at this party, and I want to take real circus lovers, so make your letters as convincing as possible. Have them reach me no later than Thursday morning, and be sure to include your name, address and age. Sometimes good letters have to be discarded because the writer neglected one or another of these items.

Legion Will Advocate Better Care of Ailing World War Veterans

Meeting in special session to consider a betterment in the methods of treating and caring for disabled war veterans in Illinois, a committee headed by E. A. Hayes, Illinois commander of the American Legion, yesterday began the work of drafting resolutions to present to the Legion state convention at Aurora, Sept. 8 and 9.

The membership of the group, which met at the Hotel Sherman, included J. B. Murphy, chairman of the finance committee; John Stelle, commander of the Fifth division; Joseph F. Novotny, commander of the First division, and Jhon W. Nelson, commander of the 13th district. Chester Davis, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, and Lester Benston, department service officer were also present.

ENGAGED

BARBARA V. CAMPBELL.

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Campbell of the Aquitania apartments announce the engagement of their daughter, Barbara Virginia, to Thilo M. Best, son of Jacob Best of 6338 Kenmore avenue. Miss Campbell attended Gulf Park college and both she and Mr. Best are graduates of the University of Illinois. She is a member of Chi Omega and he of Kappa Sigma. The wedding will take place in October.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., July 27.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover are entertaining the second senatorial bride and bridegroom of this month in their camp on the Rapidan, Senator David Baird Jr. of New Jersey and his bride having motored up there yesterday to join the presidential party, who went the day before. Mrs. Hoover drove the ladies of the party in her own car, leaving Friday morning early, while the President and the men of the party went up in the afternoon.

Mrs. George Mesta of Washington, widow of the Pittsburgh steel millionaire, has sent out invitations for dinner, Aug. 15, in honor of Vice President Curtis, some of the invitations having reached Washington. Several guests will go from here to be present, among them Mrs. Hull, wife of Gen. John A. Hull, U. S. A., who will visit Mrs. Mesta in Newport and in Saratoga, where Mrs. Mesta will have a house for several weeks. The vice president will be Mrs. Mesta's house guest for several days at Newport. She has Mrs. Henry Clews' place, the Rocks, and has with her for the season her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Adams of New York.

Senator and Mrs. James E. Watson of Indiana left Washington yesterday by motor for their home in Rushville. They will later motor to Canada.

Senator and Mrs. James Couzens are at Wabeek Farm, their country place at Pontiac, Mich. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Chewning, are occupying the house they have been in the past season and on their return they will take possession of the former home of C. Matthews Dick, formerly of Chicago, which they purchased this summer.

Powder Puff Never Meant to Be Life-Long Friend, Gals

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

An exhibition akin to the maternalism that women feel for the abnormal one of their progeny is seen in the affection that is fastened on a powder puff, or a hair brush, or a tooth brush or some other such cosmetic article. The "maternal" instinct is so strong that no matter how dirty or unkempt said cosmetic implement may be mamma can't bear to part with it.

A striking instance was revealed recently by a woman of unusual beauty who told a tale of a temporarily lost powder puff. The particular puff had endeared itself during a long, long trip—around the world, to be exact. Then one day it was missing on return from a shopping trip. Next day the woman dropped into a fruit store, where she had paused to give an order on the previous day, and there she was tendered the lost puff.

"I was tempted to keep it as a memento of you," said the unctuous storekeeper.

"If you had," said the pretty one, "I would never have forgiven you. It's a dirty little specimen, but its mamma loves it."

Now, maybe in cold weather you may manage to keep a face under such powder puff circumstances, although we doubt if it could be kept as well as under other circumstances; or, if you were traveling in the jungles and your idea of capture was a Burmese elephant and he (the elephant) wasn't particular about what your face was like—you might get by with a soiled puff record. But in warm weather, with the pores of the skin most active, and exuding oil with gusto, the cleaner that little puff is the nicer it is going to be for your skin, today, tomorrow, and a year hence.

We call partocular attention to the puff at this time because they soil with more rapidity than usual for the very reason of the sebaceous gland activity spoken of already. And if there is an oily condition of skin the puff should be discarded immediately there is a sign of grease or grime on it.

In fact, we advocate less powdering and more face rinsing during the hot spell if the skin is oily. Rinse the face frequently with warm water and then give it a cold plunge. You won't need so much powdering.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

K. L. P.: ILL FITTING SHOES cause most of the foot troubles we hear about. I would advise going to a reputable shoe store and having shoes made to fit your feet. It is expensive, but you will be repaid in comfort. My leaflet on feet may be had for a stamped addressed envelope.

F. J.: AFTER WASHING DISHES or doing work about the house which has a tendency to dry the skin rub the hands with your favorite hand lotion or a good cold cream.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Just Washing.

My farm, in southern Alabama, was bordered by a creek and heavily wooded section. From my house, which was on a hill, I had seen for a number of days a spiral of smoke coming from one corner, near the creek. Knowing that moonshine stills were numerous in that section I was sure I had discovered one, and it being on my property was highly indignant at such liberties. I happened to speak of this to a neighbor, who immediately reported to authorities.

Three deputies paid me a visit and inquired as to the location of the still. The smoke was visible at the time and they left me to make an arrest.

After a short time they returned and gave me the merry ha-ha. Two Negro women were washing in my creek and boiling their clothes in a big iron cauldron. M. R.

I CANNOT AFFORD CHEAP QUALITY

Thrifty European housewives haven't money to waste . . . they discovered long ago, that they couldn't afford to buy cheap coffee. They have to economize, so they pay a little more for better grades—coffees with body and substance.

That's why most of the world's best coffees are shipped to Europe, and never come to the United States.

Jenny Encrusts Suit Blouses with Satin

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—With the silken tailored suit all over the map of smart Paris, blouses are taking on an air of elegance, too. Cotton and linen waists are being compressed into the styles for morning hours, rather than the blouse that is made of luxury materials. Satin blouses are decidedly in the foreground of Paris fashions, but the newest blouse of all is Jenny's georgette blouse that is encrusted with satin. This combination gives something that is cool enough for the hottest weather, and elegant enough for the formal afternoon.

Ninety per cent of the silk suits that are worn in Paris are black or navy blue, and the majority of blouses are white, although chic women have a growing fondness for waists in pastel colors. The blouse shown at the top of the sketch is Jenny's jade green georgette waist to wear with the dark colored silk suit. It is quite simple, as most smart blouses are, and acquires its luxury tone from the jade green satin that is applied at the waistline at the wrists of the long sleeves and at the tips of the collar.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The first time Mary Elizabeth, aged 4, went to Sunday school, the minister made a little speech urging the children to stay for the church services.

"Now I want to see every single one of you children present at the services upstairs immediately after you are dismissed here," he ended.

MRS. M. A.

Baby Jack was toddling and ogling after Buddy and his chum as they played on the lawn in their new Indian suits.

"Can your kid brother talk?" said the playmate.

Food Talk.

Never will I forget the first time I ate loganberries. They were served as a shortcake a la mode—a perfect shortcake deluged with slightly crushed, sweetened berries and topped with a ball of faultless vanilla ice cream.

In the berry line there is no form more superb or flavor more exquisite. In shape the loganberry resembles the blackberry, in color a raspberry before it is ripe, changing to dark purplish red when fully ripe. Its flavor suggests the raspberry, but is more sprightly and acid.

Loganberries are in season now and the season is short. They are expensive and will be, so long as the demand exceeds the supply [the entire loganberry crop is swept on the market irrespective of size and quality]. But they are such a treat that I can conscientiously recommend cutting on some common food to allow at least one indulgence in this unusual berry. If you fail to get the fresh fruit, then do the next best thing—purchase a can of berries or a bottle of loganberry juice.

In the raw state loganberries may be used as any other berry. They may be cooked and cooking does not seem to affect the flavor one bit. For this reason they make excellent pies. One of the most acceptable ways to use the canned product is to chill and serve as a simple compote with cookies or cake. The juice which is concentrated is delicious chilled and served plain like grape juice. Dilution, of course, is necessary.

Combined with other fruit juices it makes refreshing punches. Used as a liquid to dissolve plain gelatin it makes a delightful dessert. I have also found that it makes a pleasing dessert for the automatic refrigerator or one that can be frozen in a mold packed in salt and ice.

LOGANBERRY PARFAIT

2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Boil loganbery juice and sugar to ¾ cup sirup. Cool, then chill. Chill cream and whip until stiff. Add lemon juice and continue whipping until mixture is very stiff. Add the cold loganberry sirup, folding together lightly but thoroughly. Turn into cold freezing pan and place in refrigerator immediately.

Requires 3 to 3 hours for freezing.

Are Too Many Girls Playing the Role of "Sincerity Fakers"?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Now, here is an idea, the adoption of which might easily bear the sort of fruit lonesome girls are praying for:

"You will notice that men always fall hardest for the younger females—BECAUSE the younger they are the more natural they are. When girls get older they develop what I call 'system.' On this system they operate mechanically. They do such and such because it is the right and proper thing to do, and they wouldn't do or say the natural thing because it is not according to the system's code.

"They are afraid to be friendly outside of the usual formal friendliness. They are afraid to be thought ever so slightly unconventional. And understand, I am not asking for anything that is not purely on the level. The younger girls speak right out and when they meet a man they have the friendliness of children. They trust him and if they like him, they speak or act it. And right here is where a lot of your NICE girls fall down.

"JOSEPH."

Joseph further opines that girls left to themselves and their own judgments, their natural intuitiveness and their appreciable sense of right and wrong, would come out more victorious in the long run. As they stand now, Joseph sees too much mother-molding, or stern-aunt molding of their characters. All the spontaneity goes out of their actions and they are either operating on the mechanical system already referred to, or they are playing the rôle of "sincerity fakers," as Joseph chooses to call them.

They go out with several men and spring the same "rehearsed" line of sincerity on each in turn. And there is a branch far removed from the "natural" girl not far removed in spirit from childhood, who are bloodless calculators. They set out with a "large income" as their aim and ambition and their whole conduct is established with that end in view.

Anyway, Joseph repeats that men could do with a little more of the "childhood" spirit of camaraderie. Take a man on until he proves he is a bad little boy and can't be played with any longer.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Fickle.

"Dear Miss Blake: May a girl that will be married next fall go out with other fellows while her fiancé is working in another town? MARY."

If the girl is deeply in love with her fiancé she won't be interested in going out with other boys.

Too Old.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 and love a girl of 22. Is she too old for me? D. P. R."

Yes. Girls of 19 and 18 would make more suitable companions.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., July 27.—Those crazy Cincinnati Reds did it again this afternoon, and what's more they pulled a triple play to accomplish their foul purpose. The score of the fifth Cincinnati victory of the current trip was Reds 6, Cubs 5.

And if you want Capt. Charley Grimm to see red, just mention the Reds. Charley, who didn't make a hit when the Cubs lost four games here three weeks ago, didn't make a hit today. He rapped into a double play in the second inning, and, most saddening of all, it was Charley's tap that launched the triple play in the fifth.

Hope to Get Revenge Today.

In administering the plastering today the Reds made it eight out of 12 against the Cubs for the season and thereby qualified as our worst enemies. But the Cubs have in mind getting even pretty quick. Tonight they left for Chicago, and tomorrow afternoon they will shoot at the Reds in a double header at Wrigley field. Charley Root and Sheriff Blake will hurl for the Cubs. They probably will be opposed by Frey and Rixey.

The Cubs seemed in a fair way to make a million runs when the triple play bobbed up. With the score 4 to 2 against our men in the sixth, English tripled to right and came in with the tying run on Cuyler's single to right. Wilson doubled off the right field screen, scoring Cuyler, and took third on a wild pitch. D. Taylor walked. Ash replaced Benton. Grimm tapped to Ford, who threw to Cuccinello, and Wilson was run down, Cuccinello to Sukeforth. The catcher held up and found both D. Taylor and Grimm on second. Grimm started back to first and was out, Sukeforth to Stripp. D. Taylor dashed for third and the triple play was completed, Stripp to Cuccinello.

Reds Regain Lead.

And here's the way the Reds acted in the last of the sixth under the exhilarating effects of that triple play: Heilmann singled to left and scored the tying run on Ford's triple to the scoreboard. Ford held third while Farrell was throwing out Durocher, but scored when Sukeforth singled to right.

Lucas went to the plate to bat for Ash, but when Manager McCarthy replaced Osborn with Teachout, Lucas was withdrawn and Swanson did the batting. He tripled to right, scoring Sukeforth. Swanson was out at the plate on Walker's tap to Grimm, but Meusel walked. Stripp singled to left, scoring Walker. Cuccinello forced Stripp, Farrell unassisted.

At the end of the first three innings the Cubs were boasting a total of no runs and one hit, the hit being a single by D. Taylor, which was promptly nullified by Grimm, who pulled into a double play. In the same way the Reds made two runs, accomplished by the first two Cincy batsmen of the day. Walker opened the home offensive with a single to left and scored on Meusel's double off the scoreboard. Meusel went to third on Stripp's sacrifice bunt and came home on Cuccinello's sacrifice fly.

Blair Singles and Scores.

The Cubs made a run in the fourth. Blair opened with a single to center and held on while English flied to Heilmann. Cuyler walked and so did Wilson, filling the bases. Blair scored and Cuyler went to third on D. Taylor's sacrifice foul fly to Heilmann. Grimm lined to Walker.

Bartlett opened the fifth with a double over third, but held second while Cuccinello was throwing out

Washington Scores Seven Runs in Seventh.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Fred Marberry threw baseballs that caused the White Sox attack considerable embarrassment yesterday. On the other hand, Washington's Senators greeted Frank Dutch Henry in the fashion to which he long since has become accustomed. The upshot of it was that the second placers, after being whipped three times in a row, took a 10 to 1 final before 20,000 patrons.

FRED MARBERRY.

Marberry could be induced to give up only three hits. Two were singles exploded with two out in the third and they proved of no value as run getters. The third hit came in the seventh, and it developed into the only Sox run because a member of the hostile aggregation was kind enough to toss in an error at the proper time.

Henry Starts Well.

For a time it looked as if Henry was going to make a real fight to avoid another setback for his strange record, which now reads fourteen defeats against two victories for the campaign. He surrendered only two runs in five innings. That, however, exhausted his supply of tricks. In the sixth the Senators ripped into him with such fury that he hustled from the scene and before Ed Walsh could straighten out the mess seven men had scored. After this Walsh maintained order except for a run which wasn't entirely his fault in the eighth.

Lyons will labor at St. Louis today. Gray probably will oppose him.

Henry held out until the second inning before yielding to the Senators' desire to get some runs. They scored a pair on a combination of hits and an error. Cronin opened the round by singling. Bluege flied out, and Hayes singled to center. Cronin intended to stop at third on the hit, but continued to the plate when Barnes made a wide return throw. Meanwhile Hayes strolled down to second. A pass put Ruel on base. West slapped a one base hit to center, scoring Hayes with the second run of the inning.

Senators Score Seven.

Henry's complete collapse in the sixth began with a single by Bluege with one out. Hayes grounded to Mulleavy who fumbled just long enough to lose both runners. Ruel rolled a soft tap in front of the plate and nobody thought about picking it up. This filled the bases. West singled to send Bluege home. Marberry singled, scoring Hayes and Ruel. Wes was nailed at the plate on Rice's bounder to Cissell. The bases became loaded on a pass to Judge, and Manush cleaned house with a double. Henry quit in Walsh's favor and Harris ran for Manush. He scored the seventh run of the inning on Cronin's single.

Fothergill, who was in use for the day because of Reynolds' charley horse, swung his bat in the seventh to let the Sox escape the ignominy of an impending shutout. The Giant Man doubled to left and moved to third while Cronin was fumbling Jolley's grounder. Fothergill rumbled home while Barnes and Jolley were being mopped up in a double play. This was followed by a Washington run in the eighth, the ingredients of this being some funny fielding by Jolley, Mulleavy and Crouse.

French Defeat Tilden, Lott; Win Davis Cup 4th Year, 4-1

AUTEUIL, France, July 27.—(AP)—America's third attempt in as many years to regain the Davis cup from France foundered today upon the granitelike defenses of the veteran French aces, Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra. Capturing both of the final day's singles matches, France retained the cup she first won in 1927 by the decisive margin of four victories to one.

Leading, 2 to 1, after the first two days of play in the challenge round, France clinched the cup when Borotra conquered George Lott, youthful star from Chicago, 5-7, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, 8-6. Cochet put the finishing touches on France's successful defense of the trophy by whipping his old rival, Big Bill Tilden, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, 7-5. A crowd of 10,000 watched the final matches.

Tilden recorded America's only victory of the challenge round on Friday when he defeated Borotra in four sets. Lott fell before Cochet in straight sets on the opening day and the American doubles team of Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn was beaten by Cochet and Jacques Brugnon in four sets yesterday.

Tilden, Borotra to Retire.

Today's play, while it marked retention of the cup by France for another year at least, probably signaled the passing from this international competition of Tilden and Borotra. Both said they never would play for the Davis cup again.

"We must requisition Rene Lacoste next year," said Borotra, "because I never want to play such a Davis cup match again. I didn't play very well."

Next year, then, will be a year for the youngsters. One of them showed his mettle today. Lott fought Borotra to the last stroke of their five-set match and lost, it seemed, only because of the greater tournament experience of the veteran Basque. There wasn't a time until the last stroke was played that Lott wasn't dangerously threatening.

Lott Wins First Set.

The Chicagoan jumped into his best form in the first game. He won it on service and broke through Borotra for the next at love. Borotra decided to come to the net in the third game and won it, only to lose the next two to the accurate placing and long line drives that the American sent sizzling down the sidelines. Two more games went with service. Then Borotra, again at the net, won the next three. Lott found himself in the 11th game, however, with a sure service and certain passing shots and ran out the set easily, 7-5.

The Chicagoan fought for the second set, but Borotra, after evening it at three all, dominated the court to run out at 6-3. He was the old bounding Basque once more, deadly at the net and in on every service, even the soft ones.

Lott was master again in the third set. He took the first three games, lost two when Borotra broke through his service and then ran out the set at 6-2.

Crying Baby Halts Game.

The breaks went against him in the fourth set. With games at two all, a baby started to cry just as Borotra started to serve in the fifth game. It was a little thing and Borotra, with his usual foolery, halted his stroke, bowed his head and waited until the child finished its crying spell. The fans tittered, and Lott seemed thrown off form. He netted, overdrove and utterly failed to find his position. His gallant fight in the last game availed him nothing and Borotra won the set, 6-2.

In the final set they were all square after the 10th game. The Basque took the 11th at love and Lott again squared the match after another tremendous battle to deuce. Borotra made a supreme effort and ran out set and match in two fiercely contested games, 8-6.

Cochet Strong After 1st Set.

It took Cochet ten games and cost him a set to solve Tilden's attack. Tilden was the old master once more in the first set, winning, 6-4. Big Bill won just nine of the 28 games in the three sets that followed.

Tilden got to one love in the second set, but after that he never led.

"I have nothing to say," was Tilden's comment after the match. "I was beaten, that's all."

LEHMAN DEFEATS CHICK EVANS IN MEDAL PLAYOFF

Johnny Lehman yesterday completed his conquest of western amateur golf affairs by defeating Chick Evans in the playoff for the medal. Lehman Saturday defeated Ira Couch, another Chicagoan, 4 and 3, in the title round of the tournament. Neither Lehman nor Evans was at his best yesterday, the new champion taking 38—40—78 over the Beverly Country club course, while Evans required 80 strokes.

WHY IS A BOXING COMMISSIONER? ASK MR. FARLEY

He Says It's a Thankless but Amusing Job.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 27.—Mr. Jim Farley, the chairman of the New York prize fight commission is so courteous and patient under criticism, some of it erroneous, that I thought I would call on him and ask him why a man of his means and his commercial and political stature ever took the job in the first place and why he continues to serve as chairman of the New York commission, without pay, now that he knows the only reward of his service must be suspicion and abuse.

Curiously, I had never thought of going to headquarters for this information before, but had stood off, shying my share of chair legs and cobble rocks at Mr. Farley, deducing his motives from his actions and his friendships, and finding much to deride.

It's Futile to Try.

I had called him a politician, as he is, and a trimmer, as all politicians must be, and had made more or less merry for some years over his necessarily futile efforts to suppress the burglarious practices of a class of boys in whom cheating, stealing, shooting and safe blowing are natural instincts and no more to be suppressed, outside the walls of some big house, than a dog's instinct to chase a cat.

Mr. Farley sits in a big, breezy office in one of those new buildings on the eastern reach of 42d street, a couple of blocks from Grand Central, overlooking the East river. It is a building supply company of which he is president and I have heard it told that this tall, half-bald, up-country politician, who got his early political experience in the order of Elks, gets close onto $1,000 a week, indicating that he is somebody fairly substantial in the industrial way of life in New York.

On his walls are autographed photographs of his political god, Al Smith, and his demigod, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and some political banquet flashlights, most of the faces showing that gruesome distortion which comes of trying to take in too much territory with the single fixed orb of a commercial camera. There was a small, bronze head of Al Smith, smiling, on his desk and a brass mule for a paperweight which I presently identified as the emblem of his political allegiance.

Fouls Rouse Fans' Ire.

There has been considerable fretting and scolding on the sports pages of this and other cities lately, about the fouling and fixing in the ring and the bold stratagems of a small but daring coterie of ex-convicts who control the leading prize fighters of the day, either as their managers of record or through dummies.

Myself, I had quite decided that there had been fakery of some kind in the recent lightweight championship bout in which Sammy Mandell lost the title to Al Singer at the Yankee stadium and I had been uneasily conscious of a sense of indignation over these matters. A writer should never allow himself to become indignant over anything that happens in the prize fighting business because that suggests idealism. Expect the worst at all times and of all concerned and you will seldom be disappointed or caught unawares.

"Well," I said to Mr. Farley, "a man sees so much and hears so much that is sordid in the prize fighting industry just now that I thought I would put it up to you. Do you think prize fighting is a sport and is it possible that you take this job of yours seriously, smart as you seem to be, and no flattery intended?"

"It's more an amusement nowadays," said Mr. Farley. "I read the

Why Tribune Swim Meet Was Success

BY ARCH WARD.
[Sports Editor.]

Congratulations are due the officials who coöperated with THE TRIBUNE in promoting the biggest swimming meet ever attempted at Lincoln park yesterday afternoon. Without their efficient service it would have been impossible to complete the event in two and a half hours.

J. J. LIPP.

Lining up 900 swimmers and getting them away with minimum delay never is an easy assignment. It is particularly difficult when the thermometer is high in the nineties. But hot or cold THE TRIBUNE "wrecking crew," as the late Walter Eckersall called these officials, functions like clock work.

To the judges of the finish—Johnny Behr, Henry Gilson, Selden Coombs, and Frank Kalteaux—goes the thanks of the contestants. None of their decisions caused a dispute.

The starters, S. H. Darwent and Charles Sidebotham, sent the swimmers away in perfect alignment. In no heat were they recalled because of a false start. Special thanks is due Dr. L. K. Eastman and his assistants, Dr. Robert McCulley and Nurse Grace Meinking. As soon as a contestant showed signs of fatigue Dr. Eastman directed life guards to remove him from the race. They patrolled the course in motor boats.

No official worked harder than Oscar Knop, director of recreation for the Lincoln park board. He supervised the installation of the barges and assisted in roping off the 15 lanes in which the swimmers raced. Knop learned that sport is not all play when he was a member of the University of Illinois football team.

Harry Berz, as usual, was to be found where the perspiration was heaviest. Assisted by John Gunderson, Tobias Orb, Theodore A. Gross, and Edward Blohm, he distributed numbers to the 900 swimmers and aided in lining them up in heats.

Joe Lipp, chief timer, said yesterday's workout helped put him in shape for football officiating. He had as his aids Tom Robinson, Stanley Brauninger, Oscar Hansen, William Bachrach, James P. McWhirter, and W. A. Blake.

The clerks, of course, were men who have served in TRIBUNE events for years. Eddie Mahlke was the chief. His assistants were Walter Sonnenleiter, Otis Taylor, Herman Fischer, V. K. Brown, and George Sonnenleiter.

Appreciation is extended to the Lincoln park commissioners and to Otto Weege, superintendent of the park, for permission to use the course. Congratulations, indeed, to Frank Blankley for his work as referee and to the judges of diving, E. C. Delaporte, Elder Halvorsen, Harry Hazelhurst, George Eckert, Arthur Hartung, and Frank Barnaman.

Appreciation, too, for the service of the life guards whose vigilance prevented a single accident. And to Ted County and Leonard Sterling, whose megaphones kept 50,000 informed of the progress of the meet.

Heartiest congratulations of all to the 900 youngsters who had the courage to test their competitive skill at 100 yards. It was inspiring to watch lads 12 years old battle on to the finish of a race that required stamina to complete.

There was an interesting sidelight of the meet which illustrates the caliber of Young Chicago. Nine hundred youngsters changed clothes. Not one article of clothing was reported missing when they left the park with merit badges pinned onto their shirts and dresses.

It was Tom Robinson, swimming coach at Northwestern university, who remarked after the last race: "This meet is the greatest stimulus swimming ever has received."

CLAUDIA ECKERT WINS SENIOR GIRLS' CROWN

Howlett Takes Boys' Title.

The Champions.

FOLLOWING are the champions in The Tribune and Central A. A. U. events held yesterday in the Lincoln park lagoon:

Girls, 14 and 15—Claudia Eckert.
Girls, 12 and 13—Bernadette Connelly.
Boys, 14 and 15—Mike Howlett.
Boys, 12 and 13—Robert Marriott.
Men's C. A. A. U. 100 yard—Walter Laufer.
Women's C. A. A. U. 100 yard—Emma Sheenaltis.
Men's 10 foot diving—W. Lebdell.
Women's 10 foot diving—Jane Fauntz.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Nine hundred boys and girls out of an entry of 1,470 from all sections of Chicagoland won TRIBUNE merit badges yesterday in the 100 yard races held in the Lincoln park lagoon.

Thousands of spectators thronged the banks and lined the stone bridge to the north of the starting barge, while hundreds of automobiles parked on the outer drive afforded additional vantage points.

In heats of 16 each, the youthful swimmers raced to the finish barge 100 yards down the lagoon. With the exception of the 14 and 15 year old boys, no contestant was forced to swim more than twice to win a championship. The winner of each heat qualified for the championship races.

In all, there were 21 preliminaries for senior boys, 14 for the 12 and 13 year old boys, and nine each in the two girls' divisions.

Champions Win Statues.

Champions received the bronze statues offered by THE TRIBUNE. The second, third and fourth place finishers in each race were awarded silver, bronze gold, and bronze medals.

Sixty per cent of the entry competed. For the most part they were novices. Theirs were not championship aspirations. Rather they wanted to prove to the thousands their ability to splash down the six foot lanes and earn merit badges.

They were plucky, these youngsters. And they were eager. Long before noon the first groups reported at the Lincoln Park Boat club for their numbers. As rapidly as they came they were given their numbers, assigned to heats and their clothing checked. Despite the heat of a noon day sun, they waited patiently until promptly at 2 o'clock, when the first preliminary in the boys' division was sent away from the starter's barge.

Finish Meet in Record Time.

Then in rapid succession other preliminaries got under way. For about two hours and a half, record time for a meet with 900 contestants, the races went on.

Claudia Eckert's victory in the senior girls' race came after a spectacular spring with Betty Quinn of the Illinois Women's Athletic association. She won by a few feet. Miss Eckert represented the Shawnee Country club.

Mike Howlett, 2853 Rosemont, raced down the 100 yard course three times to prove his claim to the senior boys' championship. He won his preliminary, then the semi-final and finally stroked his way to lead the field in the title race. Close behind Mike came Robert Brundage of Oak Park. Mike Jarbines of Gary, Ind., was third and Glen Leach, 3507 N. Marshfield avenue, won the fourth place medal.

Swim Chiefs Laud Tribune's Races, Efficient Officials

The Chicago Tribune A. A.
Gentlemen:

Please accept my sincere congratulations on your swimming meet.

In the history of swimming there has never been a greater gathering of boy and girl swimmers. You are deserving of the thanks of the people of the Chicago district for providing the opportunity for their boys and girls to meet in healthy competition.

Every detail of your meet was carefully planned and, under the guidance of the capable officials who served, it was run off most efficiently.

I hope you continue your interest in swimming.

FRANK W. BLANKLEY,
Chairman, National Swimming Committee, Amateur Athletic Union.

EVENT TO BE REMEMBERED.

The Chicago Tribune A. A.
Gentlemen:

It has been my good fortune to see many swimming meets in my capacity as chairman of the athletic committee of the Illinois Women's Athletic club. Never have I seen a meet that thrilled me as did yours.

The hundreds of boys and girls were imbued with but one idea, to win a merit badge.

It was a sight long to be remembered. I want to congratulate the officials who conducted this gigantic undertaking. I was particularly impressed by the alertness of your life saving forces.

RICH 2 YEAR OLD STAKE TO CLOSE ARLINGTON CARD

20 May Start Saturday in Post and Paddock.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Two year olds are to have their first great championship brush of the year in the west in the Post and Paddock stakes, which will bring down the curtain on the Arlington racing season next Saturday afternoon.

Eighteen or twenty of the smartest youngsters in training will take part in it, and if twenty go to the post the race will have a gross value of $30,120, with a little more than $24,000 going to the owner of the winning horse.

East Wants It, Too.

It will not be a strictly western affair, for Joseph E. Widener's Priory, Samuel Ross' Happy Scott, Walter J. Salmon's Mad Career, E. B. McLean's Outburst, Portcodine and In Between, and Mrs. Helen Hay Whitney's Blue Law and John Mill are here to seek the rich prize. The westerners will depend on Siskin, Risque, Betty Derr, B'ar Hunter, Insco, Back Log, Don Leon, Pittsburgher, Don Alvardo, In Haste, and Foreign Exchange.

It is possible none of these crack easterners or westerners will capture the stake, for 209 colts and fillies are eligible and it is hard to tell how many good ones are under cover. The Post and Paddock will be the richest American race for 2 year olds that will have been renewed this season. The National Stallion stakes run at Belmont in June had a gross value of $26,900.

The other closing day feature at Arlington will be the first running of the Matron stakes, which will have an added money value of $7,500. The prospective field includes Snowflake, Lady Broadcast, Easter Stockings, Nellie Custis, Alcibiades, Valenciennes, Pansy Walker, Dinah Did Upset, Galaday, Susie Jane, Molasses Jane, Beaming Over, and Crossco.

Arlington Nears Record.

With the close at Arlington but six days away, the Jockey club leaders declared yesterday they were safe in announcing that it has been the record breaking racing season of the year in America.

"Our attendance has been larger, our purses have been more valuable, and we have been able to bring a greater number of good horses into competition than any other track in the country," Charles A. McCulloch, chairman of the club board, said yesterday.

Mr. McCulloch would not make an estimate of how much profit the Arlington meeting will show. Last year it totaled $800,000, all of which went back into improvements and increased purses. It has been reported from some sources that the Arlington attendance has been about 30 per cent greater this year than last.

Redlegs Chase Bruins Home Beaten, 6 to 5

Farrell. Gabby went to third while Ford was throwing out Osborn, and was stranded when Cuccinello threw out Blair.

The Cubs made two runs in the eighth. After Cuccinello had thrown out English, Cuyler bounced the ball in front of the plate and was safe on Sukeforth's wide throw. Wilson walked and D. Taylor singled to center, scoring Cuyler and putting Wilson on third. Hack scored on Grimm's sacrifice fly. D. Taylor was out trying to steal second.

Stevie Hits in Pinch.

Pinch Batter Stephenson doubled with one out in the ninth, but Heathcote and Blair couldn't bring him home.

Thus closed the 25 game trip which began in Pittsburgh on the morning of July 4. Thirteen games were won and 12 lost. Against eastern clubs the showing was 11 won and six lost. Here's how the boys stacked up against the six clubs played:

At Pittsburgh—Won 2, lost 1.
At Cincinnati [first visit]—Won none, lost 4.
At Boston—Won 2, lost 2.
At Brooklyn—Won 4, lost 1.
At New York—Won 2, lost 3.
At Philadelphia—Won 3, lost 0.
At Cincinnati [second visit]—Won none, lost 1.

Root—Won 1; lost 4.
Malone—Won 3; lost 1.
Bush—Won 0; lost 2.
Blake—Won 1; lost 3.
Osborn—Won 3; lost 1.
Teachout—Won 4; lost 1.
Nelson—Won 1; lost 0.

The loss marked against Osborn was the second of the year, as against seven wins.

They Gave a New Thrill

THAT'S WHY THEY GOT THERE . . SO QUICKLY

LITTLE STORIES OF FAST SUCCESSES

[NUMBER EIGHT]

RAMON NOVARRO

His Spanish forebears conquered Mexico . . . won the country in ten brief years. But Ramon alone conquered America, conquered Europe, and all points east . . . in scarcely more than a camera's flicker.

For Ramon gave the world a thrill!

And that's the tale of another young conqueror, OLD GOLD cigarettes. New England surrendered in just two months. "You win, OLD GOLD!" said the Middle West. From coast-to-coast the victory spread. And OLD GOLD in just one year became the country's fastest growing cigarette.

Because OLD GOLD, like Novarro, offered the world a brand new thrill. Finer tobaccos gave a mellower taste. Better tobaccos ended throat-scratch.

NATURE IS KIND TO NOVARROS AND OLD GOLDS THAT'S WHY THEY WIN... AND WIN SO EASILY
Old Gold CIGARETTES
THE TREASURE OF THEM ALL
IN QUAINT SAN ANTONIO OLD GOLD APPEARED DECEMBER 1927. JUST TWO MONTHS LATER OLD GOLD WAS ONE OF THE FOUR BEST SELLERS THROUGHOUT THE LONE STAR STATE.

ROBINS WIN 2; GAIN GAME AND HALF ON BRUINS

Defeat Phillies, 10-6 and 9-6.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 27.—(AP)—The league leading Robins gained a game and a half on the Cubs and two full games over the Giants today by twice defeating the Phillies. The scores were 10 to 6 and 9 to 6.

Jim Elliott, pitching the first game for the Robins, was knocked out of the box in the ninth, but did not surrender his early lead. Roy Hansen, regular southpaw, held the Robins until the sixth inning of the second game when Wright's homer with two on dealt the Quakers a finishing blow. Nine home runs featured the afternoon. Klein's two in the first game brought his total for the year to 29.

Vanity Draws 'Em to Fights.

"But I think I talk to as many representative people as any one else does, and I don't hear much discontent. The fact is that nowadays when there is a big fight people want to go because their vanity is touched. Every barber within a hundred miles of New York wants to be somewhere in the arena to see the fight so that he can talk about it to his patients for weeks afterward. The rich young executives of the town, the actors and other prominent people want to sit in the ringside rows to be recognized among those present. Maybe the newspapers will mention them. People, even comparatively big people, are a little vain about such things.

"If there was a heavyweight championship fight tonight, no matter how bad the fight might be on paper, about 4,000 out of 5,000 ringside seats would be bought up by business houses or individual business men, in blocks of $1,000 worth or more, so that they could entertain their customers. Cloak and suit houses buy tickets for visiting buyers. Newspapers buy them for advertisers. And so on. And any time a man spends $25 for a prize fight ticket you may be quite certain that he didn't need the money for the necessities of life.

"So, as I say, I don't encounter this public indignation.

"But, naturally, the commission always tries to prevent fakes and fouls and keep known fakers and bad actors out of the business. Here is a hard thing to do. We will take the case of a fellow who handled a fighter in a notorious fake at the Garden. We heard before the fight that it was going to be a fake and afterward we were morally certain that one of the boys took it on the chin for a price.

Operates in Other States.

"The man who handled the loser hasn't held a New York license since then, but he has operated in other states. However, you may hear that he is a silent partner in the management of some other fighters who do operate in New York. What shall we do? Shall we bar these fighters who are honest so far as our information goes just because we think a blacklisted manager owns shares in them? Our powers are great, but I don't like to do an injustice on

WHOLESALE DIST. LOOKS TO NEXT WEEK'S MARKET

July Is Slow Month for Most Lines.

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Trade in the Chicago wholesale market droned slowly along last week with expectations, however, of a sharp pickup in activity during the semi-annual convention of the Interstate Merchants council and the summer market opening next Monday.

Recent downward revisions of mail order house catalogue prices revived discussion of the current price trends of wholesale merchandise. Leading wholesale houses here contend that, because wholesales values have been slipping downward since last fall's market blowup, a corresponding decline in retail prices has been evident for several months.

Rock Bottom Point.

Although the rock bottom point is still conjectural, the feeling prevails that wholesale commodities cannot be expected to go much lower. There remains, however, an admitted apprehension as to when the downward trend of cotton goods prices will be halted.

"We do not mean to prophesy that there will be no further declines," says Frederick H. Scott, vice president of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. (wholesale), in a letter to their trade. "There may be, but if so, we believe they must be slight. We do not mean to forecast higher prices, but urge merchants that, at present levels and under existing conditions there is little danger of inventory losses to that man who supplies his requirements for approaching weeks with new goods, fashioned right and at current price levels."

July Is Slow Month.

Each succeeding month this year has seen slower trading volume in wholesale lines. May was not a good month and June was even poorer, while July should be below June in sales volume. Naturally the wholesale market hopes for the beginning of the upturn to start with next week's summer market when several thousand retail buyers will visit the city for their purchasing of autumn and winter lines. Activities at the big new Merchandise mart, as well as the 76th anniversary celebration of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., will add to the attractions.

CUDAHY ADDITIONS.

The Cudahy Packing company has added two important units to its producing facilities—the New Sunlight Produce house at Granite Falls, Minn., which will be employed in packing poultry and eggs, and the meat packing establishment at San Diego, Cal., formerly operated by Charles S. Hardy.

Reo Motor Car.

Being a daily reader, I take the liberty of asking you what you think of Reo Motors as an investment. Do they pay dividends now and in what month do the dividends come due?—Mrs. S. B. E.

Reo Motor Car company is one of the oldest companies in the automobile industry. It was incorporated in 1904 in Michigan and its plant at Lansing, Mich., has a capacity of 300 cars daily. It manufactures medium priced automobiles and commercial vehicles.

Sales followed an increasing trend for several years to 1927, dropped off a little in 1928 and suffered a more severe decline in 1929. Earnings have varied. After experiencing two good years in 1927 and 1928 profits dropped radically last year.

During the first half of the current year shipments were much lower than a year before. In the six months ended June 30, 1930, 12,760 units were shipped, compared with the 23,127 units shipped in the like period of 1929.

Net income, available for dividends in 1929, was $1,073,524, against $5,083,588 in 1928 and $4,724,332 in 1927. Last year's earnings were equal to 54 cents per share on 2,000,000 capital shares, against $2.54 per share in 1928 and $2.36 per share in 1927. Earnings in 1929 were $1,826,476 less than the amount paid in dividends.

For the quarter ended March 31, 1930, sales amounted to $9,134,321, against $12,949,389 in the first 1929 quarter, and a net loss of $175,436 was reported, comparing with net profit of $537,514, or 27 cents per share in the quarter ended March 31, 1929.

Despite a slight decline in working capital the company's financial position was improved during 1929. As of March 31, 1930, current assets were $22,554,426 and current liabilities were $3,101,003, leaving a net working capital of $19,453,423, which compares with $20,245,424 at the close of 1928. There was a decrease in the cash item, but marketable securities increased from $100,000 at the close of 1928 to $6,405,200 on March 31, 1930.

The company has a profit and loss surplus of $9,783,069. There is no funded debt.

Foreign business showed an increase in 1929, accounting for 15½ per cent of the year's total, an increase of 5 per cent over 1928.

Present dividend rate on the $10 par capital stock is 80 cents per annum, the latest 20 cent quarterly dividend having been paid July 1, 1930.

In view of the present depression in the industry and the poorer showing made by this company in 1929, its stock may be regarded as medium grade and somewhat speculative.

Armstrong Cork.

What is your opinion of Armstrong Cork company ten year convertible 5 per cent debentures, which mature June 1, 1940?—L. B. B.

These debentures are considered a suitable investment for a business man's funds.

New York, July 27.—(AP)—General Refractories company has acquired a substantial interest in the Northwest Magnesite company, manufacturer and distributor of fireproof insulating board.

U. S. IS THE GREATEST DEBTOR NATION, KLEIN SAYS IN RADIO TALK

Washington, D. C., July 27.—(AP)—While the United States is a creditor nation with accounts of magnitude, it is the greatest debtor nation in history on private account, Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce, said tonight in a radio address.

Dr. Klein discussed the situation in an address dealing with the conception that the United States, economically, is a "sort of Shylock" among nations. He said this viewpoint has been emphasized by persons considering more exclusively the war debts owed this country by Europe.

Dr. Klein's estimate of the other side of the international debt score took into consideration the immense holdings of railway and industrial securities, of branch factories, and of bank credits which foreigners have obtained in the United States, and out of which they draw an income from this country's business activities.

NET OF PHILLIPS PETROLEUM FOR QUARTER SHOWN

The Phillips Petroleum company last night issued a statement to stockholders showing a net profit for the quarter ending June 30, 1930, of $3,033,555. The net profit for the first six months of 1930 amounted to $4,638,399, which is equivalent to $1.70 per share on the average outstanding stock.

"The increase in earnings this year over last year was due to a greater diversity of activity and to an increasing volume of business in all departments," President Frank Phillips says. "June profits were not as large as May, though volume of products sold was larger. This condition was occasioned by the weakening of prices of all grades of gasoline and refined products. Progress is being made in the reduction of crude oil production and refinery runs. With the continuation of coöperative effort there is encouragement that prices of gasoline and other refined products will show greater strength later in the year."

RIGHT NOW CORN IS SPECULATIVE GRAIN LEADER

Moisture Is Needed Generally.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Corn is the speculative leader in the grain trade and operators predict that it will be for a considerable time to come. It is a weather market subject to sharp and wide fluctuations any time there are heavy rains over the corn belt states, as moisture is needed practically everywhere.

Corn is now in a critical stage and continued drought and temperatures of 100 to 105 over the corn belt states the last three weeks have already damaged to a considerable extent corn that was in tassel. Parts of Iowa, Nebraska, and Kansas have suffered the most, and there are estimates of losses of 200,000,000 to 225,000,000 bu.

This may bring the crop down below that of 2,622,000,000 bu harvested in 1929. Where corn was not in the tassel it is said to be in better shape, but from now on every day of very high temperatures will increase crop deterioration.

Recall Former Failure.

Old timers in the trade refer back to 1894 when an extremely hot wave practically burned up Nebraska's crop around the middle of July, with total yield for the country that year of 1,213,000,000 bu, of which Nebraska had 13,656,000 bu, as compared with 357,000,000 bu the previous year. Kansas that year had 41,798,000 bu, against 139,000,000 bu in 1893. Prices at that time were low and the advance was moderate, although the volume of speculation reached large proportions.

A half dozen strong local speculators took hold of the corn market three weeks ago in anticipation of crop damage. A few sold out after a good advance, but reinstated their lines. At the close Saturday it was said that one of the largest speculators was out of his line, and in some instances traders who were bullish and advised buying a few weeks ago ventured the prediction that corn was relatively too high.

On the other hand those who bought it freely in the closing days of the week said that corn was likely to sell as high as wheat, if not higher. In fact corn was relatively higher than wheat, July wheat closing at 89¼c for 60 lbs, while July corn at 87c for 56 lbs brought the two grains closer together than at any time in recent years.

Eastern Attitude.

Corn prices are said to be so high that Argentine and European corn is offered and is understood to have been bought relatively cheaper than the domestic grain at eastern ports. A cash handler called attention to the attitude of eastern distributors who, he says, have considered corn prices too high, and refused to anticipate their future requirements.

At the present rate of consumption he figures that they will either have to buy foreign corn or pay the high domestic price for supplies. Interior holders have sold old corn fairly on bulges, but it failed to check the upward movement of futures.

Corn futures are up 14⅜@16c from the season's low in about three weeks, December leading the advance. Closing prices for the week recorded advanced 4@6⅛c.

July corn closed Saturday at practically the top of the week, as well as for the present upturn at 87⅛@87c, September 86⅞@86⅞c, December 83¼@82¼c, and March 85⅝@85½c. Prices for the week follow:

Spring Wheat Damaged.

Spring wheat in the United States is expected to show a smaller crop in August government returns than in July, and ultimately to be less than last year's. Smaller Canadian estimates are also looked for, but North America will have all the wheat that there will be a demand for unless the southern hemisphere falls down and crops in France, Italy and other countries are materially lowered. The latest government report estimates production in eight European countries at 651,000,000 bu, as compared with 645,333,000 bu last year. North Africa has

Firmer Credit Expectations Are Dispelled

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 27.—As a result of developments in the money market last week the expectation of firmer credit conditions recently held by a number of bankers has been dispelled. It is now generally agreed that the fall demand for money will be met by continued easy rates and the rise in quotations for credit extending into the autumn which appeared imminent a few days ago has been replaced by an actual slackening of such charges.

The explanation of this change in viewpoint is found in an apparently minor change in the bill buying rate of the federal reserve bank. The change affected only bills of from 46 to 75 days' maturity and consisted of a reduction of one-eighth of 1 per cent in the existing buying rate. Coming at the time it did, this action was interpreted by bankers as a clear assurance on the part of central banking authorities that the bank would actively address itself to the maintenance of the current ease in money.

Firming Influences.

The firming influences which had appeared in the money market a little over a week ago were principally psychological, in the opinion of leading authorities. They consisted of a moderate firming in the longer time money rates and a sharp drop in demand for bankers' bills of more than 45 days' maturity.

These developments came in the face of a glut of short term money so extreme that it was found difficult to dispose of call money at 1 per cent and the market for federal reserve funds was knocked down to the unprecedentedly low figure of one-quarter of 1 per cent. As a general rule, federal reserve funds are priced at above the level of the rediscount rate. The fact that they are currently available at one-tenth of the latter rate shows, according to bankers, that a large number of banks have funds for which they can find no profitable employment.

This condition is one to cause extreme concern among bankers. The margin between what a bank pays its depositors for the use of their funds and what it receives as the proceeds of lending and investing these deposits is generally very small. If a bank continued very long to pay interest on its deposits while at the same time finding no employment for a substantial part of them, it would, obviously, soon have to retire from usiness.

Reason for Difficulties.

In the present instance the difficulties of the banks arise from the fact that they all want to keep the major portion of their money in a highly liquid use. Competition for such short, readily marketable investments as bankers' bills, treasury notes and bills and call money has driven the rates on those forms of credit to extremely low levels. At the same time, bonds, mortgage loans and other more extended investment vehicles are unpopular with the banks and carry comparatively high yields.

In explanation of this preference for short term investments and reluctance to tie up funds for longer periods, many bankers have expressed skepticism as to the "genuine" character of the present ease in money. It is thought by many of them that the current low money rates could very quickly tighten should world business affairs return to more normal conditions and commercial demand for credit revive.

State Line Generating Co. Buys $1,000,000 Apparatus

New York, July 27.—(AP)—The State Line Generating company of Hammond, Ind., has placed an order with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company for outdoor metal clad oil filled switch gear amounting to well over $1,000,000. The apparatus will be installed on the Illinois-Indiana state line to furnish light and power to Chicago and surrounding territory.

Mexican Debt Settlement Terms Shown

New York, July 27.—(AP)—Owners of defaulted obligations of the Mexican government and the Mexican National railways will receive from one to ten per cent of the $370,000,000 due on interest arrears. The amount paid will approximate $11,750,000.

Announcement of the sharp reduction in the accrued interest payments was made tonight in a supplementary statement issued by Mexican Finance Minister Montes de Oca and Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the international committee of bankers on Mexico, who last Friday signed the agreement for the refunding of Mexico's debt.

The statement said that in liquidating the long overdue debts of the Mexican government, which totals $275,302,000 principal amount, and approximately $197,900,000 unpaid interest, retirement of arrears will be on the following basis.

Receipts for interest in arrears, series B bonds, one per cent; series A, 2 per cent; current interest scrip, cash warrants, coupons and rights to interest maturing prior to Jan. 2, 1931, except interest represented in arrears receipts, 10 per cent.

Payment of the arrears will be made from a fund to be established. The plan provides for the consolidation of government issues into one new issue, and payment of annuities beginning with $12,500,000 for 1931, increasing to $15,000,000 in 1936 and thereafter. But of the early annuities, the committee plans to reserve sufficient money to establish the funds to pay a portion of the overdue interest.

Railways Plan Similar.

Retirement of the arrears on the national railways debt on similar terms is contemplated. Old government bonds will be exchanged for new issues to be known as prior series A and junior series B. Prior series A will be exchanged for the present secured direct debt and the junior series will be issued in exchange for the unsecured debt.

A sinking fund will be established calculated to be sufficient to retire the entire bond issue by its maturity in 45 years, either by purchase in the market or by redemption at 100, whichever is to the advantage of the government. As soon as the agreement is ratified by the Mexican congress the bankers' committee plans to call for deposit of the direct debt bonds, with which bondholders will be invited to deposit the unpaid coupons.

The new railway obligations would bear interest on a rising scale, from 2½ to 5 per cent per annum, and the same terms which apply to retirement of interest arrearages would apply to railway bonds.

Presents Railroad View of Cut in Export Wheat Rates

BY SCRUTATOR.

A railroad advocate's view of the economic effects of a cut in export wheat rates, made voluntarily something more than a year ago by the carriers, is given in a paper made public today by the bureau of railway economics.

The conclusion reached is that the reduction failed of its purpose to relieve the congestion in the wheat terminal markets by encouraging movement to the seaboard. From June to November, inclusive, a period which included four months of the lowered rates, wheat exports from the United States reached a total of about fifty-seven million bushels, a decline of nearly twelve million from the corresponding months of 1928 and thirty-seven million bushels under the five year average.

Assigns Reasons.

The freight reduction, it is asserted, did nothing to avert the decline in wheat prices. Among the reasons named were the following: Canada equalized its wheat growers' opportunities by reducing its railroad export rates in like measure; France, Germany, Italy and Roumania adopted higher tariffs that made exportation to them more difficult.

Fundamental factors, the bureau adds, were more important in guiding the course of wheat demand and price than the rates. Among those named were the huge crops in Australia and the Argentine and their low offering prices, and the large carryover of grain the European countries, ordinarily importers, enjoyed from their good crops of 1928.

On this showing, it might be assumed that our wheat growers would have been just as well off if there had been no rate reductions. While the lessened cost of freight to the seaboard did not halt the price decline, it is probable that some benefit was obtained by the growers. It can hardly be held that the tariffs were the result of the cut in rates. Possibly the Canadian rails would not have taken the lead in encouraging exports, but possibly they would.

At any rate, it is the delivered price that means something to the European buyers, and it is true at least in theory that shipments were encouraged by lower freight costs in the United States.

Sees False Assumption.

The trouble with freight rate making, until the Supreme court decided the Hoch-Smith resolution was a hopeful gesture instead of an order to the interstate commerce commission, was the assumption that the freight rate burden could be shifted from one commodity to another. It was taken for granted that agricultural products could be favored and manufactured products penalized by changed rates, and that the same amount of revenue would flow in.

There is fallacy in that. What would it profit a farmer to get a lower rate on wheat if he paid it back in higher rates on his lumber, his machinery and his gasoline? And what did it profit a railroad to get more volume by lowering certain rates, and losing traffic by raising other rates? Many competent traffic men are complaining that not enough attention is given to fixing rates at levels that will keep all traffic moving by rail at maximum volume.

GROSS FOR 12 MONTHS OF MIDDLE WEST UTIL. TOTALS $175,386,005

The Middle West Utilities company reports gross earnings of $175,386,005 for the twelve months ended June 30, compared with $145,827,697 for the preceding year. Other earnings were $9,049,032, against $6,304,368 the year before, while interest and other deductions of the parent company were $1,338,295, against $1,954,346, as a result of the reorganization.

Net income, before depreciation, was $33,645,505 for the twelve months ended on June 30, a gain of 39.8 per cent over the preceding year.

Gross earnings for the June quarter were $44,344,259, against $36,826,690 for the 1929 period, while net income, before depreciation, was $7,371,601, against $5,602,487.

NATIONAL STEEL REPORTS INCOME FOR HALF YEAR

New York, July 27.—(AP)—The National Steel corporation today reported for the first half net income of $6,102,102, equal to $2.89 per share, approximately equal to earnings of the constituent companies of National Steel corporation, during the corresponding period last year. The result did not include earnings for the Great Lakes Steel corporation, a subsidiary.

Skelly Oil company for the June quarter had net income of $736,274, equal to 59 cents a share, compared with $574,510, or 50 cents a share, for the like quarter last year.

For the six months Sterling Securities corporation reports net income after all charges and federal tax of $946,225.

MIDSUMMER IS NOT APT TO GIVE TRADE OUTLOOK

Is Normally Period of Relaxation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 27.—Midsummer is not apt to be the time when a clear view can be obtained of the financial and industrial horizon. At best, it presents such relaxation in activities, purely because of a normally inactive business season, as to leave the course of events more or less conjectural; a condition which is commonly reflected both in trade circles and on the stock exchange. To that tradition there have been notable exceptions, but always because of some unusual trend in the general situation.

Thus, in the summer of 1919, the business community suddenly seemed to comprehend that its previous belief in an immediate and violent afterwar relapse had been mistaken, and that the outside world was buying goods on credit at an all but unprecedented rate. It was in midsummer of 1924 that news of a harvest shortage in Europe, Canada, and South America drove up the price for our own abundant wheat crop to a level at which the "frozen-credit" problem made fair to find solution.

Of the excited midsummer rise of stocks in 1929, it can at least be said that the illusion of an illimitable rise on the stock exchange had then reached a momentum which disregarded all other economic weather signs, and which could not be stopped except by the sudden puncturing of the speculative bubble.

Curtail Purchases.

A mere glance at the present situation shows how completely all these influences are at the moment absent. The outside world is curtailing its purchases drastically, and comparisons of railway traffic show no change in the attitude of our own consumers from their recent drastic economies.

Wheat prices fail to recover from the lowest price in sixteen years. In place of the boundless financial confidence of twelve months ago, perplexity, hesitation and a flavor of discouragement and of excessive economy of investors and consumers. There is even something of an uneasy feeling that, as the October crash in stocks

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is one of the foremost public service corporations in the United States. The electric business of the Company or of its predecessors has been in continuous and successful operation for fifty-one years, and the gas business for seventy-six years.

The properties of the combined system, including important acquisitions from The North American Company made on June 12, 1930, constitute one of the largest interconnected electric and gas systems under single management in the United States. Total assets are approximately $650,000,000, and include electric generating stations of 1,472,857 h.p. total capacity, and extensive natural gas lines and distribution systems. Service is rendered to 1,223,921 consumers.

First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds ($145,000,000 outstanding, including this issue) are secured by a direct first mortgage on important properties owned by a subsidiary company, by a direct mortgage on all properties of the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, subject to the prior liens of underlying mortgages, and by $59,598,000 General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds pledged with the Trustees.

about one-fifth less than last year. Algeria, Morocco, and Tunis are estimated at 57,664,000 bu against 72,000,000 bu last year. It is too early to say anything about Argentine and Australian crops, although the latter has a very much larger acreage than last year.

Traders were largely bullish until the close when bearish sentiment became more pronounced due to continued hedging pressure from the southwest and middle west, and to failure of the general public to furnish follow up orders on bulges. Inasmuch as the market meets heavy selling on all bulges, there is a tendency to go slower on the buying side, although the strength in corn gave wheat a little help toward the last, while heretofore the situation was reversed.

The movement of winter wheat at present is largely from the middle west, Nebraska, and Colorado where the crop was largely harvested by combines and moved by truck, which enables farmers to market their crops faster. Millers have been large buyers of wheat in the interior and are believed to be fairly stocked up. One most important feature is reports from the seaboard estimating sales mainly of American hard winters, aggregating 50,000,000 bu for clearance between now and December, the largest volume of foreign business that the trade has known in recent years.

Gulf Exports to Enlarge.

Wheat has gone to gulf ports in larger volume and a fleet of boats is due there in a few days to take out a good portion of supplies.

Foreign markets have held up fairly and the whole wheat trade is in a healthier condition, with prices, of American wheat on an export level. In futures the week's range was 2¼c, with the close ⅞@2½c lower for the week. July closed at 89¼c, September, 91⅜@91¼c; December, 96⅞c, and March, $1.01⅛. Prices follow:

Increased Interest in Oats.

Damage to the oat crop is reported from high temperatures in some of the best sections. This, with the advance in corn, brought in more general business in connection with hedging and spreading. New oats are moving in light volume.

At the close prices of futures were ½c lower to ¼c higher than a week ago, July being 34⅞c, September 37⅜@37⅝, December 41½@41¾, and March 44c.

Rye on Export Basis.

Rye is said to be on an export basis with a few hundred thousand bushels said to have been sold to Europe, the first business in about a year. New crop rye is showing excellent quality and weight, but so far the movement has been light. The market was erratic, and closed ¼c higher to ⅜c lower for the week after a liberal range. July finished at 56⅛c, with the open interest only 259,000 bu. September closed at 58⅜c, December, 64⅛@64¼c, and March 69c.

SOVIET SECRET CONTRACTS

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 27.—The soviet trade monopoly has made secret contracts for the sale of 100,000 tons of wheat in Europe and is offering a similar amount to anybody who is willing to advance the money. This was learned from reliable sources in London today. The transactions represent a sum of between four and five million dollars.

A further fall of prices was forecast in statements made today at Arcos, Ltd., the soviet trade delegation in England. The Russian official said that 500,000 tons of wheat is a moderate estimate of the amount Russia will have for export this year.

Buyers Kept Secret.

Where the grain actually sold is to be moved to and who the buyers are is shrouded in mystery. One of the largest grain brokers in London said that he understood the go-between in the deals is the Dutch firm, Weil & Bros. of Amsterdam. They have long been prominent in Argentine wheat trade, but the informant was certain that they would not have the resources to put over such a deal as the handling of the Russian export.

Whether the purchasers have already advanced the soviets the money is not known, but is regarded likely that they will demand shipment before paying as a result of Russia's failure to meet a number of timber contracts. The soviets received large advances on some of these transactions, notably from England.

Secretly Dump Surplus.

The reason advanced for this "back door" trade is that the Russians fear a tumbling in prices if the scope of their operations is divulged. Unknown to the operators on the board of trade in Liverpool and other exchanges, the soviets have been secretly dumping their surplus abroad and leaving the rest of the world to hold the bag when it is learned that part of the market has already been supplied.

MIDSUMMER IS NOT APT TO SHOW TRADE OUTLOOK

Normally It Is Business' Inactive Season.

foreshadowed this year's early and rapid trade reaction, the subsequent renewed decline of April and June was a prophecy of unfavorable autumn trade.

It is reasonable enough to infer from present indications the improbability of rapid and sustained industrial recovery at an early date. But it is also wise to take account of the other fact that a period of trade discouragement and o excessive economy has itself, in our own past experience been itself the forerunner of industrial revival.

The consuming community's attitude in these matters always goes to extremes. It buys beyond its means in a period of financial enthusiasm, imparting a wholly false aspect to general trade, and the subsequent reaction is severe in proportion to the excesses of the speculative movement. In the course of that readjustment it is quite as sure, sooner or later, to carry its economies beyond the bounds of the community's normal needs.

Situation Eight Years Ago.

Analogy in this regard will be found much more convincing in such years as 1922. The business revival which occurred in the autumn of that year came at a time when the country had almost given up hope of it; but in retrospect, it was a perfectly logical occurrence.

The time for a definite revival under such conditions will no doubt depend on other underlying influences. Even in 1922 the visible trade revival had been preceded by a 12 per cent rise in average prices of commodities from the low point reached at the beginning of the year, whereas at present the average works out at the lowest of 1923, nearly 8 per cent under the January level.

Miscellaneous.

MEN, LIVING NORTH SIDE CHICAGO OR WAUKEGAN, ROCKFORD, PEORIA, OR VICINITY.

Waiting list will soon be established for applicant seeking position with a large international organization. These lists already exist in many of the 46 countries in which we operate over 600 branch offices. We are just commencing operations in the United States, and our expansion program calls for about forty men in the Illinois territory alone.

These men will be assured of a splendid income and a remarkable future with a financially strong company. Inasmuch as we are the only ones in our particular field, we cannot get experienced men, and the qualifications are loyalty, intelligence, and aggressiveness.

If you are selected you will be expected to start at once by attending factory branch school at our expense.

ONE WAY OUT

Are you looking for a way out of money worries? Are you tired of working for a mere $25 to $50 a week and then paying it all for food, clothing and rent? When old age comes to you and you can no longer work—what then? I know your trials and problems—I've been through the grind—but I found the one way out. It can be yours also. It costs you nothing but your spare time under my personal guidance two nights a week (for the next few weeks, a pleasant and profitable course of training that fits you for future financial independence. Come and bring your prejudices with you—make me prove it. I'm expecting you Monday evening, July 28, 8:15 o'clock, 8th flr., Burnham Bldg., 160 N. La Salle-st., Randolph-st. entrance.
